Chicago's city and county building became a vast and silent tomb yesterday and last night, walled by living flesh, echoing to the murmur and shuffling of the many thousands who came to look upon the face of Mayor Anton J. Cermak, victim of an assassin's shot in Miami meant for President Roosevelt, and now lying in his casket in the scene of his political triumphs and power, heedless of it all.

Not only his home section of Lawndale but all Chicago, it seemed, wanted to pay a last tribute to the fallen mayor. They came from all sections, gathering early in the morning and remaining until the doors were closed this morning, standing in the cold wind and shivering for hours, driven and pressed but unwavering in their determination.

Many Thousands Pay Tribute.

At 3 a. m. about 70,000 persons had passed by the coffin and steady lines were still streaming through the central corridor. All through the afternoon and evening there had been great crowds surrounding the building. To clear the crush it was found necessary to march the throng in a double line through the doors. The rate of passage, it was estimated, was more than 6,000 an hour.

Many in the lines had waited for hours in the bitter cold for an opportunity to glimpse briefly the features of the slain mayor. Several women fainted from fatigue and one old man died of heart disease. Other women, overcome by their emotions, tried to throw themselves on the casket, and were gently led away by the police guards.

Final Day of Rites.

Today is the last day of rites for the mayor. At 9 o'clock this morning, escorted by an immense parade of soldiers, officials, and citizens, the body will be taken to the Chicago Stadium at Madison and Wood streets, where civic services will be held at noon. From there the funeral procession will move to Bohemian National cemetery, 5300 North Crawford avenue, where burial services will be held late in the afternoon. The low stone tomb of the Cermak family, where the mayor's wife lies, is waiting for his body.

Late last night the vast banks of flowers which had been placed in the central hall of the city and county building were removed in twenty trucks to the Stadium.

First Arrivals at 5:30 A. M.

A little group of Italians was the first to arrive at the scene of public mourning in the city hall and county building yesterday. These visitors came at 5:30 o'clock in the morning. By 7 o'clock the crowd was beginning to swell and by the time the funeral party arrived from the home at 2348 South Millard avenue, where between 30,000 and 40,000 had viewed the mayor on Wednesday and Wednesday night, the people had taken possession of the square around the city hall and kept it all day and night.

They tried all the doors, but were guided by mounted and foot policemen into lines converging at the Washington street entrance. Friends, of course, and those with special passes got in at other doors and were edged into the line without a long wait. The crowds seemed to be made up of working people, housewives in thousands of humble homes who had come downtown on a rare visit, people from the outlying sections. Women predom-

Roosevelt Asks for More Authority to Cut Expenses.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10 [Friday].—[Special.]—President Roosevelt will ask congress today to give him authority to slash half a billion dollars off the federal budget this year by permitting him to cut salaries as high as 15 per cent and to effect drastic reductions in payments to war veterans.

Democratic congressional leaders, emerging from a conference at the White House that lasted past midnight, revealed the President's plan and announced their support.

Douglas Drafts Plans.

The President already has authority under a bill passed by the last congress to consolidate or eliminate bureaus, commissions and boards under a reorganization of the government and his budget director, Lewis Douglas, already has drafted plans for an annual saving of 200 million dollars by this reorganization, bringing the total projected savings up to 700 million dollars.

Speaker Rainey said following the conference that the savings planned in the President's new message may run as high as 600 million dollars and some leaders conceded the possibility that if Mr. Roosevelt is given the strong arm he asks for he will cut the budget by a full billion dollars.

If the President is given the drastic powers he seeks he will become a virtual dictator over federal expenditures, assuming a task which the leaders in congress confessed at the last session they could not accomplish.

Let President Do It.

"The proposal is to let the President do it," said Mr. Rainey early this morning. "Let George do it. That's the idea."

And the President, in his frank talk to the men from Capitol hill, as they reported his attitude, expressed a willingness to take whatever political consequences, good or bad, that may come from an energetic attack at the expensive bureaucracy of Washington. He showed a determination, it was said, to resist the lobbyists of the veterans' organizations who have fought for the towering costs of disability claim and hospitalization.

The President believes, it is said, that the citizens who would applaud drastic economy in government in these days would far outnumber those who grumble.

Bond Issue for Work.

The President also discussed with the congressional leaders a proposal which he is expecting to present in another message on Saturday, which will seek congressional authority for the issuance of a 500 million dollar bond issue to be used for purposes of reforestation, road construction and development of power projects.

The purpose behind this plan, according to the President's advisers, is to substitute in some measure a scheme of work relief for cash relief for the unemployed.

Reports at the White House were that the President will include in this latter message a request for approval of a survey to be made of the Tennessee river valley for which he recently announced an ambitious plan of reforestation, flood and crop control and power development. A bill looking to the making of such a survey was introduced in the senate today by Senator George Norris [Rad. Neb.].

Confer at White House.

Eight congressmen and six senators gathered in the President's study at Mr. Roosevelt's invitation at about 9:30, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the upper house, the first of the statesmen to emerge shortly after midnight, told reporters who had waited on the portico of the White House of the proposed action.

"It is expected," he said, "that the President will send to congress tomorrow morning a message bearing relation to the budget and looking to important and substantial reductions in expenditures for pensions, veterans' compensation, disability allowances, and emergency officers' retired pay.

"Coupled with it there is likely to be a plan for salary reductions, the total amount on both accounts being

CALL EXTENSION OF MORATORIUM A WISE ACTION

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Chicago banks will remain closed until tomorrow morning at least, and probably until Monday morning, clearing house officials said shortly before midnight last night as they adjourned after a four hour session. Adjournment came shortly after the Chicago group had received word from Washington that the national banking holiday had been extended.

Another meeting of the clearing house committee was called by Chairman Melvin A. Traylor for 10 o'clock this morning, at which time, it is understood, there will be further discussion of the feasibility of possible scrip issuance, cashing pay roll checks, and operating problems.

Predicts Opening on Monday.

One of the officials present at last night's meeting, although declining to be quoted, predicted that the reopening of Chicago banks would be postponed to Monday morning even if the national holiday should be terminated earlier.

While the bankers were in session at the clearing house headquarters on the sixth floor of the federal reserve bank at La Salle and Jackson streets, Gov. Henry Horner and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett were conferring in the governor's suite at the Congress hotel.

Extend State Holiday.

Gov. Horner issued a proclamation extending the state holiday one day, which means that no state bank will be permitted to reopen for business until tomorrow morning. It was understood that if the treasury does not permit national banks to reopen tomorrow the governor would issue another proclamation further extending the state holiday to conform with regulations from Washington.

The night session of the clearing house was the second meeting of the day. At noon, shortly after his arrival from Washington, Chairman Traylor had summoned bank leaders to the clearing house to tell them the details that lay behind the working out of the President's plan for reorganization of the nation's banking structure.

Present at the noon meeting were Howard Fenton, president, Harris Trust and Savings bank; Solomon A. Smith, president, and Walter B. Smith, director, Northern Trust company; Frank R. Elliott of the Harris Trust

Plan Provides for New Money from Reserve System.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

(Pictures on Back Page)

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Granted the powers of a financial dictator by congress tonight, President Roosevelt at 10:10 o'clock extended the national banking holiday without definite limits in preparation for a reopening of the banks of the federal reserve system, possibly beginning Saturday, but in all probability by Monday.

Plans to reopen the banks tomorrow under the terms of the emergency legislation enacted tonight to end the crisis were abandoned when the treasury reported to the President the physical impossibility of providing the banks with the supplies of new currency and of carrying out other provisions of the act.

More Time Needed.

To allow more time the President issued a proclamation extending the holiday "until further proclamation."

Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin announced at midnight that no reopenings of banks would be authorized before Saturday.

Investigations have already been launched into the soundness of banks, the secretary said, and all banks are invited to apply for permission to reopen. Not all of the applications will receive consideration or action by Saturday, however, he added.

Applauding the action taken by congress, Woodin said, "Through this law the banks which will open will be placed in a position to meet all demands. This assurance should restore confidence and create the foundation for a forward movement in business activities."

Plan Early Openings.

"It will be the policy of the treasury to permit as rapidly as possible the opening of sound banks," Woodin said. "There are, of course, many thousands of such banks which will promptly be restored to the performance of their normal functions."

Woodin explained that the regulations governing reopening would be published soon. He and other treasury leaders continued in conference after midnight on the requirements to be laid down.

List Liquid Banks.

The treasury is required by the new law to do these three things:

1. List the liquid banks of the federal reserve system which will be permitted to reopen.

2. Appoint conservators for unsound banks unable to resume business.

3. Distribute to the banks resuming business the new currency authorized by the new law.

Emerging from a White House conference late tonight, Senator Glass said the "alleged reason for the extension of the holiday is to give more state banks an opportunity to come into the federal reserve system under the new law and to give federal reserve banks time to ascertain more definitely than the controller of the cur-

PROCLAMATION OF THE PRESIDENT ON LONGER BANK HOLIDAY

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—The text of the proclamation issued tonight by President Roosevelt follows:

"Whereas, on March 6, 1933, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, by proclamation declared the existence of a national emergency and proclaimed a bank holiday extending from Monday, the 6th day of March, to Thursday, the 9th day of March, 1933, both dates inclusive, in order to prevent the export, hoarding, or earmarking of gold or silver coin, or bullion or currency, or speculation in foreign exchange; and

"Whereas, under the act of March 9, 1933, all proclamations heretofore or hereafter issued by the President pursuant to the authority conferred by section 5 [B] of the act of Oct. 6, 1917, as amended, are approved and confirmed; and

"Whereas, said national emergency still continues, and it is necessary to take further measures extending beyond March 9, 1933, in order to accomplish such purposes;

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in view of such continuing national emergency and by virtue of the authority vested in me by section 5 [B] of the act of Oct. 6, 1917 [40 stat. L., 411], as amended by the act of March 9, 1933, do hereby proclaim, order, direct and declare that all the terms and provisions of said proclamation of March 6, 1933, and the regulations and orders issued thereunder are hereby continued in full force and effect until further proclamation by the President."

GIANT DIRIGIBLE FOR U. S. NAVY READY TOMORROW

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Two of the 48 carrier pigeons released as the Macon, the navy's newest and largest dirigible, is christened at Akron on Saturday will carry the news to Macon, Ga., the navy department announced here today. After Mrs. William A. Moffett, wife of the chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, names the giant airship, it will be air-borne for the first time, simulating the launching of a surface craft from the builders' way into the water.

Twelve of the cells in the huge structure will be inflated with helium gas, which will cause it to rise three or four feet in the air. The dirigible will be then pulled back into position on the builders' blocks by a ground crew, and secured.

A silver service, a gift from the city of Macon to the new airship, will be presented by Mayor G. Glen Toole of Macon.

Commander Alger H. Dresel, who will be in command of the Macon, was in command of the Akron from June 22, 1932, until he reported for duty in fitting out the Macon a month ago.

RADIATOR CAP PHOTO OF WIFE TRAPS MOTORIST

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 9.—[Special.]—A broken radiator cap found on the side of a road contained, as if pasted in a watchcase, the picture of a smiling girl wearing cap and gown.

Patrolman A. A. Ridgeon looked today for persons who could identify that picture. Some persons said, "That looks like the wife of George Swindell, 22 years old, a bakery driver of Tarentum."

Soon Patrolman Ridgeon was knocking at the door of Swindell's home. Swindell was not there and Ridgeon waited.

Later Swindell is said to have confessed that he drove a car that hit two women. The police assert he admitted that, frightened, he fled to Pittsburgh. The coroner ordered him held on $5,000 bond. The victims, who were found unconscious early yesterday and who died in a hospital, were Mrs. Emma Reader, 43, and Mrs. Catherine Fisher, 46, both of Acmetonia.

New "Pocket Battleship" Launched by U. S. Navy

Mare Island, Cal., March 9.—(AP)—The new cruiser San Francisco, Uncle Sam's latest version of a 10 000 ton "pocket battleship" built under the limitations of the Washington treaty of 1922, slid into San Pablo bay here today after being smacked on the bow with a bottle of water wielded by Miss Barbara Bailly in the launching ceremonies.

Envoys' Choice Liquor Seized at New York

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Seizure by the treasury department of a choice consignment of wines and whiskies en route to empty cellars in the diplomatic colony has presented the Roosevelt administration with a knotty diplomatic liquor problem.

The liquor was consigned to one embassy and eight legations. It was seized in New York when the American ship carrying the wet goods stopped at that port before proceeding to Baltimore, the accredited port of entry for the diplomats' liquor supply.

Apprised that this spring and summer supply of champagnes and other beverages had run afoul of an American law forbidding American ships to engage in coastwise trade in liquor, diplomats representing the interested consignees protested to Cordell Hull, secretary of state, at his office today. Told finally they could bring the liquor by truck, the diplomats demanded an escort of guards to prevent hijacking. Secretary Hull took the whole matter under advisement.

Irish Whisky Included.

The Irish legation, the Chilean embassy, the Norwegian, Swedish, Nicaraguan, and Danish and three other legations were among those lodging protests. The liquor shipment was the largest received during the last six months. It represented the estimated entertainment needs for the missions in question for the coming social season.

Shipment was made of the liquor from Liverpool on board a shipping board vessel bound for Baltimore, the port from which Washington diplomats are accustomed to receive their supply. At the last minute, however, the first port of call of the vessel was changed from Baltimore to New York. When the ship arrived at that port agents of the treasury department seized the valuable consignment and unloaded it on the ground that it is unlawful for an American ship to engage in coastwise liquor traffic.

Receive Other Diplomats.

The fact that the British firm of Saccony & Speed, consignor of the shipment, as a gesture of friendliness had for the first time chosen an American ship for transporting the cargo was an added touch of irony. During the long, lucrative trade of supplying diplomatic Washington with alcoholic beverages the British firms always have used British ships as carriers.

Virtually the entire diplomatic corps was received today by Secretary Hull and Undersecretary Phillips. The protest was lodged with the department prior to the reception.

During the presentation of the diplomats' grievance with respect to their liquor supply it was learned that under the law they may not make use of the railways to transport the liquor from New York to Washington.

Envoys Fear Hijackers.

"Gentlemen," suggested the department official who received the complaint, "you can avail yourselves of the public highways. It is still possible for you to send to New York and have the liquor shipped to you by truck."

Thereupon one of the diplomats replied:

"We shall be delighted to do this even if it costs four or five hundred dollars extra, but will you arrange for the necessary military escort to prevent hijacking?"

Just what solution Secretary Hull will be able to evolve was not clear this evening.

Secretary Hull has written to Secretary Woodin asking him please to allow drawing of diplomats' money from Washington banks, where it has been impounded by the moratorium.

HUEY LONG ASKS AMENDMENT TO REDIVIDE WEALTH

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—A constitutional amendment giving congress authority to levy a direct capital tax to decentralize wealth was proposed today by Senator Long [Dem., La.] in a resolution introduced in the senate.

rency has done how many banks should be reopened."

The Seventy-third congress met in extraordinary session at noon and by 7:30 p. m. had passed without change the bill drafted by the administration which gives the President complete control of the banks, makes provision for forcing gold out of hoarding, and authorizes an expansion of the currency of huge proportions.

The house passed the bill unanimously and with but perfunctory debate late in the afternoon. When the bill reached the senate Senator Huey Long, the Louisiana Kingfish, started a fight on it in behalf of state banks outside the federal reserve system, which, he said, would be forced to the wall because excluded from the scope of the legislation. Senator Glass said that the state banks will be helped instead of injured and that no bank worthy of the name would suffer. Although failing to procure amendment of the bill, Long voted for it. The senate passed the measure, 73 to 7.

Those voting against it were Senators Borah [Rad., Idaho], Carey [Rep., Wyo.], La Follette [Rad., Wis.], Nye [Rad. Rep., N. D.], Costigan [Rad. Dem., Colo.], and Shipstead [Farmer-Labor, Minn.].

Bill Promptly Signed.

At 8:15 o'clock the bill was on its way to the White House, where it was signed by the President at 8:37 in the oval library.

The first lady's fat black Scotty dog, Meggie, barked sharply and that broke the silence of the historic occasion at the White House tonight when Mr. Roosevelt signed the bill.

Mr. Roosevelt sat at a glass topped Italian renaissance desk facing the fireplace, with Mrs. Roosevelt in a gray velvet dinner gown, leaning on the desk on the opposite side. Representative Claude V. Parsons of Golconda, Ill., chairman of the house committee on enrolled bills, and South Trimble, clerk of the house, stepped forward with the banking bill, the first to be signed by the new President.

An American flag stood in a stand at the President's left and the President's flag was on the right. Around the room were strewn the crates which the decorators have not had time to unpack. The President has been supervising the hanging of his marine pictures and several prints and paintings of battleships in action had been placed on the walls of the room which he will use as his study.

Movie lights and cameras had been placed, and the President blinked at the glare.

"Where is a special pen?" Mr. Roosevelt asked. "I always had a special pen at Albany to sign important bills."

Borrows Woman's Pen.

Miss Nancy Cook, who is associated with her friend, Mrs. Roosevelt, in the Valkill furniture shops at Hyde Park, stepped forward and said:

"Here's mine, Franklin."

The President took Miss Cook's fountain pen, and complete silence was observed as he began to sign. Then Meggie barked, Mrs. Roosevelt smiled easily, and the President finished his signature.

Congressman Parsons told the President that the passage of the bill created an all-time record. The house began discussion of the measure at 3 o'clock and at 8:15 it was signed by Vice President Garner, all without the changing of a single word, Mr. Parsons said.

Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, who had so much to do with the preparation of the bill, was not present at the signing. He walked in the room just as the ceremony had ended. The only other witnesses, besides the news reporters and photographers, were Louis McHenry Howe, the President's chief secretary, and Miss Marguerite Le Hand, his personal secretary.

As everybody started to leave Mrs. Roosevelt leaned over her husband's chair.

"Fix your hair, Franklin," she said.

Scrip Is Authorized.

The treasury tonight issued an authorization for the issuance of scrip wherever needed as a temporary medium of exchange.

"Notwithstanding the expected early opening of banks," said the treasury, "the secretary of the treasury interposes no objection to the issuance of clearing house certificates or other evidences of claims against assets of banking institutions, in communities where local conditions make such action necessary. The regulation issued by the secretary, March 7, 1933, remains effective, granting permission to clearing house associations organized to provide an adequately secured medium of temporary exchange to issue certificates against sound assets of banking institutions, such certificates to be deliverable by each institution to its creditors and depositors on a pro rata basis."

New Currency Available.

The treasury's biggest job now is the weeding out of the unsound banks. Sound banks will resume business with a supply of the new government currency backed not by gold but by the liquid assets of banks. There will be no limitation on withdrawal of deposits. Unsound banks will be taken over by federal conservators and reorganized or liquidated.

Treasury officials would not undertake to speculate on the volume of new currency that might be issued on the basis of the liquid assets of banks. One estimate is 25 billion dollars.

Regarding the legislation as providing for the inflation of the currency for which they have been fighting the inflationists in house and senate are jubilant. They applauded in the house every reference to expansion of the currency.

Predict Dollar Wheat.

Looking for an immediate skyrocketing of commodity prices as the result of a cheapening of the dollar through inflation, they are predicting dollar wheat and 15 cent cotton at no distant date. With such inflation farm relief and debtor relief will be unnecessary, say the inflationists.

How debtors are going to pay debts that are payable in gold when they cannot obtain from the government the gold in which to pay is a question that has been put up to the treasury without satisfactory answer. Many senators and representatives are urging legislation abrogating the gold clause of mortgages and other obligations, although constitutional lawyers say such action would be an unconstitutional impairment of contract.

Principal Features of New Banking Law Are Explained

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—Here are the emergency banking law's principal provisions:

TITLE ONE.

Approves and confirms all previous proclamations and orders of President Roosevelt and Secretary Woodin.

Invests in President Roosevelt and makes applicable to peacetime emergencies the tremendous world war powers of regulation over transactions in credit, currency, gold and silver, including foreign exchange.

Maximum penalties for violations are $10,000 fine and 10 years' imprisonment.

Empowers Secretary Woodin to require delivery at the treasury of all gold and gold certificates held by anybody in the country.

Authorizes President Roosevelt, without invoking the war powers, to fix restrictions on the banking business of federal reserve members.

TITLE TWO.

Authorizes the controller of the currency to appoint a conservator for any national bank or District of Columbia bank whenever he considers it necessary to conserve the bank's assets.

Enables the conservator to set aside for withdrawal by depositors on a ratable basis such amounts as the controller says may be so used safely.

Permits the controller to allow banks under conservators to receive new deposits which would be segregated and subject to withdrawal without restriction.

Permits the reorganization of national banks upon the approval of the controller and, as the case may be, either of depositors of 75 per cent of total deposits, or holders of two-thirds the outstanding capital stock, or both.

Text of the emergency banking law will be found on page 19.

TITLE THREE.

Provides for the issuance of preferred stock by national banks and for the purchase of preferred stock of national banks and of state banks, and for loans upon the security of such stock by the reconstruction corporation, whenever Secretary Woodin, with the approval of President Roosevelt, considers it necessary to supply funds for the organization or reorganization of such banks.

TITLE FOUR.

Authorizes the issuance of federal reserve bank notes "redeemable in lawful money of the United States." They would be issued to the value of 100 per cent of government obligations deposited as security, and to the value of 90 per cent of the notes, drafts, bills of exchange and bankers' acceptances deposited as security.

Permits federal reserve banks to make bank note advances to member banks on time or demand notes secured to the satisfaction of the reserve bank, but not ordinarily eligible. This section has a maximum time limit of March 3, 1935.

Authorizes federal reserve banks to make 90 day bank note advances to any individual, partnership or corporation on promissory notes secured by federal obligations.

TITLE FIVE.

Appropriates $2,000,000 for expenses in carrying out the act.

Under several phases of the new law state banks and trust companies are on an equal footing with national banks.

ACTION IN SENATE

Coming from its consideration in the senate banking and currency committee, the bank relief bill immediately became the storm center of debate on the senate floor.

The committee reported it out without a record vote, but with two senators voicing opposition. These were understood to be William Gibbs McAdoo of California, former secretary of the treasury under Wilson, and Senator Edward P. Costigan of Colorado, member of the Democratic radical wing.

The committee had before it one copy of the measure and this an early print so amended and interlined that senators emerged from the meeting shaking their heads at questions concerning the bill's contents and saying, "Don't ask me. I don't even know what's in it."

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] was the first to dart a question at the Democratic sponsors of the measure. He had been told, he said, that it was the purpose of the treasury deliberately to force weaker banks into receivership.

Undertakes to Answer.

Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher, the elderly Floridian, undertook to answer. He could not credit such reports.

"In respect to banks that the controller may consider in a doubtful condition he may require some further regulation," he said.

"Would it be fair to assess a rule of solvency against the values as of this afternoon?" the Michigan senator inquired.

"I should say not," answered Senator Fletcher.

"The senator would not anticipate that any such rule would be contemplated under the language of the act?" asked Senator Vandenberg.

"I should say not," was Senator Fletcher's reply again.

Then Senator Huey Long, the Louisiana radical, broke in upon the debate and soon was monopolizing it. He offered an amendment giving the President power to admit to federal reserve membership any state bank without requiring the bank to meet all the conditions now stipulated.

"Otherwise," he said, "tomorrow will not be a bank opening day. It will be a black sunrise for 90 per cent of the people in my state."

Senator Alben W. Barkley [Dem., Ky.] arose with immediate objections. Senator Long's reply was that the President would not, in all probability, permit state banks to issue money and would not allow them to become members indiscriminately.

Powers to Plumb Stockings.

Referring to the section on gold hoarding, he said:

"The President is being given power to go into the stockings of the people at the forks of the creek and see what they have there. I do not propose to give him a bit more power than you do."

"What will the little banks do in the little county seats?" the Louisiana senator went on.

"They have been lending money to farmers and taking collateral that has been sent there from New York. They have filled their coffers full with German marks and bonds, Brazil bonds, bonds of Argentina. They have had to do it. They would not have had credit otherwise. The word of Charles E. Mitchell was law. Now the senator from Kentucky comes with a bill which will permit the bank of Charles E. Mitchell to hoist the flag of purity tomorrow morning under the sanction and protection of the government of the United States and to close 95 per cent of the state banks at the forks of the creeks of this country which have been guilty of no such practices as have the banks which the senator proposes to save."

Glass Enters Fray.

The threat of the Long amendment drove Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], banking authority of the senate, to take a hand in the fray.

He declared the measure would help rather than injure state banks by giving them more liberal powers to borrow from their correspondent banks in the federal reserve system and the right to obtain capital from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for reorganization purposes through the sale of the corporation for preferred stock.

"This talk about closing all state banks is based upon a total misunderstanding of the provisions of the bill," Senator Glass declared. "We do not close by act or by implication a single, solitary state bank in the United States—not one. These banks are within the jurisdiction and under the authority of the respective states, and every one of them may be opened at daybreak tomorrow morning by authority of the respective states."

Long Presses Argument.

Senator Long pressed his argument, wanting to know how much help the state banks might expect from member banks already in difficulties.

"They are not going to get any today, and they will not get anything tomorrow if this legislation is defeated," Senator Glass snapped back, and he went on to flay the Long amendment.

Words flew back and forth.

"Let the senator be more civil, then," was Senator Glass' warning as the discussion grew warm. Then he pointed out that every "desirable" state bank in the country could, if it wanted to, gain membership in the federal reserve system before noon tomorrow.

"There are provisions of this bill so broad that no friend of the federal reserve system in ordinary times would tolerate them for a moment," Senator Glass went on. "Under the provisions of the bill, when member banks shall have exhausted their eligible paper they may bring their 'cats and dogs,' if you please, to the federal reserve bank and, with the assent of the federal reserve board, have them discounted under this bill.

"Not only that but it is provided under this measure and under a provision of law passed by the last congress to permit individuals who have eligible paper in their possession and who cannot get accommodated at the member bank to take it directly to the federal reserve banks and be accommodated."

"An outstanding provision of the bill is that dealing with the issue of new currency," the Virginia senator continued. "Senators will understand that there are two different kinds of federal reserve notes. Federal reserve notes are required to be buttressed with 40 per cent gold reserve. But there is what the act calls a federal reserve bank note, which requires no reserve whatsoever. It is on a par with national bank notes. It is secured by the bonds of the United States, and we have authorized in this bill the issuance of some billions of dollars of federal reserve bank notes to relieve the situation."

Sees Halt of Hoarding.

The senator believed gold withdrawals might be traced and hoarding stopped. Then he swung into his favorite theme of excoriating the little banks such as Senator Long was seeking to protect.

"Little banks," he fumed, "little corner grocerymen that get together $10,000 or $15,000 and then invite the deposits of their community and at the very first gust of disaster topple over and ruin their depositors. What we need in this country is real banks and real bankers. If a struggling girl wants to get a place here in Washington as a stenographer or typist she has to have a civil service examination and yet we have people spread all over the country from one end to the other calling themselves 'bankers,' and all they know is how to shave notes at an excessive rate of interest."

Senator Glass applauded the nonpartisan coöperation which brought the bill about and promised it speedy passage.

Sees Help for Others.

"Let us do today," he urged, "what will result in the opening tomorrow or within the next few days of five thousand of the member banks of the federal reserve system, which banks in turn will give out their facilities in an indirect way to their correspondent nonmember state banks and help the whole banking system in the country.

"There are provisions in the bill which shock me, which in ordinary times I would not dream of subscribing to, but we have a situation that invites the patriotic coöperation and aid of every man who has any regard for his country and for its business interest. I appeal to you senators not to load it down with amendments. Let us accept the bill almost if not unanimously passed by the house of representatives and not alter it and have to go into controversial conference that might take us beyond the time when aid is imperatively needed."

Apply for Membership.

Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah] interrupted.

"As news has been flashed throughout the country of the terms of the bill there have been a large number of applications by state banks to come into the federal system," he said. "I am informed that they are coming in now by wire and that yesterday 350 million dollars of gold was restored to the banks in New York and large quantities today are being poured into the banks throughout the United States."

"Banks will be opened which represent approximately 64 per cent of the banking resources of the system," said Senator Glass.

"Is it known precisely what banks will open and what banks will not open, under the terms of the measure?" inquired Senator Vandenberg.

Others to Open Later.

Senator Glass replied:

"The whole body of banks will be reopened which come within the classification of solvency, and very shortly we are assured by the controller of the currency an additional body of banks, with somewhat impaired capital structure, will be opened, very likely within a few days, and only those banks which are literally rotten, and which ought to have been permitted to fail long ago, will not be allowed to be opened."

"Those that will open in the course of a few days are in addition to the 64 per cent?" asked Senator Vandenberg.

"In addition," Senator Glass affirmed, "aggregating nearly 5,000 of the 5,900 banks in the federal reserve banking system."

Answering Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] Senator Glass explained that currency backed by government bonds was not a new departure. It was not ideal, he explained, but it would serve to enlarge the currency.

"The very psychological effect of the prompt enactment of this legislation will be tremendous," Senator Glass went on. "In my view it will do more than anything that has been suggested to restore confidence, and what we need after all is the restoration of confidence. It is the least objectionable of all the multitude of suggestions that have been presented. We have been trying in mass meetings to frame a banking bill which is an utterly futile undertaking. Not until last night and extending into the early hours of this morning with the assistance of experts, of actuaries, of practical banking men, were we enabled to frame a bill."

Again Senator Long interrupted, arguing that all banks other than the 5,000 member banks would be closed by the act.

"I have not slept an hour since night before last," Senator Glass came back at him, "and now to be pestered with attempts to pin prick a great measure like this is not at all agreeable.

Charges Ignorance.

"We are not going to close one bank, and the senator does not know what he is talking about when he says we will close 14,000. The senator from Louisiana has such ignorance of the whole problem and such a lack of appreciation of things that he wants the President to cover 14,000 banks with the federal reserve system without knowing a thing in the world about them."

"It suffices me to say," Senator Glass concluded, "that if this bill passes tonight then every depositor in every one of the thousands of banks which will reopen tomorrow will know by virtue of the provisions of the bill that currency is available to his bank which will be sufficient to pay every penny of every deposit in every one of those member banks that opens. The resulting confidence will justify me in having postponed the relatively petty criticisms which I would otherwise be impelled to make at this moment."

MR. ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE ASKING BANKING POWERS

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(Special.)—Following is President Roosevelt's message to congress asking emergency legislation for control of banking crisis:

"To the senate and house of representatives:

"On March 3 banking operations in the United States ceased. To review at this time the causes of this failure of our banking system is unnecessary. Suffice it to say that the government has been compelled to step in for the protection of depositors and the business of the nation.

"Our first task is to reopen all sound banks. This is an essential preliminary to subsequent legislation directed against speculation with the funds of depositors and other violations of positions of trust.

Asks Executive Control.

"In order that the first objective—the opening of banks for the resumption of business—may be accomplished, I ask of the congress the immediate enactment of legislation giving to the executive branch of the government control over banks for the protection of depositors; authority forthwith to open such banks as have already been ascertained to be in sound condition and other such banks as rapidly as possible; and authority to reorganize and reopen such banks as may be found to require reorganization to put them on a sound basis.

"I ask amendments to the federal reserve act to provide for such additional currency, adequately secured, as it may become necessary to issue to meet all demands for currency and at the same time to achieve this end without increasing the unsecured indebtedness of the government of the United States.

"I cannot too strongly urge upon the congress the clear necessity for immediate action. A continuation of the strangulation of banking facilities is unthinkable. The passage of the proposed legislation will end this condition and I trust within a short space of time will result in a resumption of business activities.

Foresees New National Viewpoint.

"In addition, it is my belief that this legislation will not only lift immediately all unwarranted doubts and suspicions in regard to banks which are 100 per cent sound but will also mark the beginning of a new relationship between the banks and the people of this country.

"The members of the new congress will realize, I am confident, the grave responsibility which lies upon me and upon them.

"In the short space of five days it is impossible for us to formulate completed measures to prevent the recurrence of the evils of the past. This does not and should not, however, justify any delay in accomplishing this first step.

"At an early moment I shall request of the congress two other measures which I regard as of immediate urgency. With action taken thereon we can proceed to the consideration of a rounded program of national restoration."

HOUSE ACTS QUICKLY

Action of the house on the bill was prefaced by the reading of the President's brief message setting forth the gravity of the banking situation and the imperative necessity of prompt remedial action. Nearly every member was in his seat, but few members understood the provisions of the measure they were asked to approve.

Exercising his duties for the first time, Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], new majority floor leader, called the measure up for consideration immediately after reading of the President's message had been completed. Speaker Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, presiding in his new capacity for the first time, recognized him and secured unanimous consent for consideration of the measure.

Mr. Byrns took the floor to warn briefly that there was "no telling the effects tomorrow" if this bill failed of passage tonight. He asked his Democratic followers to accept the leadership of President Roosevelt, to "send this bill immediately to the senate, and see it become a law this evening."

G. O. P. Leader for It.

From the Republican side then came an assurance of coöperation.

"I will agree," said Representative Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.], veteran minority floor leader, "with the importance of what the majority leader has just said. It is far out of the ordinary to pass a bill which is not even in print.

"But that is not the question; the house is burning down and the President of the United States says this is the way to put out the fire. I don't know all the details of this bill, but whether I do or not, I'm going to vote for it because the President says it is what we need in this emergency."

After the bill had been read, Representative Henry Steagall [Dem., Ala.] chairman of the banking and currency committee, rose to outline briefly the provisions of the measure.

Steagall Outlines Bill.

"It affirms the action taken by the President in declaring the bank holiday and in taking the other emergency steps already effected," he said. "It confers upon the President authority to regulate transactions in gold and from time to time to regulate and conserve the supply of gold; affords a constructive expansion of the currency of the country, the amount of expansion to be controlled by the exigencies of the situation."

"It does not say," Mr. Steagall told the house, "that this is all I would do, nor all that can be done, nor all that is going to be done. It is just one step—an attempt to build out of wreck and ruin. It took us fifty years to build our banking structure. We cannot rebuild it overnight. But we have a leadership whose face is lifted to the sky."

Plan Deposit Insurance.

It was Representative T. Alan Goldsborough [Dem., Md.], another member of the banking and currency group, who made the most illuminating statements of the day, however, when he told the house that the banking and currency committee would shortly bring out a bill to "insure all bank deposits" and another bill to "refiate and stabilize the currency."

Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] asked Mr. Steagall how much currency could be issued under the provisions of the bill. Mr. Steagall said he did not know, and Mr. Britten said he understood the amount would be between 20 and 30 billions.

DAY IN WASHINGTON

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Congress passed emergency banking legislation, President Roosevelt signed it, and extended banking holiday indefinitely to put provisions into effect.

Senate adjourned impeachment trial of Judge Harold Louderback of California until Monday because house was not ready to press its prosecution.

Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.] introduced legislation to carry out President Roosevelt's Tennessee valley industrial development project.

Conference called by Chairman Morgenthau of farm board deferred action on plans for transfers of wheat futures in anticipation of early resumption of banking activities.

President Roosevelt discussed reorganization question with secretaries of war, agriculture, and interior.

2D GUN SHELL HALTED ON WAY TO ROOSEVELT

Watertown, N. Y., March 9.—(AP)—Postmaster George A. Hager of Watertown said tonight a package containing a shotgun shell and "some writing" and addressed to President Roosevelt was intercepted in the Watertown postoffice Monday night.

He described the package as "very similar" to a parcel sent to Mr. Roosevelt from Watertown last month and intercepted at the postoffice at Washington.

The postmaster confirmed reports of the discovery of the package a few hours after two postal inspectors who attempted to trace the sender of the first parcel returned to Watertown on an evening train.

"From a description of the other package sent to Mr. Roosevelt I would say this one was just the same as that," he said. "As to whether there was any similarity of handwriting I can't say, as I didn't see the first package."

HOUSE ELECTS RAINEY SPEAKER; VOTE 302 TO 110

Honor to Illinois Second Time in History.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Henry T. Rainey, today, for the first time, took the speaker's gavel for his own and thereby gave to his native Illinois her second son as speaker of the house of representatives. The first son was Uncle Joe Cannon, the Republican, who won the honor in 1903, the year, dramatically enough, that Rainey, the Democrat, came to congress.

Today's victory was the climax of a pre-caucus fight among the Democrats. It also was the climax of an active ambition of the handsome, white haired man who is so straight and strong you'd never guess he was 72 years old. As he walked up the aisle on the arm of Representative Bertrand Snell, the New York Republican whom he had defeated 302 to 110 with five Farmer-Labor men voting for Representative Paul Kvale of Minnesota, his deep dark eyes shown mistily.

Rainey Calm, but Happy.

In front of the rostrom he stopped, in pleasant confusion, trying to decide whether to go to the right or the left. Mr. Snell tugged at the black coat, steered the big frame around to the right. Once on the platform he was calm, but very happy.

Representative Edward Pou, a fellow Democrat from North Carolina and the only member of the house who has been there as long as Mr. Rainey, administered the oath of office.

Up in the gallery a tall woman, hatless, paused in her knitting, let the white yarn slip off her knee, as she applauded. The woman was Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who brought a party of her friends up to the gallery to see the opening of the Seventy-third congress.

Tears in Wife's Eyes.

Down on the floor away at the back, a tall woman, hatless, leaned forward so intently it seemed she had spanned the distance to the platform, as she watched his face. She didn't applaud. She used her hands to wipe away a few tears that glistened in her eyes. The woman was Mrs. Rainey, wife and secretary to the new speaker.

"I'll tell you why Henry Rainey is a great man; why, it's good for the country that he's the speaker," she said later. "He's so calm, so sane. Watch him go into a room, filled with excitement and worry. He doesn't say a word; just sits down, reaches for that old pipe of his; slowly then he reaches for a match. It takes him quite a while to light the pipe. But all the time he gives out the strength of serenity. The people in the room feel it. The people of the nation will feel it."

As soon as the oath had been administered, Speaker Rainey banged the gavel, called the house to order. There was Will Rogers, congressman, not comedian, from Oklahoma, a tiny man in pale gray, not a bit like a cowboy. There was Minnesota's Magnus Johnson, with a trim haircut and a tailored suit. There was Matthew Dunn, the blind man from Pittsburgh. There was Francis H. Shoemaker, the Minnesotan who went to jail for libel, and who, a little later in the day is going to be asked to step aside and await further action on his credentials.

Thanks Colleagues for Honor.

Briefly, Speaker Rainey thanks his colleagues for the honor; solemnly he urges them, on both side of the aisle, to forget partisan politics in the crisis which he likens to the world war crisis, saying "today we are engaged in another war, more serious in its character and presenting greater dangers to the republic."

Applause on both sides of the aisle pledge him support.

The new speakers swears in the members, then the official "hired help"—the chaplain, postmaster, sergeant at arms, doorkeeper, and others. Representative Edward Stokes, an old time Republican from Pennsylvania, strolls in late, sees the men with upraised hands, joins the group, is sworn in, discovers his mistake, and amid a lot of merriment is sworn in all over again.

Routine committees are appointed. One to meet with a senate committee and, jointly, inform the President that the seventy-third congress is ready to receive any message from him. In great dignity this committee stalks out; returns in about 90 seconds, with the report, in highly parliamentary language, that it has performed its function.

This causes a lot of laughter, for a messenger from the White House has been hanging around the back door of the chamber for an hour, ready to tell the house about the President's message.

And the special session of the seventy-third congress starts to work, over in the house, under Illinois' son, Speaker Rainey.

MUSSOLINI TELLS ITALY THE WORLD IS GOING FASCIST

Urges Black Shirts to Expand Doctrine.

ROME, March 10.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Premier Mussolini through the Grand Council of Fascism this morning issued a declaration that the Black Shirt doctrine is spreading over the world, and called on Italian Fascists to take pride in this movement and work tirelessly for its expansion.

The premier talked for two hours with the council, his highest cooperating body, which met in midnight session at the Palazzo di Venezia to study the domestic and international situation. His Milan newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, has been referring to President Roosevelt's firm stand and Chancellor Hitler's election victory in Germany as evidence that dictatorial methods are gaining ground at the expense of the democratic form of government.

"Affirmation of New Spirit."

The declaration says that the Grand Council of Fascism recognizes in the Fascist movement that is developing outside of Italy's frontiers an affirmation of a new spirit which, directly or indirectly, has derived strength and example "from that solid set of doctrines and institutions by which Italy has created the modern state, the state of the people in its effective historical, organic living reality.

"The council invites the Black Shirts of all Italy on the eve of the fourteenth anniversary of the foundation of the young Fascists of the combat group to take pride and feel great responsibility in this hour and to work tirelessly for the strength of the country and the expansion of the Fascist spirit in the world," the declaration says.

Cites Foreign Policy.

The document closed with a statement "to the Italian people and to the peoples of other countries" that Italy's foreign policy is guided with firm purpose not to disturb world peace and to collaborate for the political, economic, and moral recovery of Europe.

The council expressed conviction that the disarmament conference cannot reach positive results unless it accepts the concrete proposals advanced by Italy. Italy has insisted at Geneva on radical reduction in all forms of aggressive armament.

STATE SALES TAX BILL IS GAINING IN HOUSE; MAY PASS

Reports that downstate opposition to passage in the Illinois house of representatives of the 3 per cent sales tax bill is fading and that the bill may have acquired the necessary 102 votes by Tuesday reached Chicago proponents of the measure yesterday. On a test vote Wednesday the bill received only 82 votes.

Gov. Horner has urged the tax as the best means of making money available immediately to continue emergency relief. It passed the senate two weeks ago, but met opposition in the house which, it was feared, would bring defeat.

Yesterday, however, it was said that some downstaters had changed their attitude and would be willing to give their votes for the bill when called on third reading next week. Proponents hoped that at least twenty more legislators than favored it Wednesday could be brought to this frame of mind. Representatives from some border counties along the state line, however, are expected to stand firm in their opposition.

LONG DISCOVERS NO ADMITTANCE SIGN IS FOR HIM

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—Huey Long today found a "no admittance" sign meant just what it said.

When the banking committee was studying the Roosevelt emergency bank bill behind closed doors, the self-styled "Kingfish"—not a member of the committee—nonchalantly opened the door and walked in.

He came out about two minutes later, however, remarking to newspapermen rather angrily that Senator Glass "doesn't know as much about this bill as I do."

Ex-Dry Worker to Face Court on Boys' Charges

Arthur Lynch, 1664 Farwell avenue, formerly a press agent for a prohibition organization, is to be arraigned in the Town Hall court tomorrow on the complaint of two fathers who allege that he taught their sons immoral practices. Lynch's wife, who is a teacher of languages, attributed her husband's conduct to illness. Two months ago Mrs. Lynch charged that her husband and Mrs. Beata Brucer, then president of the Cook County W. C. T. U., were too friendly. The charges were denied.

HOARDED GOLD IS FLOWING BACK INTO BANK HERE

Large Scale Movement Expected Today.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Gold held by Chicago hoarders is expected to pour back into the vaults of the Federal Reserve bank here on a large scale today as a result of the order by the federal reserve board that the names of all persons taking gold from banks for hoarding purposes must be reported to Washington by March 13.

Officials of the Chicago Reserve bank said yesterday that a noticeable amount of gold already has been received from persons desiring to keep their names off the Washington list. They declined to estimate the amount.

Reserve banks in other cities reported that the return of gold from safe deposit boxes and places of concealment has already assumed large proportions.

Drain in Progress Two Years.

Gold has been leaving the vaults of the Federal Reserve banks here in varying amounts during the last two years. The movement was not serious, however, until the Michigan bank holiday was proclaimed on Feb. 14. During the ten day period from Feb. 14 to 24 a total of around $2,000,000 was reported to have been taken.

Then the movement picked up speed, and in the few days before the proclamation of a national holiday by President Roosevelt it is reported that from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 was being taken daily.

Long lines of persons, anxiously regarding the future, stood before the specie window at the Federal Reserve bank at La Salle street and Jackson boulevard. Amounts as high as $500,000 were taken out at one time. A hoard of $500,000 weighs half a ton and it required the services of a money moving truck and a couple of husky attendants to move it to a safety deposit vault.

Record Hoarders' Names.

Federal Reserve bank employés recorded the names of every person drawing out gold. Some banks, as a convenience to their customers, gave out gold in exchange for currency. The names of these persons likewise were turned over to the reserve bank.

To make sure there would be no omissions in the list of gold hoarders the reserve bank here stated:

"The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago is requesting banks in this district to obtain the names and addresses of all persons who have withdrawn gold or gold certificates from any bank in this district in recent weeks and who have not redeposited it in a bank on or before March 13, 1933, which list is to be reported to Washington by the Federal Reserve bank."

It is understood that following this order another was issued which requests that the same information be given with respect to persons who have withdrawn gold in the last two years.

Gold Hoarders May Be Taxed.

Officials at Washington have not explained in full the use which will be made of the list of hoarders, but it was asserted the compilation will put federal officials in a position either to make public the names or to take more drastic action. Some officials have suggested that a tax be imposed on hoarded gold. At any rate, as explained in Washington, it is the primary desire of the new administration to force as much gold out of hoarding as possible and put it back into the vaults of the federal reserve banking system.

What course the federal government will take with respect to payment of gold on federal obligations falling due has not yet been announced. All obligations of the United States are payable at maturity in gold coin. This applies to both short term and long term obligations.

Postal Deposits Gain.

In the meantime deposits are now approaching withdrawals in the postal savings bank here, according to Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder. Deposits yesterday totaled $111,115, while withdrawals amounted to $156,534. During the day the sum of $289,841 was paid out in money orders from other cities and $85,139 was collected on money orders for payment in other cities.

John T. McGrath, assistant postmaster, said he had received official notification of an embargo on money orders to all foreign countries. In addition to other nations the order applies to Cuba, Canada, the Panama Canal Zone, the Philippine Islands, and the West Indies.

Ohio Banks Receive Gold.

Cleveland, O., March 9.—(AP)—A stream of golden dollars poured into the vaults of the Fourth Federal Reserve and other banks today as persons who had been hoarding the yellow metal suddenly became anxious to get rid of it.

Driven by fear of a penalty for hoarding, hoarders brought an estimated $200,000 to $300,000 in gold into Cleveland banks for conversion into currency yesterday. They came in increased numbers today, but there was no estimate on how much gold they brought from hiding.

Redeposit Half of Gold.

St. Louis, Mo., March 9.—(AP)—Records of the St. Louis Federal Reserve bank showed that of $1,350,000 in gold withdrawn last week more than half had been returned to the bank tonight. It was reported that receipts in gold totaled $636,000 for today.

$1,055,000 in Gold Returns.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 9.—(AP)—Gold—$727,000 worth of it—poured into the city's banks today following the request of the federal reserve board for names of hoarders.

George W. Norris, governor of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve bank, made public the amount tonight.

TRIBUNE TO PAY STAFF TODAY IN CASH AND CHECKS

In view of the indicated reopening of the country's banks within a few days at most, THE TRIBUNE last night laid aside its proposed plan to issue certificates of indebtedness for payment of its employés.

Instead the employés will be paid 50 per cent of their pay checks in cash and for the other 50 per cent will receive another check. The machinery for handling the payments in this form has been set up and will be ready to function this afternoon.

All pay roll checks issued last Saturday and thus far this week will share in the distribution of cash. So will those to be issued tomorrow and early next week, provided the banks have not at that time opened for business. In other words, TRIBUNE employés who have two pay days falling in the period of the bank holiday will receive the equivalent of one week's pay in cash and one week's pay in checks.

W. E. Macfarlane, business manager of THE TRIBUNE, said the checks issued for the 50 per cent not paid in cash would have to be returned to the paymaster after the banks reopen to be dated again, as bank regulations would prevent the cashing of checks dated during the moratorium.

Shoemaker Loses $4,100 in Cash to 2 Swindlers

Frank Bellio, a shoemaker at 226 West Oak street, last night told police he had been swindled of $4,100 in cash by two men who gained his confidence by asking him to care for $52,000, supposedly belonging to one of them. Before giving him the money, however, they required him to put up his $4,100 as "bond" and then disappeared.

$250,000 IN GOLD FOR MEXICO KEPT IN U. S. ON ROOSEVELT ORDER

Brownsville, Tex., March 9.—(AP)—Upon orders from the Chase National bank in New York City, a cargo of $250,000 in gold, consigned to Mexico City, was being returned today to the 11th district federal reserve bank in Dallas.

The New York bank started the shipment before President Roosevelt's order barring export of gold from the country became effective, but soon after the embargo was announced, the bank ordered the consignment returned.

The shipment was stopped here Tuesday and turned over to the American Railway Express for transportation to Dallas in the same manner it reached here.

Customs officers here had no report of the incident.

NEW YORK BANKS REGAIN $50,000 GOLD AN HOUR

Tide Changes After Recent Hoarding.

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—Gold flowed into the Federal Reserve bank here in a steady stream today as individual hoarders rushed to the bank to surrender their treasure.

The hoarders came singly, in pairs, in large groups. They came by foot, by private automobiles, and by taxicabs, and by noon the rush was on and the individually hoarded gold coin was pouring back into the bank at the rate of about $50,000 an hour.

So great and unexpected was the influx that the federal reserve was forced to open two receiving windows for the accommodation of individuals alone.

Some of the hoarders tried to slip into the bank without attracting much notice. With a sheepish grin on their faces they asked: "Where do we return the gold?" Officers escorted them to the proper windows.

Some Bring Single Pieces.

The amounts returned ranged from single $5 gold pieces to bags containing $5,000 in gold coin.

Federal reserve officials looked upon the steady return as a healthy sign, indicating that people rapidly are regaining confidence and losing their fear. In return for the gold received the hoarders were given federal reserve notes.

Renewed confidence, and also a fear of taxation or a possible penalty for hoarding, impelled many of the people to return their hidden treasure.

As the hoarders, laden with gold, thronged at the doors of the Federal Reserve the New York Stock exchange requested its members this afternoon for complete records of all gold payments made to customers between Jan. 1 and March 13.

Brokers' Records Asked.

"Members shall immediately prepare a record of all payments, withdrawals, and redeposits in gold made by them or through their firms between Jan. 1, 1933, and March 13, 1933," the stock exchange's statement read. "Said order shall show the amount involved, the names and addresses of the persons concerned, and how the delivery was effected."

In the three days ended yesterday, the federal reserve announced, a total of approximately $35,000,000 in gold certificates and coin was returned. Most of this sum was from member banks and represented the gold on deposit with them when their doors closed last Saturday. Under the ruling of the secretary of the treasury, published yesterday, this gold must be deposited with the federal reserve. The sum also includes some gold from hoarders.

The bank began to receive the hoarded gold late yesterday, but the volume from this source increased to amazing proportions today.

Return Toward Normal.

The major development in the general banking business today as it continued its return toward normal was the partial resumption of the deposit function. Banks continued to make limited disbursements of currency to meet the most pressing needs of their customers, and at the same time many large banks announced that they were ready to accept checks as well as cash on deposit for old and new accounts.

Most institutions attempted to conserve their cash on hand and this took the form of limiting individual cash withdrawals to allotments ranging from $10 to $40 per person. Almost all of them were much freer in releasing cash for food transactions.

The resumption of the deposit function was partial in the sense that checks were accepted "for collection" when clearing can be completed. The clearing house is ready to resume that important function as soon as Washington gives the word, and there was hope this afternoon that permission would be given for a clearing tomorrow.

Clearing House Rules.

The clearing house informed its twenty-two members today that:

"Members may receive checks, other items and cash to be held and credited to the customer's account when banks reopen for business, and customers may now list such checks, other items and cash and make up deposit slips accordingly."

New Issue of Currency Will Flow to Users Normally

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—The new money provided for in today's emergency bank legislation will flow out to its users normally, to be paid over the counter of such banks as are opened in exchange for checks just as all past currency has been paid out.

Behind that simple act, however, is the process by which the bills flow from the treasury's engraving plant to the banks of deposit.

The bills will be issued to the twelve federal reserve banks by the treasury in exchange for government bonds, notes, drafts, bills of exchange and bankers' acceptances.

Estimate Value of Notes.

The notes will be given the reserve banks to the full face value of the United States obligations turned in and to 90 per cent of the "estimated value" of the notes, drafts, etc.

The reserve member banks will put up similarly acceptable assets with the reserve bank of their district in exchange for the currency they need. In exceptional cases where the member banks have no such assets the reserve bank may make them advances on time or demand notes satisfactorily secured.

The amount of currency issued is normally regulated by the volume of bank withdrawals. As the demand for cash is now considerable and as gold certificates are not to be paid out for the present, the requirements for new money are calculated to be considerable.

May Pay Obligations in Cash.

Another method of putting money into circulation is for the government to pay its obligations in cash. Relatively small amounts ordinarily reach circulation in this way, however, and there has been no indication that this method would be adopted in the present situation.

The bill also will put the new money into circulation by order of the secretary of the treasury, by exchanging it for gold and gold certificates, either bank reserves or private hoards. The measure gives the treasury specific authority to call in such reserves or hoards whenever it decides the situation demands it. Penalty is provided for any one not complying.

U. S. MAY RELEASE CASH ON CHECKS GIVEN FOR TAXES

In reply to a telegram sent by County Treasurer McDonough on Monday, Secretary of the Treasury Woodin yesterday returned a message stating that serious consideration was being given to requests to release bank funds for the payment in full of checks tendered for taxes.

More than 500 taxpayers appeared at the county treasurer's office yesterday and collections totaled $546,335.

This sum included payments for the years 1928, 1929, 1930 as well as current tax bills. The treasurer announced that his office will be open today from 8:30 a. m. until 7:30 p. m.

Tirrell J. Ferrenz, engineer and architect, yesterday was appointed by Assessor J. L. Jacobs to head the new department created to investigate charges made by objectors who wish to present evidence to support protests against 1928, 1929 and 1930 assessed valuations before County Judge Jarecki.

"Whosoever would be first among you—let him be a servant"

A valiant man, a valiant leader has gone:

The career of Anton J. Cermak speaks a message of ambition and hope to every humble lad.

His love for Chicago, his unshakeable belief in Chicago, bid us believe in Chicago—as a City of matchless opportunity, a City of dynamic leadership.

His magnificent victory puts to scorn our fears—fears of anything less than the arch-fear which he met so nobly; fears for our own little affairs, when he rejoiced that "it was me, instead of you."

Valor is still value:

A man's first duty is to get rid of fear—to trample it underfoot.

Only thus can he be great. Only thus can he be in truest sense a servant.

Anton Cermak bids us "Carry on!"

ROOSEVELT ACTS TO CUT COST OF U. S. 700 MILLION

Asks Congress for More Power to Economize.

in the neighborhood of one-half billion dollars."

"Well, senator," Mr. Robinson was asked, "will he ask for authority to effect that saving himself?"

Seeks to Reduce Salaries.

"It is giving to the President certain powers with respect to it."

Speaker Rainey then came from the White House front door and, speaking more frankly, he explained that the President will submit two messages tomorrow, one asking for power to lower salaries not more than 15 per cent and the other to cut veterans' costs, and he put the savings in these two matters at "between 500 and 600 million dollars."

Senator Robinson said he would offer the necessary bills in the senate and Speaker Rainey said duplicate bills would be presented simultaneously in the house. It is not expected, however, that they will be passed with the speed accorded the banking bill. Undoubtedly the bills will go to committees, but the Democratic spokesmen at the White House conference expressed confidence that they will pass without unreasonable delay.

Locked In with His Aids.

During most of this afternoon Mr. Roosevelt locked himself in the executive office with Secretaries Harold L. Ickes, interior; William H. Dern, war, and Henry A. Wallace, agriculture, and Lewis Douglas, his budget director and the man to whom the President is looking for recommendations which will balance the budget.

Tonight, Mr. Roosevelt went over the details of his plan for the relief message with congressional leaders who have been known as experts on the problems of unemployment.

The members invited to the White House for this conference were Senators Robinson, Arkansas; Robert Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], Edward P. Costigan [Dem., Colo.], James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.], and Representatives Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], speaker; Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.], William P. Connery Jr. [Dem., Mass.], Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], John E. Rankin [Dem., Miss.], John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.], Sam Rayburn [Dem., Tex.], and James P. Buchanan [Dem., Tex.].

The President is said to be convinced that a large reduction of the compensation paid to war veterans, as well as a reduction of hospitalization and many other services now provided for them, must be made if the national budget ever is to be balanced.

Saving of 452 Millions.

Mr. Roosevelt is declared to be planning to accept the view of Budget Director Douglas for eliminating all expenditures from the veterans' funds which do not represent payments for disabilities actually received during war service. Mr. Douglas, as the young Arizona member of the house, sought energetically during his service there, despite his own position as a world war veteran, to eliminate these costs from the appropriation.

A saving of 452 millions annually is possible, it has been shown, if the government halts the payment of compensation to thousands of men whose disabilities have been incurred since the war and have no relation to war service.

Congress, fearing the political consequences of cutting veterans' payments, declined to make the cuts, and at the last session passed a bill providing nearly one billion dollars for veterans. The bill was not enacted because of a pocket veto by President Hoover.

The President's aim, it is declared, is to convince the nation of his determination to economize, and to balance the budget actually instead of "theoretically," on the assumption that public confidence will rise strongly when this assurance of economy is added to a general house cleaning and stabilization of the banking situation.

Mr. Roosevelt is said to believe business then will commence a steady improvement, and to gain this aim he is ready, his advisers say, to risk the ire of the veterans' lobbyists. Several of the President's advisers in touch with veterans' organizations have advised him that the rank and file of ex-service men is ready and eager to accept the cut of almost 50 per cent in the interests of a general economic recovery.

Bid for Dictatorial Power.

In his bid for dictatorial powers to slash the general expenses of government, Mr. Roosevelt has material ready at his hand, collected by Budget Director Douglas, to effect economies aggregating 200 million dollars. As Mr. Douglas' surveys continue, Mr. Roosevelt will be in a position, providing congress gives him the freedom he desires, to increase these economies.

Among the reorganizations planned by the President is one to consolidate all the transportation agencies of the government, including the interstate commerce commission, the United States shipping board, the aviation activities of the commerce department, and a new organization to supervise motor truck transportation. Reports today were that he had selected Josephus Daniels, under whom he served as assistant secretary of the navy, to take an appointment as head of the shipping board, and later to supervise the work of consolidating all the bureaus.

The bill passed by the last congress, giving the President authority to consolidate commissions, boards, or bureaus, is not broad enough to meet President Roosevelt's aims, it is said, necessitating the passage of new legislation.

The bill introduced in the senate today by Senator Norris revives his old plan, twice passed and vetoed by President Hoover, for government operation of Muscle Shoals.

Return Suicide Verdict in Death of Financier

ALTRINGHAM, Cheshire, England, March 9.—(AP)—A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "suicide while suffering from impulsive insanity" at an inquest today in the death of Sir William Veno, prominent financier. Sir William, who was 66, was found shot to death last Tuesday.

UPHOLD ROOSEVELT, ADVICE OF HOOVER OF BANKING PLAN

New York, March 9.—(AP)—In a 14 word statement, Herbert Hoover today called again for support of President Roosevelt's efforts to straighten out the banking situation.

In response to requests for comment on the message sent to congress by the man who succeeded him in the White House, the former President said:

"There is just one thing to do; that is to support the President's proposal."

He received a delegation from the Philadelphia Associated Friends society headed by C. E. Picketts, and talked to a few personal friends. Dinner was served in the hotel suite and there was nothing on the evening's program but more rest.

CALL EXTENSION OF MORATORIUM A WISE ACTION

Bankers Confer Here Until Late Hour.

and Savings bank, and Stanley Field, chairman of the Continental Illinois bank.

The extension of the national holiday ordered by the treasury was regarded as a wise move by clearing house bankers. One official pointed out that the extra time makes it possible to take steps toward safeguarding adequately the state banks which are not members of the federal reserve system.

He also asserted that bankers here regarded the extension as necessary to give the banks time to study the new federal banking legislation and to decide how to act in accordance with it.

Shortly after midnight a clearing house official, commenting on Secretary Woodin's announcement that it would be the policy of the treasury to open sound banks of the country as rapidly as possible, made this comment:

"We are now beginning to understand more clearly why the President tonight extended the national holiday More time is needed to set up better protection for the twelve thousand banks in the country that are not members of the federal reserve system.

"For example, the president of one nonmember bank that could pay off a hundred cents on the dollar tomorrow if necessary, came in tonight and asked: 'Where does my bank get off? Is it to be automatically labeled a Class C institution?'"

Less Than 20 Reserve Banks.

Of the 59 banks doing business in Chicago fewer than 20 are members of the federal reserve system.

During the last two days all national banks and also all state banks belonging to the federal reserve system have been investigated and classified, a clearing house officer said last night. This maks it possible to determine almost at a moment's notice which institutions shall be considered as class A banks and permitted to reopen with no restrictions as to the withdrawal of deposits. All the big loop banks are class A banks.

Bankers identify class A banks as institutions which are more than 75 per cent liquid; class B banks are from 50 to 75 per cent liqvid, and class C banks are less than 50 per cent liquid.

State banks belonging to the reserve system will receive the full benefits of the new legislation at Washington. Nonmember state banks are expected to coöperate through their state banking commissioners.

Perform Limited Functions.

Chicago banks yesterday were still performing only the limited functions of supplying credit for the movement of perishable food and hospital supplies and cashing checks for relief purposes. Large loop banks were serving as currency exchanges for their correspondent banks, and outlying institutions were reported to be making change for the public. The Federal Reserve bank's temporary currency exchange annex at 126 South La Salle street was serving the needs of the loop district.

Downtown banks had full staffs of employés on the job all day and far into the night to be ready in case the order came from Washington to get ready to reopen. Many employés passed the hours playing cards, checkers, and chess. In one bank a ping-pong game was in progress over four unused desks.

Officers who attended the evening session at the clearing house included those present at the noon session and also the following:

James R. Leavell, president, Continental Illinois bank; Gen. Charles G. Dawes, chairman, and Philip R. Clarke, president, City National Bank & Trust company; Edward E. Brown, executive vice president, First National Bank of Chicago; James Simpson, director, Eugene M. Stevens, chairman, and Charles R. McKay, deputy governor, Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago; Carl Birdsall, vice president, Continental Illinois bank, and Howard Sims, manager, Chicago clearing house.

Doubts Scrip Will Be Used.

After the clearing house meeting broke up Chairman Traylor said that it was unlikely that any scrip would be issued here.

"I don't want to say that no scrip will be issued," he added, "but it will be a last resort if we do issue it. Whatever the Chicago banks do will be done with the agreement of all the banks. We don't want to open on a partial basis until the situation has cleared. The experience of New York with limited operation has been influential in our decision to act in unison here."

Religious Teacher Placed on Probation for a Year

Miss Marion O. Hawthorne, 36 years old, a former teacher of religious education at Northwestern university, was placed on probation for a year by Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Woman's court yesterday on a charge of passing bad checks. Miss Hawthorne told the court that her mother, Mrs. V. R. Hawthorne, 7844 South Morgan street, is making good the checks.

HIGHER INCOME TAXES SHOCK TO SMALL PAYERS

9,000 Are Given Aid by Tribune Office.

With the deadline for filing income tax returns under the 1932 federal revenue act only five days off, officials are finding that the taxpayers in the lower income classes, especially those who are required to pay this year for the first time, are complaining the loudest against the increased tax rates.

The complaints of the small salaried men and women take up most of the time of deputy collectors who assist the taxpayers in making out their returns, according to A. A. Schultz, who is stationed in THE TRIBUNE's Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street. Two deputy collectors and two revenue agents in THE TRIBUNE's tax service department have assisted more than 9,000 persons to date.

Increases Shock to Many.

"All taxpayers have a vague impression that the rates have been increased," said Deputy Shultz, "but they are shocked when they learn that their tax this year will be multiplied about four times, even though they have had salary cuts. They are certain there has been some mistake, and insist on going over the returns two or three times."

Three changes in the revenue act served to boost the payments of the little man about 300 per cent. First, his personal exemption was reduced [from $3,500 to $2,500 for a married man and from $1,500 to $1,000 for a single man]. Second, the rate on the first $4,000 of net income was increased from 1½ to 4 per cent. Third, the credit for earned income, formerly 25 per cent of the tax, has been abolished.

Claim All Deductions.

For these reasons, said Mr. Shultz, every taxpayer is exhausting every possibility of getting deductions allowed, counting even the pennies.

"They insist upon their deductions for state taxes paid on gasoline and federal taxes on electricity, even though they claim only two or three dollars, on which the tax would be only 8 or 12 cents," he said.

At the Federal building, where there has been a slump in mail returns since the bank moratorium, attaches said the new law is bearing most heavily upon the small wage earners. A stenographer earning $1,200 a year may owe $8, but a man with a $50,000 income may sell enough stocks and bonds which he has held more than two years and owe nothing. The loss in capital assets will offset the income.

On March 3, the date of the bank holiday, returns were running 1,000 ahead of last year, but they have dropped off 4,000 since then. Midnight next Wednesday is the deadline for filing schedules and making the first quarterly payment.

U. S. Press Backs Roosevelt Action in Banking Situation

Newspapers throughout the United States accepted the action of President Roosevelt in the banking situation as giving promise of new hope. Some of the comments follow:

ATLANTA CONSTITUTION [Dem.]—The message, like the inaugural address, is a bold and straight from the shoulder statement of the President's determination to leave nothing undone to start the country again on the road to prosperity. The message is further assurance that the "new deal" is on the way.

BOSTON HERALD [Rep.]—Ours is the only country which has failed to devise a sound banking system. If the President and congress can make it so firm that confidence in it will be restored the details of the means by which the cure is effected will be of minor consequence.

CHARLESTON, S. C., NEWS AND COURIER [Dem.]—The country must have banking and it must be sound. The President is right in his implication that it were better to have no banks at all unless they be sound. He will protect depositors.

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER [Ind. Dem.]—Mr. Roosevelt leads as he was elected to lead. Congress responds. The country responds. The nation and the world applaud. Congress acts, forgetting politics and parties. In like spirit the remedies it offers should be accepted by those for whom they are devised. A new day dawns. A competent leader directs the national destiny.

DALLAS NEWS [Ind. Dem.]—The congress naturally would hesitate long, under usual circumstances, to grant such extraordinary power, powers that practically make the President, for the time at least, a dictator after Mussolini's own heart. But in times of necessity congress and the executive can become one in purpose for the sake of national interests, so that the President's request will surely be granted and speedy action will follow.

DES MOINES REGISTER [Ind. Rep.]—The one thing demanding emphasis above everything else is the necessity and perhaps the difficulty of making our modest inflation behave. If we once start printing money to pay our government debts every student knows what that holds out.

ST. PAUL PIONEER PRESS [Ind. Rep.]—It is not inconceivable that out of this crisis more progress may come in the improvement of the banking system and the stabilization of money, and hence of prices, than could have been achieved by a decade of reforming under less urgent conditions.

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE [REP.]—The new currency is not fiat money; it is adequately secured by existing instruments. It is not, like the new money resulting from government deficits, in itself inflation. It simply replaces the money immobilized in hoarding, and as fast as that money is returned to normal circulation through the banks the new currency will be retired. With the new legislation the situation is brought into hand. The weak spots may be cut out of the banking system without risk of the whole thing bleeding to death.

NEW YORK TIMES—[IND. DEM.]—The emergency currency is to be redeemable, not in gold but in "lawful money." It is not to be permanent; except for that part of it secured by United States bonds, no more is to be put out "after the President has declared by proclamation" that the existing emergency "has terminated." This stipulation, and the fact that the federal reserve will have the responsibility for issuing and controlling its circulation, will bring relief to many minds in which the recent loose suggestions for an "issue of scrip" had created misgiving.

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER [Rep.]—It is the intention of the President and the treasury department to keep a firm hand upon currency expansion and see to it that it rests upon a secure foundation. We are not going off the gold standard. But we are conserving our gold holdings. The situation has been taken hold of courageously and, let us hope, effectively.

PORTLAND (ORE.) OREGONIAN [Rep.]—The President's plan for controlled inflation of the currency will be accepted with equanimity if not with hope. It should provide an impetus toward permanent recovery from the present stagnation.

HARTFORD COURANT [Rep.]—By asking for authority to reopen only such banks as have already been ascertained to be in sound condition, while postponing the opening of the others pending their reorganization, Mr. Roosevelt is wisely discriminatory.

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE [Rep.]—This new currency does not answer to the definitions of inflation. Inflation results when the obligations of the government to pay are increased. When there is no increase in the obligations to pay there is no inflation. If this currency results in raising prices out of their present abnormally low stage that will be most welcome. A price increase is the prime factor to lift us out of depression. But we shall not call that a result of inflation. It will be a correction of the severe overdeflation that afflicts us now.

Objection Fails; Oak Park Votes on New Court Apr. 4

An objection filed with the village electoring board of Oak Park against the submission on April 4 of a proposition to abandon the establishment of an Oak Park municipal court, was overruled by the board last night. As the result voters will decide the question and at the same time will vote on candidates for offices in the new court. In the meantime the State Supreme court is expected to decide whether creation of the court will be legal. The objection, which was filed by Frank J. Walsh, 1003 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, charged that the petition for the establishment of the court was illegal.

WIDE INSURANCE POWERS SOUGHT FOR GOV. HORNER

Proposed Legislation Will Protect Policy Holders.

Legislation will be asked at Springfield next week to give Gov. Horner broad powers in dealing with insurance companies operating in Illinois Word that the bill is being drawn was conveyed in a statement yesterday by Ernest Palmer, superintendent of insurance. The statement follows:

"Every one knows that an emergency exists in the state of Illinois and the nation with respect to financial and investment institutions and in the financial condition of almost every citizen, and that this emergency affects, among other businesses, that of insurance. Insurance touches intimately the average citizen of the country.

For Protection of Public.

"Therefore, at the suggestion of Gov. Horner, a bill is being prepared for introduction upon the convening of the Illinois legislature next Tuesday to deal with this emergency as it affects the operation of insurance companies doing business in Illinois. Legislation is deemed necessary for the protection of the public as a whole, to maintain the stability of insurance generally, to prevent undue preference among policy holders, and to conserve income and assets for the benefit of policy holders, beneficiaries, and creditors.

"The general welfare, comfort, and public safety of our citizens are involved, and the invocation of the full power of the state is warranted.

"The legislation also purposes the safeguarding during the period of emergency not only the welfare of the public, especially policy holders and their beneficiaries, but also in proper cases debtors under farm and home mortgages held by insurance companies. The bill provides that the governor shall have authority to stay foreclosure proceedings and grant extension of time for the payment of mortgage indebtedness on farms and homes where such mortgages are held or owned by insurance companies.

May Order Rules Made.

"The bill, if enacted into law, will give the governor power to direct the superintendent of insurance to adopt and promulgate from time to time such rules and regulations as may be deemed necessary, and to suspend when necessary during the emergency some of the provisions of the present insurance laws which conflict with present necessity.

"Obviously, it is to the interest of every policy holder that the integrity of their insurance be maintained and that its value to themselves and to their families be not impaired by reason of action based on fear which would cause the surrender of many policies or the loss of benefits thereunder.

"President Roosevelt has said in his inaugural address the only thing the American people have to fear is fear itself. There is no need to lose faith in the institution of insurance. With reference to life insurance the fundamental and vital function of that business is to pay death claims, matured policies, and annuity benefits, and all other functions are incidental thereto. Consequently, every proper safeguard that is offered other financial institutions should also be thrown around insurance.

"It is common knowledge that much of the legal reserves of insurance companies generally are invested in mortgages upon farms and homesteads. Excessive withdrawals by policy holders will injure not only themselves as policy holders but their families and puts insurance companies to the necessity of taking more drastic action in the liquidation of policy holders' reserves invested in mortgages on farms and homes. Quite obviously, therefore, ill advised withdrawals by policy holders will react materially against the best interests of those of our citizens who own mortgaged farms and homes.

Majority of Companies Sound.

"The vast majority of insurance organizations, in my opinion, are sound and deserve to continue, but nothing in this act will affect the authority of the superintendent of insurance to deal with impaired insurance companies under the provisions of existing law. The present efforts will be continued to find out definitely under the law the standing and qualifications of the various companies operating in this state, and every effort will continue to be made to see that the citizens of Illinois may have the opportunity to purchase sound insurance and sound insurance only.

"The insurance superintendent is, of course, not yet ready to announce any proposed regulations which may be promulgated following the passage of this emergency legislation."

BRITISH BANKERS LOOK FAVORABLY UPON U. S. FINANCIAL SOLUTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 9.—The general tenor of the British reaction to President Roosevelt's message to congress today is that it is a bold bid and that sound beginnings are being made toward solving the bank crisis.

First impressions among London bankers were favorable. Recent confident expectations in President Roosevelt's policy are being confirmed by what financial circles regard as his latest "courageous move."

The comment recognizes the fact that the President is observing prudence along with rapid action, and this, it is believed here, will make for an early restoration of general confidence, both in New York and London and in continental centers.

PUSH SCRIP PLAN IN WISCONSIN AS STATE BANK AID

Two Measures Passed by Legislature.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., March 9.—[Special.]—The state government tonight was prepared, except for minor details, to print and issue state scrip for distribution through all banks not affiliated with the federal reserve system provided the national government restricts its activity to the opening of national banks.

Both houses of the legislature passed a bill setting up machinery for issuance of scrip, and plans of the banking commissioner and the state banking board of review for distribution of the paper to be used as currency were approved almost unanimously by nearly 100 officials of state banks called into conference at the capitol.

Awaits Governor's O. K.

The bill now requires only the signature of the governor to become a law, although it would permit at least six private and public agencies to publish scrip subject to approval of the banking board. Leo T. Crowley, president of the board, made it clear the state government would be the only institution to be granted the authority.

Crowley told bankers there is little hope that any state banks can be opened for restricted release of deposits this week, although it is probable that federal orders will be sufficiently clarified by Monday to give state officials a chance to make definite plans on scrip issuance and open state banks on that day.

While bankers were in session a variety of reports on federal action poured in over telegraph wires. Each message was read by Crowley or Arthur C. Kingston, state banking commissioner, and bankers engaged in a discussion to determine exactly how it should be construed.

Two Kinds of Scrip.

As the plan was outlined by Crowley, there would be only two kinds of scrip in Wisconsin. One kind would be issued by the state and would have all state bank assets not previously pledged as security and the other would be that issued by the Milwaukee Clearing House association.

On the day to be designated for opening of all state banks each bank will have been issued enough scrip to equal 5 or 10 per cent of its deposits and would not be allowed to release deposits in excess of the specified percentage. The scrip would not be secured by pledges of specific bank assets, but by all assets.

HITLER SEIZES CONTROL OF ALL GERMAN STATES

Bavaria Last to Fall Under Nazi Rule.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 9.—What Bismarck avoided and what the republic failed to accomplish Chancellor Adolf Hitler's government completed today—unification of the administration of the German reich by eliminating many of the age old prerogatives of its seventeen states and which the republican revolution dared not touch.

Hitler's aid, Gen. Franz von Epp, flew to Munich, the Bavarian capital, by plane and ordered Premier Heinrich Held to surrender his power. Thus the government of Germany's second largest state and the last anti-Nazi stronghold fell into Hitler's hands.

Troopers Surround Buildings.

Nazi storm troopers surrounded the Bavarian diet and government buildings in Munich this afternoon and at 9 o'clock tonight occupied them, besides taking over the state police. Premier Held's cabinet agreed to withdraw to avoid "useless disturbances."

Assumption of power in Bavaria began with an ultimatum by Ernst Roehm, chief of the storm troops, ordering Held to resign by 5 p. m. The premier appealed to President Paul von Hindenburg by telephone, but it was in vain.

Previously the state government had threatened to resist forcibly any attempts at usurpation of police powers. This was why Gen. Von Epp came by plane, for he hoped to guard against possible arrest at the Bavarian frontier.

Threaten to Seize Building.

Early this afternoon storm troopers threatened to take the diet building by storm, but a Nazi leader called from a window, advising them to remain quiet and await orders. He hung out a Nazi swastika emblem to soothe them as they clamored for permission to hoist the Nazi flag on all public buildings.

Before capitulating Premier Held summoned the diet to meet on Saturday to elect a new state government. He said that the government will be reorganized according to the vote of the people in last Sunday's reichstag elections.

Earlier Dr. Wilhelm Frick, reich minister of interior, had appointed federal police commissioners, all National Socialist followers, for Wurttemberg, Saxony, Baden, and Schaumburg-Lippe.

The anti-Semitic campaign appeared to be growing today, spreading to Berlin, Kassel, and other cities. Men wearing storm troop uniforms continued to organize private "punitive expeditions" and American citizens again were among the victims.

George S. Messersmith, American consul general, today visited Admiral Marcus von Levetzow, Berlin's chief of police, and presented sworn affidavits that six Americans have been mistreated in Berlin.

Nazis Invade Residence.

According to one affidavit, Max Schussler and his wife, formerly of New York City, were victims of a terrorist attack by Nazis. Schussler is a property owner here. One of his tenants is a saloon keeper, who boasted he would pay no more rent to "American Jews" when Hitler attained power. When Hitler became chancellor the saloon keeper stopped payments.

Schussler began eviction proceedings. The tenant ordered Schussler to end the eviction suit on Monday. Schussler refused. At 2 a. m. four men, two of whom in Nazi uniforms, broke into the Schussslers' bedroom. They pointed a pistol at Schussler and commanded him and his wife to arise.

Schussler asked them to leave the room while his wife dressed. They refused. Then they demanded he sign an order stopping the eviction. Terrified, Schussler's wife urged him to comply.

Messersmith also presented affidavits that Leon Jaffe of New York City and Solomon Friedman were victims of attacks by storm troopers. Three other attacks on Americans, two of them Jews, were reported on Tuesday.

Nazis Picket Chain Stores.

Woolworth five and ten cent stores in Berlin today felt the sting of the anti-foreign campaign by storm troopers, or as the authorities term them, "agents provocateurs" in Nazi uniforms. They picketed the stores and terrorized possible customers. Other chain stores closed their doors.

Nazis also gathered in front of Kardstadt's, Berlin's largest department store and chanted in unison, "Don't buy from Jews!"

The Nazi campaign against communists and Socialists also was continued. At Cologne Wilhelm Sollmann, a Socialist deputy, was seized in his home and beaten. The publisher of the Rheinische Zeitung was also attacked. Both men and others, who were threatened by Nazi troopers, were taken into "protective custody" by police.

A newspaper publisher was shot down in Chemnitz because he refused to allow storm troopers to search his office without a warrant. Berlin's labor union headquarters, which were raided by Nazis yesterday, are in ruins.

Count Helldorff, leader of the Berlin storm troops, today announced that three communists will be killed for every storm trooper slain.

Armed Hitlerites on Rhine.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 9.—What is believed here to have been a violation of the treaty of Versailles occurred today when 400 uniformed Hitlerite troops, partly armed with rifles, occupied the former infantry barracks at Kehl, accross the Rhine from Strasbourg. Sentinels armed with rifles were stationed outside the barracks gates while provisions were brought in. Service motorcyclists were established to carry dispatches to other centers which had been similarly seized.

According to the treaty of Versailles, the thirty mile zone on the left bank of the Rhine was demilitarized and the action of the Hitler forces is construed as an infringement of the treaty. The Nazi demonstration was directed against the mayor of the town, who is known to be Republican in sympathy.

THREE MEASURES TO LEGALIZE BEER BEFORE HOUSE

Report Roosevelt Will Urge Quick Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Bolstered by an administration majority pledged to modification, the fight to legalize beer was on again with a vengeance in the 73d congress today.

It started from scratch in the house, where Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.] introduced three distinct beer bills shortly after the session convened.

Report Roosevelt to Act.

Because the senate adjourned on March 4 without having acted on the Collier bill, which passed the house a the short session of the last congress, beer legislation in the new congress must originate all over again in the lower body.

Introduction of the three bills came on the heels of reports that President Roosevelt is shortly to ask congress for the enactment of beer legislation to redeem his campaign pledge for "immediate modification." It was also said that the President intends shortly to address a plea to governors throughout the country urging that they expedite the ratification of the repeal amendment submitted to the states by the 72d congress.

Based on Former Bills.

One of the bill introduced by Mr. O'Connor today is drafted along the lines of the original O'Connor-Hull bill which was defeated at the first session of the last congress. The second is similar to the Collier bill which passed the house last session and died in the senate, while the third follows the provisions of the Collier-Blaine bill which was pending in the senate when adjournment was taken March 4.

The New Yorker said he submitted all three measures in order that the ways and means committee, to which they must be referred, may decide which of the three plans is most desirable and most likely of passage.

N. O. R. P. E. ASKS FOR CONFERENCE WITH ROOSEVELT

A proposal was sent to President Roosevelt last night by the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures that he hold a conference early in May at Washington with leaders from all parts of the country in the campaign to reduce the cost of government and to lighten the tax burden.

A letter sent by George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and general chairman of the N. O. R. P. E., to the President stated:

"Prior to the general election on Nov. 8, we secured the pledge of the majority of the members of the senate and house of representatives to a drastic curtailment of federal expenditures. A similar pledge was secured from the members of the new congress, to wit: That they would advocate and work for a reduction of at least $750,000,000 in the annual ordinary running expenses of the federal government.

"In this movement we have enlisted the coöperation of more than one thousand existing organizations, embracing agriculture, manufacturing, commercial, industrial, financial and civic.

"During the first half of May, I will be in Washington with various leaders in this movement and would appreciate the opportunity of conferring with you at that time and informing you in detail of the aims and objects of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures—local, state and federal."

Dock First Water Freight from St. Louis Tomorrow

The first freight to arrive in Chicago from St. Louis over the recently completed Illinois waterway will dock at the warehouse of the North Pier Terminal company, 549 East Illinois street, tomorrow morning between 10 and 10:30 o'clock, it was announced yesterday when plans were changed for the arrival of the freight due to delays in transit. The freight is being drawn by the towboat Turnbull in three barges.

Money Is Traced

Aberdeen, S. D., March 9.—(AP)—The Daily News said today it had learned a roll of bills taken from Frank Sankey of Clark, S. D., brother of the hunted Verne Sankey, was part of the $60,000 paid for the release of Charles Boettcher II., kidnaped Denver broker.

The News quoted Detective Captain W. J. Armstrong of Denver as saying that Frank Sankey, whom he questioned at Clark, S. D., last night, admitted the money was part of the ransom paid March 1 to gain freedom for Boettcher, who had been held almost 17 days.

Frank Sankey was not held.

Investigators said they had determined that Verne, sought as leader of the kidnapers, and Gordon Elkhorn, believed to be fleeing with him, bought railway tickets in Minneapolis last night for an unannounced destination and telephoned some point regarding bus connections.

Elkhorn is also wanted for the kidnaping.

At Minneapolis police said a hotel clerk had identified two pictures sent by Denver police hunting the Boettcher kidnapers as those of guests who were at the hostelry a few days ago.

GOVERNOR SIGNS INDIANA REPEAL CONVENTION BILL

Voters to Pass on 18th Amendment.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 9.—[Special.]—Gov. Paul V. McNutt today signed the bill providing for a special election and convention to pass on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The date of the special election has not been definitely decided upon. A bill repealing the state prohibition act was signed by the governor some time ago.

Missouri Beer Up to Governor.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 9.—(AP)—Missouri today completed legislative action to legalize 3.2 per cent beer. By a vote of 110 to 11 the house concurred in a senate amendment attaching an emergency clause to the measure. It now goes to Gov. Guy B. Park.

Utah Votes Repeal Convention.

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 9.—(AP)—The Utah senate today completed legislative action on a bill providing for a state convention to pass upon repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution. The bill empowers the governor to call an election for naming 21 delegates at large not later than the next general election. Three tickets, of candidates pledged for repeal, against repeal, and unpledged, are to be nominated by petition.

West Virginia Dry Test.

Charleston, W. Va., March 9.—(AP)—Repeal of the state prohibition amendment was submitted by the legislature to the people today for a vote at the 1934 general election. Final legislative action was taken in the house of delegates in adopting by a vote of 76 to 9 a resolution passing the prohibition question to the voters with provision for control of liquor manufacture and sale in event of repeal of the nineteen year old "bone dry" amendment, effective since 1914. The senate approved the resolution Monday by a vote of 26 to 3.

ASSAILS LOBBY GROUPS AS FOES OF U. S. ECONOMY

Minority "pressure groups," such as the veterans' lobby, already have succeeded in hampering the power given President Roosevelt by congress to cut expenditures in the present national emergency, Thomas S. Hammond, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, told members of the Purchasing Agents' association last night at the Great Northern hotel.

Although the lame duck congress on Feb. 6 "gave the incoming President increased power to consolidate bureaus and reduce expenditures, a movement to give him even more dictatorial powers in this direction was defeated "largely through the influence of world war veterans," Mr. Hammond said. He is himself a member of the American Legion and a brigadier general in the Illinois National Guard.

FRANCE CHARGES BERLIN IS ARMING; EMBARGO HINTED

U. S. Stiffens Its Stand at Disarm Parley.

PARIS, March 9.—(AP)—French fears that Germany is rearming and the British desire to reach some concrete achievement at the disarmament conference at Geneva, were discussed for an hour tonight at a conference at the British embassy attended by Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour of France and Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon of Great Britain. The discussions will be resumed in the morning.

The British ministers arrived this evening. They are on their way to Geneva, where they hope to save the disarmament conference from failure.

French experts charge that vast quantities of raw materials adapted to the manufacture of munitions have been pouring into Germany, even from France. Leaders of the government fear that Germany soon will declare openly its intention to rearm.

Plan Financial Embargo.

Consequently, they are preparing a project of nonassistance involving an economic and financial embargo against any European aggressor. This is likely to be the center of tomorrow's conference.

England's adherence to the embargo idea, and at least tacit acceptance by the United States are regarded as essential to its success. It is not thought likely that the project will be completely worked out until Norman Davis, American disarmament representative, returns from Washington.

The French government is said to be willing to reduce its stock of war materials, in which it holds supremacy, but must have some counterpart, such an embargo, to present to parliament.

U. S. Stiffens Stand.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, March 9.—The disarmament conference took up the vital question of war material today and recorded immediately a change in the American attitude and an intensification in the European deadlock.

Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, delegate for the United States, who a year ago started the conference toward qualitative disarmament as the "key" to its problem, informed the delegates tonight in a brief speech that "qualitative disarmament can serve a useful purpose only if admitted as a supplement to adequate quantitative disarmament." He said that acceptance by the United States of any proposal to abolish certain weapons would depend on what quantitative limitation was achieved. He promised to explain this in detail when the discussion reached tanks and big guns.

Since some of the main proposals for the abolition of aggressive weapons came from Gibson last year, his remark today caused some wonder. The Europeans tended to ascribe this "change in American emphasis" to Japan's warning that she would have to reconsider her position in the light of the changed far eastern situation.

Britain Boosts Navy Estimate.

LONDON, March 9.—(AP)—British navy estimates for 1933, announced today, provide for a total outlay of £53,570,000 [$267,850,000 at par], an increase of £3,093,700 [$15,468,500 at par] over last year. Of this increase £2,355,360 [$11,776,800 at par] is required to make normal progress with new construction.

The new construction program for 1933 provides for four cruisers, probably one Leander type and three Arethusas, one leader and eight other destroyers, three submarines, three sloops, one convoy sloop, one coastal sloop, and small craft.

The cruisers constitute the fourth and final installment of the replacement program due for completion in 1936 under terms of the London naval treaty. The number of destroyers and submarines are the same as in previous building programs since the treaty became effective.

HERRIOT URGES FRANCE TO PAY U. S. WAR DEBT

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 9.—Asked by a French journalist if France could not do something to show friendship for America in its hour of crisis, former Premier Herriot today said:

"There is one gesture we can make—pay the $19,261,432 war debt installment due America last December. In that way France could show it did not refuse, but only deferred the payment and at the same time prove its desire to help Americans triumph over their difficulties. We must show our confidence in the United States, and, for my part, I never felt warmer friendship than in the hour when the American people are suffering."

Paul Reynaud, former finance minister, who belongs to the opposite group in the French parliament, said France's opportunity to demonstrate its friendship to America would come during the world economic conference.

"Action at that conference should prove the friendship uniting France, Great Britain, and the United States," he said.

Troops Guard Vienna

Map shows Vienna, capital of Austria, where Chancellor Dollfuss yesterday called out troops to enforce his dictatorship. The chancellor mobilized army units while the diet, which he had dissolved, struggled for its existence, and after Socialists had called 73 meetings in defiance of an edict prohibiting political gatherings.

DICTATOR CALLS ARMY; SOLDIERS GUARD VIENNA

Socialists Defiant; Diet Is Dead.

VIENNA, March 9.—(AP)—Steel helmeted army units aggregating two regiments were moved into Vienna tonight as Austria's new dictatorship armed itself to cope with the opposition, which centered in a special session of the diet.

A battalion of infantry was brought in from Krems, the Sixth regiment of Fusiliers came from Korneuburg, and the First and Third Fusilier battalions from Stockerau and Neusiedl. Some detachments in motor trucks were moved toward the parliament buildings where the diet was arguing for its life.

Parliament was shelved yesterday when Chancellor Dollfuss assumed dictatorial powers, but Karl Renner, its president, called a special session "to defend the constitution."

Moves Troops into City.

The dictator-chancellor confiscated all copies of two Socialist party newspapers which carried Renner's statement, and even as the diet assembled the chancellor mobilized the army and moved troops into town.

At the same time he forbade 73 meetings of the Socialist party called in defiance of a decree issued yesterday outlawing all political gatherings. The entire police force, including the clerical staff, also was ordered to stand by to guard against the "danger to public order" threatened by the projected Socialist meetings.

The diet hall was crowded as Carl Seitz, the white-bearded burgomaster who told Dollfuss yesterday that his dictatorship was unconstitutional, shouted: "This is no city of slaves! We warn the government of the consequences of this dictatorship."

The National Socialists, who have declared that they regard this dictatorship as a step closer to union with Germany, listened with sardonic courtesy while the Christian Socialists heckled the speaker.

Alfred Frauenfeld, the Nazi leader later ridiculed the Dollfuss dictatorship as an abortion.

"What is happening now," he said, "is an Austrian version of the Kurt von Schleicher cabinet at Berlin. The ultimate outcome you may guess."

Set Up Machine Guns.

Except for the passage of an occasional truck load of soldiers and the presence of military guards at various public buildings, the streets were comparatively quiet.

Around the Rossauer barracks soldiers placed powerful searchlights and set up machine guns. In the barracks courtyard was assembled a fleet of heavy armored trucks with machine guns in the turrets. A signal light flashed from the barracks tower.

Despite these military preparations, Sepp Straffner, who resigned as second vice president of the parliament last week, sent out a call to all deputies for an assembly on March 15. The government contends that Straffner no longer holds office and therefore cannot call parliament into session.

TROOPS ASKED TO KEEP LEGISLATORS OF N. Y. ON JOB

Albany, N. Y., March 9.—(AP)—The aid of state troopers was invoked from the senate floor today to keep members of the upper house at the capitol for the next two days, ready to act on any emergency banking bills that may turn up.

Senator John J. Dunnigan, a majority leader of the upper house, directed that the sergeant at arms order the troopers to pick up any state senators they may find driving to their homes for the week-end and to bring them back to Albany.

The action was taken when several senators did not answer the roll call.

The senate went into session at 3:30 o'clock tonight, but adjourned at 3:45 after hearing from Gov. Lehman that its service would not be required tonight.

The order "Don't go home" continued in effect, however, and the body will reconvene in the morning. It was not disclosed whether state police succeeded in locating any of the homeward bound senators.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengue (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengue by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic balms, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay, made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

WOULD DIVORCE JIMMY WALKER FOR DESERTION

Wife Files Bill in Florida Court.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—"Jimmy" Walker, ex-mayor of New York now on the Riviera, was sued for divorce by his wife, Mrs. Janet Allen Walker, at Miami, Fla., today.

They have been living apart for several years—since October, 1928, according to Mrs. Walker's petition.

Walker, who resigned under fire of the Seabury graft investigating committee, sailed for Europe with Miss Betty Compton, movie actress, as a fellow voyager and occasional cables since then have told of their appearance in each other's company on the golf links around Cannes, France, and at other places of amusement.

She Charges Desertion.

Mrs. Walker's bill charges desertion, but she names no co-defendant and makes no request for alimony or other financial settlement. Her petition avers that the former "playboy" mayor left their New York home on Oct. 15, 1928, and removed to a hotel and that he has "willfully and obstinately" refused since then to resume marital relations.

"The desertion on the part of the defendant has been willful and obstinate and continuous for more than a year," the petition recites.

"The petitioner," her petition adds, "has at all times been willing to continue the marital relation."

Accompanied Him to Albany.

When Walker, then mayor, went to Albany to answer the Seabury charges at a hearing before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Walker appeared at the railroad station. She made the trip to the state capital with him—only to return alone a few days later.

Shortly before that "Jimmy" called on her when she was convalescing from an operation at Polyclinic hospital here.

Only last November when she entrained for Florida for the winter she assured newspapers that whatever might be their conclusions from the absence of her husband in Europe, that "there never has been any possibility of divorce in the Walker family and there never will be."

Ever since Walker became mayor it was recalled the Walkers have often taken their vacations at different places, Walker going sometimes to Bermuda, Havana, or California, and Mrs. Walker usually going to Florida, with one trip to Hot Springs, Ark.

They Married in 1912.

The Walkers were married on April 11, 1912, while "Jimmy" was a member of the state legislature. She then was a vaudeville actress. Instead of the usual Mendelssohn wedding march the organist played young Walker's own pet musical composition, "Will You Love Me in December as You Did in May?" at the wedding.

Miami advices say that under the laws of Florida Mrs. Walker may get her decree in four weeks—unless the action should be contested. That is not expected.

Meanwhile, it seems that much talked about autobiography of the ex-mayor isn't going to be written, after all—at least for the time being. But Miss Compton, who also is on vacation at Cannes, has just about finished the book she is writing. So a New York published said today on his return from France.

FOUR ARE SENTENCED FROM 5-25 YEARS IN BROOKLYN KIDNAPING

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—Four of five men on trial in the County court in Brooklyn on indictments charging them with the kidnaping of Ernest Schoening, alleged bootlegger, entered pleas of guilty to second degree assault as a second offender.

Those who pleaded guilty to attempted kidnaping were John Nevins and Arthur Graef, formerly policemen attached to the Miller avenue station, but suspended after their arrest as kidnapers; Max Geller and Leonard Gawelzyck.

Frank Miller, the fifth man indicted on the kidnaping charge, pleaded guilty to second degree assault as a second offender.

Judge Algernon T. Nova sentenced all the defendants. Nevins, Graef, Geller, and Gawelzyck were sentenced to serve from five to 25 years each in Sing Sing. Miller to five years in the same prison.

Schoening, who is under sentence to a federal penitentiary on a dry law conviction, was kidnaped on Dec. 27 and held prisoner for 15 days while his kidnapers attempted to collect $100,000 ransom. The men sentenced today were arrested and placed on trial. Summation in the first trial was nearly completed when a juror died suddenly, causing a mistrial. The second trial was started this week.

DECHOW VICTIM OF JAIL PLOT, HE TELLS U. S. COURT

Henry Dechow, alias Count Enrique Von Buelow, arraigned yesterday before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward on a charge of possessing counterfeit money, complained that plotters are seeking to make his life in the county jail miserable and to lessen his chances of proving his innocence.

Dechow is in the county jail pending his trial next week.

THOUSANDS BOW AT CERMAK BIER IN CITY HALL

Final Rites for Mayor to Be Held Today.

inated and at noon throngs of downtown clerks tried to get in.

It was like a human river, dammed at places by the police, who put broad backs against the tide. Once in a while a woman or child would be forced into the street. The cold wind swept around the corners and the people shivered and huddled closer for warmth. Many were poorly clad and wrapped newspapers inside their coats.

They stood from curb to wall all around the building, hemmed in by police, moving at a snail's pace. At the Washington street entrance there was a flurry and a release of pressure at irregular intervals, as the doors were opened for new sections of the crowd. Inside the hall the stream quieted down into a calm smooth current. Four abreast, two abreast, then singly and in file they marched down the long flower scented aisles. There was a solid block of flowers.

At the center of it all was a pool of deep quiet, broken only by the low commands of the police in front of the coffin.

"Step a little livelier, please. Move along, please. One at a time."

Wreath from City Council.

Here was the casket, resting on a low platform, banked in greens, tall palms behind, and a great wreath of roses, carnations and orchids, marked "City Council."

Overhead was a silken canopy of black and purple. In the center of this gloom a single light shone. It fell on the white face lying on the silken pillow under the glass cover. It spread to the police guards standing so straight at the head and foot of the coffin and on the never ending line of bending, peering faces. Some wiped tears as they went by.

From here the crowd was directed into Randolph street, where more thousands stood trying to get in. Hawkers were busy selling Cermak buttons tied with black and purple ribbon.

Police Floral Tributes.

At the Randolph street side of the building the floral offerings of the firemen and police were piled up. The police gave a tall pillar of white roses, the family many wreaths marked with endearing terms. One wreath, sent by Ald. John Coughlin and Michael Kenna, had the design of the American flag worked in flowers and the words "I am glad it was me instead of you," the words spoken by the mayor to President Roosevelt a few minutes after he had been shot by Giuseppe Zangara.

Wreaths from the city council and from the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were the only ones on the casket.

The funeral procession will form at the city hall this morning at 8:45 o'clock, led by police mounted and on motorcycles and by the marshal, Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, and his staff. Cavalry, infantry, bands, officials, delegations from many organizations, foreign consuls, American Legion posts, and civic and fraternal societies will make up one of the biggest demonstrations of this kind in the history of Chicago. The funeral procession will start for the Stadium at 9 a. m.

Services at the Stadium are scheduled to open at noon, with seating for about 25,000. The Hamilton club chorus of 90 voices will sing "Lead Kindly Light," then the Rev. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist church, will speak. Gov. Horner will deliver the eulogy, after which the chorus will sing "The Long Day Closes." Rabbi Louis L. Mann of Sinai temple will speak next. The chorus will sing "Goin' Home." The Rev. Daniel J. Frawley, pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic church, will deliver the closing talk, after which the chorus will sing "Ave Maria."

Ceremonies Held in Schools.

Ceremonies commemorating the life of Mayor Cermak were held in the public schools yesterday. Principals, teachers, and outside speakers pointed out the significance of the life of the mayor, how, as an immigrant boy, the son of a miner, he had risen to his high position. They urged a greater measure of participation in public affairs. Two assemblies were held in Harrison Technical High school, which owes its existence in a large measure to the mayor, for the attention he gave to it as a councilman 24 years ago.

Chicago and Cicero public schools will be closed today in tribute to the late mayor. State and municipal courts in Chicago will be closed and the federal courts will hear only routine motions in the morning and adjourn before noon. All city and county departments will be closed, with the exception of the fire and police departments and the county treasurer's office, which will be kept open for the benefit of those wishing to pay their tax bills.

Transit Lines to Halt.

Public transit lines will halt for a minute at noon today and all business in the State street department stores will be stopped while taps are blown by a bugler in each store. The same ceremony will take place in the Palmer house and the Hotel Sherman. Telephones will remain unanswered, elevators will halt, and all in the lobbies will bare their heads and face east.

The Chicago Lutheran Pastoral conference adopted resolutions expressing sorrow at the mayor's death and the hope of good guidance in selecting his successor.

Funeral Representatives Picked.

Among the organizations which named delegations to attend the funeral were the Civic federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, Chicago Stock exchange, the United States Civil legion, the Iroquois club, the Bohemian Charitable association, and the Chicago Cartage association.

The following were added to the list of honorary pallbearers: Paul Mueller, Judge Peter H. Schwaba, John Lewe, Emily Napieralski, Albert Soska, Max Drezmal, A. Czarnecki, Joseph Gill, Clayton Smith, John Touhy, Dennis Horan, James Whalen, Ross Woodhull, Thomas Byrne, J. L. Friedman, Frank Keenan, Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, and Mrs. George J. Asia.

HONOR CERMAK IN HOUSE; BEAM PAYS TRIBUTE

Chicagoan Says Death Is Blow to State.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—The house of representatives bowed in tribute today to Anton J. Cermak, Chicago's martyred mayor, who died of an assassin's bullet meant for President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Before the packed house and galleries on the opening day of the 73d congress, Representative Harry P. Beam, from the Chicago district where the mayor made his home, paid simple honor to his memory.

"On Feb. 15, 1933, the world was astonished and amazed at the brazen and dastardly attempt to assassinate the President elect of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt," said Mr. Beam.

Spared by Providence.

"Fortunately and happily his life was spared, by providential intervention as it were—and his great talents and ability to serve his countrymen were not denied the people of the United States in this crucial period of our national history.

"There was, however, in that lamentable occurrence a toll taken, which has fallen heavily upon the city of Chicago and the state of Illinois.

"Every American citizen throughout the length and breadth of the land feels the death of Mayor Cermak of Chicago as keenly and deeply as if they had sustained a personal loss. His courage, his fortitude under such trying circumstances and the utterance he made, won for him the sympathy, the affection and the admiration of the entire world.

Accept Challenge of Lawless.

"Every citizen of the United States accepts the challenge of lawlessness, of hate, and of disrespect for law and order which was hurled at organized society and constituted government by this cold blooded assassination, and from the bier of Chicago's martyred mayor will arise in the hearts and breasts of our citizens a determination, a zeal to crush, to annihilate the criminal element in our midst which for so many years have bid defiance to constituted authority, have heaped ignomy and shame upon the fair name of America, and have traduced and stigmatized the noblest and best traditions of our nation.

"The life of the late Mayor Cermak of Chicago depicts a story and portrays a picture which could serve as an inspiration and incentive to every red blooded boy in our land and demonstrates what heights a man of humble birth and origin can attain in the broad crucible of American opportunity.

A Fighter for People.

"The late Mayor Cermak was a man of great executive ability, an authority on municipal government, and an uncompromising fighter for the people, or the downtrodden and the oppressed.

"By his untimely death the city of Chicago and the state of Illinois have lost a great public official and America has laid to rest one of her noblest and outstanding citizens of the present generation."

CROWD HALTED TO LET FAMILY PAUSE AT BIER

For a few moments yesterday afternoon a halt was called in the stream of humanity that for hours had poured by the thousands into the corridors of the city hall and county building from the Washington street entrance. Through the Randolph street doors opposite a group of weeping women and awed youngsters approached the bronzed casket, and the guard made way for Mayor Cermak's children and grandchildren.

In single file, as all others had passed the bier, the little procession of those closest to him in life took their glimpses of the man who lay in somber state under the great dome of purple and black. A daughter, Mrs. Richey Graham, bending above the still face on the satin pillow, sobbed aloud. The other daughters, Mrs. Frank Jirka and Mrs. Floyd Kenlay, and the mayor's favorite granddaughter, Miss Vivian Graham, were more composed. One by one the small boys, the Graham and the Jirka lads, were lifted up for a moment's view.

6,000 AN HOUR PAY TRIBUTE

Clocking of the crowds passing the bier of Mayor Cermak in the city hall began at 10 a. m. on order of Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works. In the first hour, Assistant Traffic Engineer R. F. Shobe recorded 1,910. The pace was speeded up until by midafternoon 3,280 passed every half hour.

Policemen caught a woman as she started to fall upon the open coffin, then led away. "Yes, I'm the lady who fainted," she said proudly between her sobs, speaking in a strong English accent. "No, I never saw him before. God bless him." She was Mrs. Anna Moore, 1443 North Ogden boulevard, an English immigrant, who waited in line four and one-half hours.

Patrolman M. J. Behan, 5th district, helped an aged Bohemian woman dressed in black shawl and coat, out and into a cab after she broke down on seeing the mayor's body. "I shook his hand the day he landed in this country as a little one," she sobbed.

"I knew him when he got married, him and his bride," a middle aged woman said, quietly wiping away tears. "They lived with her people at 25th street, near Douglas, and I lived two blocks away." The woman was Mrs. William Hubeny, 3028 Wisconsin avenue, Berwyn. She waited in line from 11:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.

The Knights of Pythias in Illinois, numbering 40,000 members, will observe a 30 day period of mourning for Mayor Cermak, who was a member of the order for 38 years.

Patrolman William E. Adlom, Stanton avenue district, on duty at the Washington street door, where the line entered the building and the wind whistled through, kept up a chant between chattering teeth: "Step lively, folks! Two at a time!" In front of the casket a patrolman echoed: "Step lively. Move on, folks."

A block from the end of the line, near the La Salle street entrance to the city hall, William C. Tisdale, 70 years old, of 410 West 61st street, died from a sudden heart attack.

Every hour Lieut. William McCarthy cried, "Guard, post," and the four policemen standing rigidly to right and left of the coffin were relieved by four more of the honor guard. Four firemen completed the guard of eight, which continued through the night.

A wheel of carnations, inscribed "Brother," was brought to the city hall with the casket. One of the late mayor's brothers is Joseph. The other is James, a caretaker at the House of Correction.

Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Century of Progress, will lead a delegation of World's Fair officials and representatives at the funeral. A memorial program will be played on the chimes in the tower of the Hall of Science at the exposition at 10:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m. today. The Administration building will be closed from 10:30 a. m. to 1 a. m. in memory of Mayor Cermak, who was a trustee of the exposition.

Members of the Army and Navy club met yesterday at their clubrooms, 850 Lake Shore drive, and adopted a resolution extending sympathy to the members of Mayor Cermak's family. A committee headed by Brig. Gen. James A. Ryan was appointed to represent the club at the funeral today.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes telegraphed from Washington: "Please extend to all members of Mayor Cermak's family my deepest sympathy in their tragic bereavement."

A cablegram from the lord mayor of Dublin, Alfred Byrne, read: "On behalf of my colleagues of the municipal council, our Dublin citizens, the lady mayoress, and myself I offer the family sincere and heartfelt sympathy on the sad loss which you and all Chicago have sustained in the death of Mayor Cermak."

The following members of the Democratic national committee, according to an announcement by Postmaster General James A. Farley, are to attend the funeral of the mayor today: Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, Chicago; Thomas D. Taggart, Indiana; Mrs. Sam Connor, Kentucky; Horatio J. Abbott, Michigan; W. T. Kemper, Missouri; Frank Hague, New Jersey; John McCooey, New York; Mrs. Stanley V. Hodge, Minnesota; Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke, Ohio, and Charles E. Broughton, Wisconsin.

Democratic Treasurer Here to Attend Rites

Frank Walker, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, arrived yesterday afternoon to attend the rites for Mayor Cermak as chairman of the delegation of the national party organization. Nine other national committeemen, who also were named by Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the national committee, will arrive this morning. Walker was greeted by a delegation of local Democratic leaders and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City. Mayor Hague arrived earlier in the day.

CONFER ON BILL FOR ELECTION OF AN ACTING MAYOR

Legislators Push Plan for Action by Council.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Plans for the introduction of a bill at Springfield to empower the city council to elect an acting mayor from either inside or outside its own membership and to clothe him with full powers as mayor were made yesterday in informal conferences of Democratic leaders. The man elected would fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mayor Cermak until a new mayor is elected at a special election.

As affairs stand the cities and villages act, adopted in 1875, make no specific provision for selecting an acting mayor in Chicago where the vacant term is a year or more. It simply calls for an election.

George B. Swift Precedent Cited.

For the last fortnight, a precedent has been advanced in the shape of a legal opinion on which was based the election of George B. Swift as acting mayor by the city council following the assassination of Carter H. Harrison, the elder, on Oct. 28, 1893. This opinion held that in view of the silence of the cities and villages act, the old charter of Chicago still would hold good in providing the council should select an alderman as sitting mayor.

In view of the financial situation of the city, and the controversy among lawyers as to whether such an acting mayor would possess powers to sign bonds and other municipal documents, the general opinion among the Democratic chiefs yesterday seemed to be that all doubts should be dispelled by an emergency act of the legislature.

The informal idea was expressed that by enabling the selection of an "outsider" as interim mayor, the city council would have a greater choice of strong candidates. Also, the proposal was viewed as being perhaps of value in keeping the Democratic organization harmonized.

Party Expects to Control Council.

Until after the funeral of Mayor Cermak, the Democratic organization has not set about the formulation of a definite program as to the filling of the vacancy. In the city council are 32 Democrats and 18 Republicans. The party organization, which includes the holders of the great patronage offices, believes it will be able to guide and control the council. The city council will not meet until next week, possibly Monday, by which time a program is expected to have been mapped out by the party management.

In case the city council should proceed to elect an alderman for acting mayor, the leading Democratic candidates are Aldermen Thomas A. Doyle [13th], J. M. Arvey [24th], James B. Bowler [25th], and John S. Clark [30th]. Republicans spoken of are Oscar F. Nelson [46th] and John A. Massen [48th].

Wire Pulling Among Aldermen.

While the party leaders refrained yesterday from formal discussions, many group conferences were held and here was much buttonholing and wire pulling among the aldermen.

One question arising was whether Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] and Sheldon W. Govier [9th] would have any vote, as they hold other positions. If not, 25 votes would suffice to elect. If the Democrats should deadlock, some of the Republicans see a chance to break the deadlock either with a Republican or by swinging to a Democrat. The council is supposed to be a nonpartisan body.

If an emergency bill can be passed at Springfield, which would require Republican votes, authorizing the election by the council of some one not an alderman as acting mayor, the Democrats argued it would enable them to put forward a harmony candidate. In this connection the name of Pat Nash, county chairman, has been widely mentioned, although Mr. Nash himself has refrained from political talk until after the funeral.

Deneen Group in Conference.

The Deneen group at its regular informal luncheon yesterday talked over the situation. The prevailing sentiment was that the first consideration should be the necessities of Chicago. The group is for a primary instead of nominations by convention, and it favors holding the special election for mayor, not in the June judicial election, but at the April primaries next year.

The Deneen group raised the question of whether the law could be amended to provide that a mayor should be elected in April, 1934, for a five year term, which would embrace the remainder of the Cermak vacancy and a full term of four years.

The Democrats favor holding the mayoralty election June 5 at the time of the judicial election and of nominating by convention items which would require a two-thirds vote at Springfield for emergency bills. The Republican city organization appears to be against such emergency measures in relation to the mayoralty.

The Deneen group advanced the theory that the Democrats would be able to elect an acting mayor in the city council, probably on the first ballot. In case of a deadlock, sentiment seemed to favor the idea of the Republican members holding a caucus and voting for the strongest Democratic candidate.

ROBBED ON JOLIET ROAD.

Three men held up Morris Turk, Joliet produce dealer, near that city yesterday as he was driving toward Chicago and robbed him of $300. It was the second such robbery on the Joliet-Chicago road in two days.

ZANGARA PLEADS GUILTY; TO HEAR HIS FATE TODAY

Faces Death Sentence for Killing Mayor.

Miami, Fla., March 9.—[Special.]—Guiseppe Zangara will be sentenced to life imprisonment or death tomorrow morning for the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago. The prisoner, now under sentence of 80 years for the attempt to kill four other persons, including President Roosevelt, pleaded guilty to the murder charge today before Circuit Judge Uly O. Thompson.

Zangara, who sat unperturbed throughout the testimony of state witnesses, took the witness stand and reiterated his statement that he wanted to kill "all Presidents and kings."

"I'm 33," the defendant told the crowded courtroom, "born in Italy. I came here first September 10 years ago and live in New Jersey. I live here three four months—since July.

Tells Life Story.

"I want to kill all capitalist. Because of capitalist people get no bread. That's important thing—not money. I feel this way since I was 14 years old. I go to work when I'm six with farm people. My father's in Italy. My mother died when I two years old. I got six sisters and a stepmother. We got same father—not same mother. I have stomach pains since I six years old. I not mad at my father but I mad at capitalists. They got education. I don't smoke, drink because it makes my stomach on fire."

Zangara told calmly of the actual shooting and said that Mrs. W. F. Cross of Miami knocked his arm and diverted his aim as he tried to shoot Mr. Roosevelt.

Denies He Is Insane.

"I know they give me the electric chair," the witness said, "but I don't care. I'm right. It don't make no difference who I kill. I kill Hoover or Mussolini if I see them first."

"Are you sorry you shot the other people?" the defense attorney asked.

"I sorry I no shoot Roosevelt," Zangara answered. He testified that he knew nothing about Mayor Cermak until after the shooting, and denied vehemently under questioning that he was insane.

Tom Armour of Miami was called as the first state witness as Judge Thompson heard evidence as required by Florida law before passing sentence. Armour described the shooting, and was followed to the stand by Miss Dixie Heriong, a court reporter, who testified that Zangara's statement after the shooting was delivered "in a reasonably calm way."

Sheriff Dan Hardie of Dade county described the shooting and capture.

W-G-N TO GIVE FULL BROADCAST OF CERMAK RITES

W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station, will present a complete broadcast of the funeral services for Mayor Cermak which are to be held today in the Chicago Stadium. The W-G-N broadcast will start at 11:50 a. m. and will continue until after the funeral party has departed from the Stadium. Quin Ryan will present the W-G-N broadcast. A special broadcasting booth has been erected at the Stadium at the rear of the speakers' stand and extensions for microphones have been installed by Chief Engineer Carl Meyers to present a complete word picture of the services, including all of the speaking and music by the organ and chorus.

According to Ald. Henry Sonnenschein, radio stations will broadcast only the services held in the Stadium. The procession from the city hall to the Stadium and to the cemetery will not be broadcast, in accordance with the request of Mayor Cermak's family.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels, and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

DRUGS WITH A REPUTATION

The New Currency

The new Federal Reserve currency, now being issued, is as good as the old currency and as good as the United States. It is the soundest and safest money in the world. It is in the truest and deepest sense as good as gold.

Gold Hoarders

They are draft evaders. They are duty dodgers. They throw down their arms in the presence of the enemy. Cowards themselves, they snatch weapons of defense from the hands of brave men. They are disease carriers; they spread contagion. They not only dig their own graves, but their graves are traps for the healthy and the courageous. For their own sakes, we hope the authorities will not find it necessary to publish their names.

Banks

Most of the banks which were still open last week are sound, strong, well-managed, time-tested banks. They deserve your confidnce and ours, and as good citizens it is our duty to give it to them. The money which you spend in our stores is going right into the same banks which we were using before the moratorium, and from them it is going into circulation to pay for merchandise to help employers all over America to pay working people their wages.

PIERRE DEPICTS U. S. IN TERMS OF SAVORY DISHES

From Vanilla Souffle to Chicken Pie.

BY WILLIAM IRVIN.

Pierre J. Berard, an authority, assures us that not only are the culinary arts in this country in the process of change, but that a distinctly American cuisine is rapidly evolving. And Pierre's words carry added weight since the announcement recently that he had been adjudged the winner, in competition with some of the country's best known chefs, in a nation-wide recipe contest conducted by a New York restaurant and hotel magazine publisher. The first place award, incidentally, is a trip to Paris, which Pierre is planning to make late next summer.

"I would say that 80 per cent of the recipes I submitted in the twelve different classes were typically American, particularly adapted to the American taste," said Pierre. Altogether, 21,744 recipes were entered in the contest, the monthly classifications being poultry, meat, fish, bakery products, sandwiches, salads, dairy products, fruit, vegetables, desserts, appetizers and relishes, and sauces and gravies.

Here's Typical Dessert.

Among the desserts Pierre offers as typically American one recipe for pineapple tapioca whip and one for vanilla souffle, both of which were tested, as were the other recipes he submitted, for cost and time for preparation as well as for the recipe itself. The one for the vanilla souffle is as follows:

6 ounces granulated sugar.
2 ounces flour.
1 pint milk.
6 egg yolks.
1 stick vanilla.
12 whites of eggs.
1 pinch of salt.

Mix milk with flour, then add sugar, vanilla and salt, and cook on full fire until the mixture is of a smooth nature. Remove saucepan from fire, then add egg yolks, and strain through cheesecloth. At last add the egg whites stiffly beaten. Butter and sugar a souffle mold, then pour in the above preparation right to the level top and with spatula bring the center like a dome.

To cook first start on top of range, then finish to cook in moderate oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit. Five minutes before you remove souffle from oven sprinkle with powdered sugar and glaze in fast oven.

A vanilla souffle thus prepared, according to Pierre, requires fifty minutes, costs .4825 cents, and is sufficient for eight services.

The recipe for the tapioca whip is as follows:

1½ pint pineapple juice.
8 ounces minute tapioca.
1 teaspoonful vanilla extract.
4 yolks of eggs.
½ pint of whipping cream.
3 ounces granulated sugar.

Bring pineapple juice to a boil, add tapioca, and cook slowly until done, then mix granulated sugar with egg yolks and vanilla extract, finally stirring in pineapple juice and tapioca. Cook for a few minutes on fire, then remove and place to cool, stirring it once in a while. When cool add whipped cream and pour into glasses. Place in cooler.

This recipe requires 35 minutes and will yield enough for fourteen services at a cost of 32 cents.

American Stew 47 Cents.

Among the meat dishes Pierre offers a tempting one called browned beef stew with vegetables, which he considers typically American. According to Pierre's tests, it requires two hours, costs 47 cents, and is sufficient for five persons. It is as follows:

BROWNED BEEF STEW.

1½ pounds lean beef, preferably flank, cut in large cubes.
2 large onions cut in cubes or 2 dozen small onions, ½ pound.
1 small pod of garlic chopped very fine.
3 medium carrots cut in cubes or new carrots left whole, ½ pound.
2 ounces butter.
2 white turnips, peeled, cut in quarters and parboiled.
½ cup flour.
6 small potatoes, peeled and parboiled, 1 pound.
1 cupful of canned peas.
1 teaspoonful chopped parsley.
Salt, paprika, and pepper, one bouquet garni.
1 quart stock or water.

Season beef with salt, paprika, and pepper. Put in saucepan with butter and fry gently. Then put in carrots, onions, and garlic, let cook for a few minutes, then add flour, stir well and let cook, then add stock or water and stir until a nice brown gravy is formed. Add bouquet garni, the turnips, and cook slowly in oven for one hour, and twenty minutes before serving add potatoes and canned peas. Just as you are ready to serve remove bouquet garni and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Then there's the old-fashioned chicken pot pie, which also comes under the heading of typically American.

"The chicken meat served in pot pie is boneless and skinless," said Pierre. "I probably will be criticized for using a four pound roasting chicken for such a purpose, but my experience has proved these to be correct, as the meat is much finer and tenderer, flavor more delicate, and also the cost will be reduced."

CHICKEN POT PIE.

1 four pound chicken [roasting].
½ can French mushrooms, pieces.
½ pound salt pork cut in slices.
½ pound potatoes cut in large cubes.
¼ pound small onions.
1 pound pie dough.
1 teaspoon Worcestershire S. & P. sauce.
3 ounces roux.
¼ bunch chopped parsley.
½ pint cream.

Some Further Details.

After chicken has been singed, drawn, and washed in cold water place to cook in large stock pot, adding salt, celery leaves, carrots, onions, pepper balls, cloves and bayleaf. Boil slowly until done, then remove chickens, and let cool. Cut chicken and remove all bones from breast and legs, making an average of five portions or better per chicken.

Prepare sauce with roux and chicken stock, let cook while preparing pot pie.

Line pot pie dishes with pptatoes and onions, then two pieces of dark meat of chicken, one piece white meat, covering with slice of boiled salt pork. Finish with four to five pieces of mushrooms.

When sauce is ready finish with one gallon cream and season to taste. Add chopped parsley, then put enough sauce in each pot pie to cover all meat and garnish. Then place pie dough cover on, wash with egg and milk, and bake in a moderate oven 25 to 30 minutes.

Home Science Expert Tells Healthful and Cheap Meals

BY BETTY BROWNING.

That question uppermost in the minds of all housewives—how to feed the family well, yet economically—was answered Monday by Miss Mary E. Freeman, head of the department of home economics at the Chicago Normal college. She talked at a meeting of the South Side Junior and Senior High School Parent-Teacher council at Fenger High school.

Miss Freeman discussed foods in general, grouping them in various classifications, including energy foods, muscle, tooth, bone and blood building foods, health protecting and laxative foods. She stressed particularly those reasonable in price. Climaxing her talk, she presented low cost menus covering one week, together with recipes for low cost dishes.

Students Prepare Meals.

To illustrate, a sample breakfast, luncheon and dinner were prepared by the Fenger home economics students. The breakfast, costing 6½ cents per person, included prunes, cereal served with milk, toast and milk. The luncheon of macaroni and cheese, stewed tomatoes, milk, two slices of bread and custard, cost 8 cents. Dinner, at 10 cents a person, consisted of meat loaf, made of hamburger, baked potato, cabbage and carrot salad, corn muffin, milk and baked apple.

Such housewives' tricks as using fruits and vegetables in season and buying staples in large quantities at special sales, as a saving of both time and money, were stressed by Miss Freeman.

Among the essentials of the daily diet she placed bread and other grain foods, such as cracked wheat, corn meal mush, oatmeal, rice and grits, potatoes, milk, fresh, evaporated or dried, one or more vegetables or fruits, particularly vegetables of green or yellow color, molasses, sugar or other sweets, butter, lard or other fats, and plenty of water.

Raw Vegetables Favored.

Raw cabbage or raw fruit, dried beans, peas or peanuts, lean meat, poultry, eggs, fresh fish, canned salmon or cheese she placed among foods to be served several times a week. She emphasized the importance to young children of tomato or orange juice once a day and milk at every meal.

Her list of the most economical foods just now includes tapioca, macaroni, spaghetti, dried beans, peas and lentils, potatoes, fish, eggs, cheese, dried apricots and prunes.

Following are her low cost menus, estimated to cost from 23 to 26 cents per person per day:

LAMB IS HIGH IN FOOD VALUE, LOW IN PRICE

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented tomorrow by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Good quality lamb is high in food value and low in cost, fits easily into the most modest budget, and yet provides a basis for delectable spring-time meals. And on top of all, its energy and body building fats and proteins, lamb is also a source of iron and phosphorus which are still as valuable in combating the listless "spring fever" feeling as they were in the days when grandmother used to feed them to us in that bane of childhood—sulphur and molasses.

To my way of thinking the king of them all is the crown roast of lamb, done to a luscious turn with fluffy bread dressing. Fetched forth proudly from the oven, it is ready for its crowning complement—a whole creamy head of cooked cauliflower dressed with melted parsley butter. The cauliflower goes on the dressing, in the center of the crown, with small paper frills or carrot balls adorning the rib ends. Round about, on the hot platter range cinnamon apples, whole cooked onions and parsley, or potato cups filled with creamed peas. Or as a garnish, use pineapple rings filled with mint or red jelly, halves of glazed small carrots or curly hearts of lettuce holding bright colored jelly.

Garnish with Mint Apples.

Or if it's to be leg of lamb, roast to a crusty tenderness and garnish with mint apples—peeled, cored ones which have been cooked tender in a sugar and water sirup [2 cups sugar, 1 cup water], which sirup has been colored with green food coloring and flavored with a few drops of oil of peppermint before the apples were added.

Then for a tantalizing way with lamb chops.

MUSHROOM BROILED LAMB CHOPS.

Buy the chops "Frenched" by the butcher. Wipe the chops and lay them on a cold, greased rack and slip them under a broiling flame or electric grill. It is not necessary to sear the meat first; simply let brown well on one side and then on the other. A ¾ inch chop will require about 12 minutes, while a double 1½ to 2 inch chop may need 25 to 30 minutes.

While the lamb is broiling, drain a can of mushrooms and chop fine. Mix them to a paste with a little thick cream sauce, and when the chops come out of the oven, spread this mushroom dressing over them. Dip the chops in egg and then in crumbs and either fry in deep fat or return to the broiler for a quick golden brown. Decorate the rib bone with a paper frill and serve hot.

Finally for an olden oriental delicacy with a new modern touch. Probably this trick with lamb was practiced thousands of times with the aid of open fires and pointed sticks. Instead, we'll use metal skewers and a broiler.

BROILED LAMB ON SKEWERS.

2½ pounds lamb shoulder.
3 sliced onions.
2½ tablespoons olive oil.
1½ tablespoons lemon juice.
Salt and pepper to season.

Wipe the lamb with a damp cloth and cut into two inch chunks. Place in a dish, pour over it the blended oil and lemon juice, and let stand for an hour, turning occasionally. At the end of the time, dry the pieces and season with salt and pepper. Then push lamb pieces onto skewers, alternating with slices of onion. Broil about 20 minutes under an electric or gas grill or broiler flame, turning now and then to warmly brown all sides.

Menus Tomorrow

MARY MEADE'S menus for Saturday and Sunday will appear in tomorrow morning's Tribune. Watch for them, together with the Saturday food marketing news story. Miss Meade's menus will enable you to take advantage of week-end food bargains and to plan attractive meals more economically.

Pot Roast of Beef, Veal Selling at Low Levels

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the meat council of Chicago states:

"Pot roast of beef represents the most economical meat buy in Chicago retail meat stores over the coming week-end. Breast of veal and shoulder of veal also are selling at unusually low levels."

HOUSEHOLD HINT.

Straining sour milk for cottage cheese requires only one pair of hands if the edges of the cloth are fastened to the sides of the kettle with clothespins. Embroidery hoops sometimes save scalded hands by holding a jelly bag open at the right stage in jelly making.

WISCONSIN FOOD BARTER SPREADS DUE TO CRISIS

Barter in obtaining food supplies gained new impetus this week in Wisconsin, where everything from dairy products to honey and meats and vegetables was being exchanged for other commodities. Even professional services were being exchanged in many of the smaller towns in the state in lieu of currency for articles of food.

Butter, eggs, grain, pork, beef, apples, chickens, potatoes, honey, and maple sirup are some of the foods being traded, either for other foods or for nonedible commodities. Additional farm products used in the barter exchange included cordwood, feed, grain for seeds, and live stock.

Doctors, lawyers, dentists, music teachers, and ministers are among those in the professions accepting clothing, coal, lumber, gasoline and oil, in addition to food supplies for their services. Many of the elderly farmers in the state indicated that in their boyhood barter was a common method of getting some desired commodity without dealing in actual money.

ELAMITE TABLETS FOUND IN PERSIAN PALACE RUINS

Prof. Breasted Tells of Important Discovery.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

CAIRO, Egypt, March 9.—Many important discoveries have already been disclosed in connection with this season's excavations at Persepolis, ancient capital of Persia, by the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago, but more have just been revealed.

Upon the arrival in Cairo of Prof. James H. Breasted, the institute's director, after a flight over Persia and the sites of leading ruins in western Asia, he received word from Prof. Ernst Herzfield, field director of the institute's Persian expedition at Persepolis, that hundreds and probably thousands of cuneiform tablets in the Elamite language had been discovered there.

Records of Business.

The documents, which are Elamite business records, are the first such discovery in Persia.

[Elam was in ancient times a district south of Assyria and west of Persia, at present Khuzistan.]

The discovery of the cuneiform tablets will help in the deciphering of Elamite and shed light on the pre-Persian civilization. It may now be expected that other state archives of Persian emperors other than those written on Papyrus in Aramaic will be found on cuneiform tablets still under the wreckage of palaces at Persepolis. Thus is opened an entirely new chapter in the knowledge of ancient Persia which heretofore has been drawn chiefly from foreign sources.

Dr. Breasted further reports that the newly discovered relief sculptures on two great monumental stairways at Persepolis far surpassed expectations in refinement and beauty and will take their place with the greatest works of art of the ancient world. Dr. Breasted is making an air tour of several months of all twelve of the institute's expeditions in the near and middle east.

Found in Ruins of Palaces.

The tablets in the Elamite language were found in the ruins of the great palaces built by the emperors Darius and Xerxes. The Elamites were the predecessors of the historical Persians and their culture flourished ages before that of the Persians in the same territory.

When Cyrus conquered the country in the middle of the sixth century B. C., the Elamite civilization was already highly developed, but general knowledge of it hitherto has been limited.

After the Persian conquest the Elamites continued to form a great and important part of the population of Persia so that when Darius carved his vast triumphal monument on the high face of Behistun, a rocky mountain side near Kermanshah, he felt impelled to inscribe impressive records of his triumphs not only in old Persian and Babylonian but also in Elamite.

When he built his huge palace and terrace at Persepolis, he likewise included the Elamite version in the foundation inscription on the south terrace walls. Deciphering of this version is going on now.

BOY KILLS SELF AFTER TWO ARE FOUND SLAIN

Genesee, Pa., March 9.—(AP)—Ten hours after his father and a farm hand were found fatally wounded and a brother in a critical condition in their burning home John McGinnis, 16, was found dead today in an automobile six miles from his Genesee residence.

A coroner's jury decided John killed himself with a rifle.

Early today the father, Alfred McGinnis, 55, and Miles McHale, 60, farm hand, were wounded fatally, and John's brother, Frank, was wounded critically at the McGinnis home.

Mrs. McGinnis and four other members of her family, aroused by the odor of smoke, found the three on the floor of the burning living room. They dragged the men outdoors, where the father and McHale died within a short time.

POLAND DEFENDS INCREASE OF ITS DANZIG GUARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, March 9.—The Polish government in a statement issued today through the semi-official Polish Telegraph agency defended its action in increasing the Polish guard at Westerplatte, Poland's main ammunition base, in the harbor of Danzig. The statement said that the action was entirely within international agreements and charged the league of nations commissioner of the free city with failure to check the influx of armed Nazi troopers.

In reply to alarms expressed in the Danzig and German press the statements adds that the presence of increased forces of Nazis in Danzig threatens Poland and directly Westerplatte. Helmer Rosting, the Danish commissioner for the league, has no influence with the irresponsible elements and "the Danzig senate does not want to have." Thus Poland could not wait, the statement says.

To prevent the kindling of nationalistic passions in Danzig the Polish government declares it is moving directly to protect Polish interests.

MAYOR O'CONNOR OF EAST CHICAGO KILLED IN AUTO

Collapses After Helping Fiancee from Wreck.

Mayor Thomas W. O'Connor of East Chicago, Ind., was fatally injured yesterday when his automobile was struck by a freight train at the Summer street crossing of the Chicago, Indiana and Southern railroad in Hammond. His fiancée, Miss Rachel Evans, a teacher in the Lincoln school at East Chicago, suffered minor injuries.

Mayor O'Connor climbed out of the wreckage, freed Miss Evans, and summoned a passing motorist who took the couple to the home of Dr. J. A. Teagarden of East Chicago. After a hurried examination the physician took Mayor O'Connor and Miss Evans to St. Catherine's hospital. Mayor O'Connor lapsed into unconsciousness on the way and died several hours later.

Council to Name Mayor.

A dentist in private life, Dr. O'Connor became mayor in January, 1930, by advancement from the position of city controller when Mayor Raleigh Hale resigned. He was 39 years old. The city council will choose a mayor to serve until December, 1934.

There was one death in Chicago yesterday, increasing the Cook county automobile toll since Jan. 1 to 151. The victim:

Emanuel Ehakis, 41 years old, 1133 North Lawndale avenue. Killed at Washington boulevard and Sangamon street.

Sentences Auto Driver.

Peter Christian, 32 years old, 3611 South Wells street, was sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell and fined $300 yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Christian drove his automobile past a watchman and warning lights and crashed into a group of workmen repairing street car tracks at Wells and Lake streets on Nov. 13. Seven of the workmen were injured.

A pint bottle partly filled with liquor was found in the wreckage of the car and Christian admitted he had been drinking.

Will Wed Woman Who Said He Stole Her $10,000

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—The engagement to marry of Mrs. Rose Warsaw, 44, and Harry Shapiro, 43, both of Brooklyn, was announced in County court, Brooklyn, today after Shapiro had been arraigned before Judge Alonzo G. McLaughlin on a charge of stealing $10,000 from his bride-to-be. "That's a new one on me," said Judge McLaughlin after he had been informed that the plaintiff was willing to marry the defendant and each of the parties concerned had expressed complete willingness to wed.

MAYOR IS KILLED

CAFE OWNERS HIT RISE IN PRICE OF FRESH PORK

Protest against the recent increase in the price of fresh pork was expressed last night by the Illinois Federation of Restaurant Owners at a meeting in the Morrison hotel. The federation adopted a resolution urging the members to serve pork only twice a week.

Although commodity prices were generally back to normal in Chicago yesterday, wholesale food dealers predicted that a rise in the prices of flour, sugar and coffee may be expected within two weeks. The rise, they said, would coincide with the lowering of stocks of these staples now on hand.

Chicago's food supply for immediate needs remains adequate for a period of fifteen days or longer, it was said. These reserves of staple food products and the continued adequate receipts of perishables and live stock were expected to keep food prices at the usual levels for the immediate future.

PROF. PICCARD MAY MAKE NEXT FLIGHT AT FAIR

Prof. Auguste Piccard may make his next flight into the stratosphere from the World's Fair grounds this summer. Accompanied by his twin brother, Jean, the explorer of the upper regions visited the exposition yesterday and spoke of his plans.

After a luncheon with exposition officials and Prof. Arthur Compton of the University of Chicago, Piccard was taken to the Hall of Science, where the aluminum sphere in which he ascended 52,856 feet above the earth will be displayed. It will be loaned by the National Foundation for Scientific Research of Belgium.

Piccard said that his next flight depends on the outcome of negotiations with American balloon and metal manufacturers.

HIS PANTS SHED $26,011 IN CASH; GETS GUARDIAN

Los Angeles, Cal., March 9.—(AP)—They decided here today that John W. Mattox, 73, needed a guardian, although he had $26,011 in cash and $25,000 in securities in his clothing. W. I. Myrick, a friend, won from Superior Judge Charles S. Crail an order appointing a bank as guardian.

"I have been a friend of Mattox three years," Myrick testified. "He is mentally incompetent. When I started to hang up his trousers, after putting him to bed, tobacco sacks full of money fell out of his pockets."

The bank representatives deposited $26,000 and the securities and gave Mattox the $11, which still left him better off than many persons who are waiting for the banks to open.

Floor Collapses at Fire; Firemen Fall to Basement

Several firemen escaped serious injury early today when a floor collapsed as they were fighting flames in the lunchroom of Edward Olson at 4169 South Halsted street. The firemen, members of truck company 18, were dropped into a basement. Several who were partially overcome by smoke were carried out, but revived quickly. The fire, which started in the basement, caused damage of about $2,000.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 94; recovered, 78; stripped, 26 (from Chicago police records for 24-hour period ending at midnight Wednesday). There were no court cases yesterday.

BLONDE WOMAN HOLDS UP STORE, AIDED BY A MAN

A woman, blonde and about 23, stepped into the fruit store of Irving Berman at 4836 Lincoln avenue last night and ordered two pounds of apples. While these were being put in a sack the blonde drew a pistol.

"Now," she said to Berman and two clerks, "if you boys keep quiet you can live a while. If you don't I'll have to kill all of you."

A man who had come in with her then took $225 and ran to an automobile at the curb. The woman followed and the pair drove away.

An hour earlier a man and a woman answering the same description and with the woman handling a pistol went into the Reliable fruit store, 1126 East 63d street, and robbed Chris Lampras, manager, of $15. The same pair, the police believe, have raided half a dozen other fruit stores in the past month.

TRUCK OF GROCERIES STOLEN.

A truck loaded with groceries was stolen early yesterday at Madison and Paulina streets. The driver, Fred Geiger, employed by the Midwest Motor Service company, 4915 South Campbell avenue, had left the truck to make a purchase in a cigar store.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE MAYORALTY.

It is certainly desirable from the public point of view that the field of choice for selection by the council of a mayor pro tem. should be wider than the membership of the council. This calls for legislation at Springfield and we hope there will be prompt and favorable action by the assembly. The policy is sound and for the city's good and should be approved on that ground, as well as upon consideration of the immediate circumstances.

A still more important question is the date of the election of a mayor. Compelling considerations demand that it shall be fixed for June to coincide with the election of judges. This would accomplish a much needed saving in expense and settle the municipal administration at a fairly early date. Both are considerations which overrule the preference for keeping judicial elections separate from other elections, and they should assure the selection of the June date. Postponement to July is not desirable or necessary, and postponement to the fall should not be thought of. The longer the election is deferred the greater the certainty that the choice of mayor would be confused and controlled by factional and party influences regardless and to the injury of the community's interest in good government.

Chicago cannot afford to have the processes of reconstruction begun under Mayor Cermak, and now under way, arrested and thrown into confusion by self-seeking politicians, conspiring and wrangling over power and spoils. That would be a capital misfortune to every citizen and every legitimate interest. It would retard the restoration of the city's impaired credit, postpone payment of municipal obligations, and set back private enterprise and reëmployment. The people of Chicago demand of political leadership and organization protection from this disaster and will hold them accountable. The best available mayor is needed for this emergency and he should be put in office as soon as possible.

MORE ADVICE FOR RAILROADS.

Railway passenger business doubled in every decade from 1890 to 1920. Between 1920 and 1929 it declined 24 per cent and between 1929 and 1932 a further 46 per cent, so that last year's volume was very little greater than that of the year 1900.

A substantial part of this revenue loss occurred during the years of our greatest prosperity and therefore may not be attributed to the general business depression, but largely to new competition from forms of transportation, so that there are now three travel alternatives available to the public—the airplane for speed, the railway for luxury and comfort, and the bus for economy.

The railways have declined to change their system to meet demands of the public, despite the fact that they have the major transportation advantages, as a private right of way compared to a public highway where operation is handicapped by slow moving vehicles and local traffic regulations, and access to the very heart of the metropolitan centers they serve, against time lost in transferring from the outlying flying fields to business centers. The railway can operate as well by night as by day, whereas both night driving and night flying are hazardous.

Other than the establishment of mileage books, which are of no value to the average citizen, the railways have done nothing to stem the flow of traffic from their rails. They are discontinuing the less used passenger trains, making it more difficult for the public to return to the rails if an experiment with one of the other forms should prove unsatisfactory.

They operate a number of different services, such as the extra fare eighteen hour trains, the standard twenty-twenty-eight hour trains from Chicago to New York; express and mail trains, perishable freight and stock trains, manifest freight trains, and unscheduled slow drags. The first two classes do not carry freight; the others do not carry passengers. If the railways should junk some of their century old ideas of keeping passenger and freight services distinctly separate, might they not offer the public the same service and the same fares as are being offered by their competitors?

More than fifty passengers leave Chicago on buses every day for New York. The bus schedule is practically equal to the railway perishable freight schedule, but the round trip fare is only two-thirds of the one way railway fare. If the railways would consider a train of perishable freight and coaches they could earn as much money if there were only seven passengers in a coach as they would on a car of California lemons for the New York market. It is true that they might be obliged to furnish bus service from their passenger terminals to a railway yard, but they are also obliged to assume delivery expense on the fruit.

Combination passenger coaches and compartment or container cars would also enable the railways to compete with both buses and trucks in cheap fares.

Fast local service will defeat close-in auto competition; faster service will extend the distance over which the railroad is faster than the airplane.

Night travel is preferable to extended air journeys, so that distances from five hundred to a thousand miles can be saved to the railroads by putting modernized speed schedules on the trains covering the longer distances.

If the advantages of downtown terminals are fully taken in short hauls, the night hauls extended by adopting modern speeds, and cheap fares provided by mixed trains, the railroads can regain most of their lost ground.

THE END OF A SORDID CHAPTER.

The director of prohibition enforcement, Mr. Woodcock, has acted sensibly in putting into immediate effect the mandate of congress against wiretapping and the purchase of illicit liquor by government agents. He remarks that dry cases in which resort to these methods is had would come to trial after the act of congress forbidding them is in effect and no hope of success is possible in such circumstances.

We might add that they never should have been adopted and would not have been if prohibition administration had not been under the domination of bigotry. That régime is now thoroughly discredited and on its way out. We are glad to find that this fact is recognized by what remains of the enforcement authority. To persist in its obnoxious tactics would be an unnecessary offense. The quicker this deplorable chapter in our history is closed the better for all concerned. We are not done with bigotry, but its recrudescence in prohibition has been decisively rebuked. The American people will do well to remember the lesson and be ready to protect themselves from another of the same costly character. Bigotry cannot thrive long in the American atmosphere, but it is damaging whenever and wherever it springs up.

A PUBLIC SERVANT'S REWARD.

The senate having failed to ratify his appointment as judge of the federal district, George E. Q. Johnson's brief service in that office has ended. It is a regrettable result of improper influences. Mr. Johnson was an able and courageous prosecutor of formidable crime, and, like Judge Wilkerson, had earned promotion. Both appointments were supported by all respectable members of the legal fraternity and by the public. Both were made the victims of forces regardless of or hostile to the public good. It is a black mark on the records of the senate that these influences prevailed, whether those of small-minded partisanship greedy for patronage or the more vicious pressure of the underworld and its allies.

Mr. Johnson has at all events the respect and gratitude of all responsible citizens, who will wish for him success in the private practice of his profession to which he now returns.

"DEEPER STRIKES THE ROTTENNESS IN THE PEOPLE'S LOINS."

The declaration of the Oxford Union, or rather of a hundred and thirty odd of its young members, that they will not fight for king and country gives significance to the lines of Kipling quoted above. That extreme pacifism manifests itself so belligerently in an institution famed above all others for loyalty to monarchy and British nationality is ominous evidence of the deterioration of British morale. The psychosis revealed afflicts America, and unless it is cured results in both nations will be deplorable. It has nothing to do with a sane disapproval of war as a means of settling international differences or with a self-respecting determination to seek less costly methods of adjustment and the furtherance of justice and amity among nations. If the Oxford pacifists were instructed as they ought to be in the lessons of history they would know that to every people comes the choice between a peace that is shameful and disastrous and the ordeal of resistance. A virile people will never shirk that issue. When a people chooses peace at any price it is dying. If the institution which has trained and inspired so many of the builders and leaders of British power is turning out many youths capable of this declaration a rottenness in the people's loins has struck deep indeed.

Editorial of the Day

"48 STATES FOR REPEAL."

[Rockford Register-Republic.

Ratification of the proposed 21st amendment to the constitution [for repeal of prohibition] by considerably more than the necessary three-fourths of the states, is predicted in this week's Literary Digest. The forecast is based on three separate nation-wide polls conducted by the magazine between 1922 and 1932, all of which revealed overwhelming wet majorities.

Forty-six of the 48 states will indorse the proposed amendment, the Digest predicts. Using as a basis for its conclusions the proven accuracy of its national "straw votes," which have forecast the winning presidential candidates in each instance with less than a 5 per cent error, the magazine says:

"Assuming that the prohibition polls should be as accurate as the presidential, inasmuch as they were conducted in exactly the same manner, we state that drys will be unable to muster more than one or two states to vote against ratification of repeal if the issue is put to a direct vote of the people. A majority of the American electorate was wet in sentiment eleven years ago, a review of returns on the 1922 prohibition poll shows, as only Kansas and Oklahoma voted to sustain the 18th amendment . . . Kansas and North Carolina were the only wet states in the latest [1932] poll, and this by scant margins."

Dry chancer hinge upon 16 states, the Digest concludes, listing, in addition to Kansas and North Carolina, Oklahoma, Iowa, Georgia, Nebraska, Utah, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Dakota, South Dakota, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, and Florida.

If thirteen of these can be held in line by prohibition forces, repeal will be out of the question. It is possible, statisticians have computed, for as little as 4 per cent of the nation's population to block repeal if the votes are distributed in the right states. The remaining 96 per cent would be powerless in such a case to exercise its will as expressed at the polls.

Naturally, dry strategy will be to solidify its position in these "strong points," as military men characterize them.

There they were, those people, sitting in their houses buried deep in snow and they ought to have been perfectly happy—no news from the outside world—telegraph, telephone, radio, everything, cut off. Perfect happiness! But human like they had to grab shovels and spades and dig their way through the snow to get the news about the financial situation. We hope they found out aplenty.

AND AS IF WE DIDN'T have enough things to worry about these days—newspaper headlines acquaint us with the horrible fact that the Japs have captured Koupeikow. Oh, that's just too bad! Koupeikow! Tut, tut, tut! Of all places, Koupeikow. There are so many places out there in China and the Japs seem just as happy in one as the other and then they had to go and capture Koupeikow. And now we've got to worry about Koupeikow. With Koupeikow piled on top of all our other troubles not one of us will sleep a wink tonight. Koupeikow. They went and took Koupeikow. REMEMBRANCE.

Spring is near, but he has not come back
From the journey he took that lone black
Night. Even the slow-returning ivy vine
Has stretched itself, seeking to intertwine
The lovely elm where each redding limb
Reveals something reminiscent of him . . .
But that is all: he does not return
With laughter in brown eyes that burn.

Birds that flew south now have flown
North again. The fledglings have grown
And returned to build. But of him no sight
Though we be searching day and night;—
No sight unless he is within this first rose
That comes with momentary fragrance and goes . . .
Alas, not even the poet's symbols can bring Him back as birds return on golden wing.

Nor does it really heal the heart to say,
"The dead return within the flowers of May":—
Despite our creeds, the dead are dead
And, though spring be lifting up its head
After winter's weary way, the dead seem far,—
As distant as the glowing evening star . . .
Sometimes I wonder if they aren't quite near,
Unseen because of sorrow and the blinding tear.

And now the things of April draw apace
Except the smiling of his vanished face;
Unleashed rivers riot southward to the sea,—
I cry to him, he never calls again to me;
Low stars are soft out in the western sky—
Oh, must the young and lovely really die?
Yet, so many things be rising up with breath
I think the only dead thing in the world is death.

CERTAINLY there's a town in Virginia called Nickelsville. But since we have proclaimed the fact several doubting Thomases have written in to say we invented the place. The trouble is that Nickelsville sounds too good to be true. But there it is and we could locate it exactly, but if we did everybody would be going down there, the price of board and lodging and car washing and greasing would go up and in a very short time they'd change the name to Dimetown and then to Quartersburg and finally to Dollarsville. So we won't tell, but we insist it's a real town and a very old town and it's got 263 inhabitants. That's enough. If it had any more and tourists commenced going there it would blossom out with gifte shoppies and cattie shoppies and hotte doggie shoppies and ye olde innes and things like that and be like every other place. We're sorry we even said that Nickelsville was near the Unaka National forest—but then we can't find anybody who ever heard of the Unaka National forest, either, so it's not very likely that Nickelsville will be discovered.

But don't rush up and try to save her—she's perfectly all right and she likes it that way. It's the style.

FOR MY MOTHER.

One day your lovely voice must cease to be Even a memory to men unless
Some golden echo should be sealed within
A poem telling of its loveliness.

O would that I might write one line wherein
Your voice, though softly, could be heard again;
That I might lift above the hush of time
One song you sang, one sweet and limpid strain!

ADELAIDE LOVE.

SIR ARTHUR EDDINGTON in his latest book proves conclusively the stars, comets and such like are rushing away from the earth at a furious speed and that the universe is in fact exploding. Well, as we go dragging around day by day searching for a fist we like that's within keeping of our moratorium budget, the universe can explode whenever it feels like it and we won't bat an eye winker. Go ahead, universe—shoot!

SEVEN YEAR ITCH.

THERE is a multitude of persons to whom the best known and oftentimes the most descriptive name of the venerable malady is the one given above and hallowed by the ages. A man must be very careless and indifferent to keep any curable disease for seven years, but many of us do. At least we indulge a winter visitation for each of seven years. In the summertime the itch victims are apt to have no trouble and many of them consider themselves cured. When the disease returns with the winter they consider that they have been visited by a new attack of the plague.

Seven year itch is due to a minute insect, one that likes to burrow in the skin and deposit eggs at intervals along the burrow. The itching eruption occurs above this burrow and particularly over the points at which eggs are deposited. The skin of an adult is too thick, dry, and tough for the insect to dig through except on the thin stretches. In consequence the eruption of scabies is pretty well limited to the thin skin between the fingers and toes. The skin of children under 10 years of age is thinner. Therefore, they are more liable to develop seven year itch in almost any location.

The insect responsible for this itch is by no means limited to the deeper layers of the skin. He or she dives down there like a duck swimming under water, but neither the insect nor the duck belongs below the surface. Each must come up periodically. In fact, the itch parasite is quite at home on the skin and even in the clothing. He may go into the clothes in the spring and stay there until the cold weather comes on.

The recipe for a rabbit pie begins with catching the rabbit. The cure of seven year itch begins and ends with catching the bug. Once the insects and eggs are destroyed the disease gets well rapidly and without medication. Not even seven days, to say nothing of seven years, is required. But the job of catching the bug will be a failure until no single pair and no eggs are left to replenish the loss.

Since the insects live on the clothing, this must be sterilized. Hot water suffices for garments that can be heated. Dry heat can be used with some woolens, and silks can be sterilized by soaking in gasoline. Gloves, socks, and shoes are especially in need of treatment. The parasites may be found on skin which is too thick for them to penetrate. Greasing with plain sulphur ointment followed by washing with warm water and soap suffices for unbroken skin.

The skin where the eruption is located is best treated with Danish itch ointment. This is a form of penetrating sulphur ointment sold under different names. The scabies are soaked off and the ointment is thoroughly rubbed in. One or two applications are generally enough to cure. However, it is generally best to apply the ointment about once a week for three weeks to kill any young insects that hatch from unkilled eggs or that managed to escape the earlier applications.

MIGRAINE.

Mrs. P. F. T. writes: Continuing the discussions of migraine: I suffered with periodic attacks of this disorder for years. I went through a clinic several years ago, where I was told that the attacks would increase in intensity until I was 40. I am now 39 years old. In August of last year I had a toxic goiter removed and since that time I haven't had one bad attack. I have had several very slight ones which disappeared shortly with practically no symptoms, such as vomiting, etc. I believe I will entirely recover from these attacks. Could there be any relation between the goiter and migraine, or were the doctors mistaking the migraine for something else? The attacks I had came on with first a blurred vision, followed by a severe pain, usually over one eye, and accompanied by severe nausea and vomiting, loose bowels, etc., and lasted several hours.

REPLY.

The term migraine includes several disorders. It appears certain that your headaches or attacks of migraine were due to too much thyroid.

NOT HARMFUL.

E. L. writes: Is sleeping with the arms extended above the head injurious to the heart or health?

REPLY.

No.

THEY DIFFER.

D. W. writes: What is the difference between a fissure and a fistula?

REPLY.

Fissure is merely a shallow crack in the lining membrane. Fistula follows an abscess. In it there is a fistulous track, something of a tube which opens at one or both ends.

REAL ESTATE CONTRACT.

Chicago, March 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Mrs. A. contracted to purchase a summer resort lot on the monthly payment plan four years ago. Conditions have changed, making it impossible for her to keep up the payments. Besides the lot is probably not worth the balance due. The real estate company claims they sold the contract to a finance company. 1. Can the finance company place a lien on a city bungalow owned by Mrs. A.? 2. If so, how can one find out whether or not there is a lien on the bungalow now? W. E.

1. Yes, by appropriate court proceedings.
2. The ordinary way for ascertaining the state of the title to real estate is to have the abstract brought down to date and examined by an attorney. Unless the contract contained a judgment clause the creditor could not have secured judgment without serving summons on the debtor.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MAKING A WILL.

Aledo, Ill., March 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Kindly advise the proper way to make a will. I want to leave my estate, real and personal, to a very dear friend of mine who is not a relative. If the friend should die before I do then I want to leave my estate, real and personal, to my nearest relatives. L. D.

We strongly advise you to employ an attorney in the drafting and execution of so important a document.

WATER LEAK.

Chicago, March 5.—[Friend of the People.]—What can be done about water pipe main between my home and my neighbor's. The water is continually running in the ground and has ruined the foundation of my home. I asked the renters to notify the landlord but get no results. C. P.

Investigation made by the water pipe extension division on the 20th failed to show underground leakage at this location. However, there were found two leaking closet tanks at 3147 and one leaky closet tank at 3149 on this street. The property owners were notified to make necessary repairs to same. Subsequent investigations show that repairs have been made and there is no further cause for complaint.

OSCAR E. HEWITT,
Commissioner of Public Works.

TERMINATING LEASE.

Joliet, Ill., March 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I own a farm which I have rented to the same party for ten years. Now I want to go back on it myself. I served a written notice on him last December to vacate by March 1. 2. What should be my next legal move if he fails to move then? E. R.

1. Your right to terminate would depend on the nature of the tenancy. We will assume that the tenancy was of such a character that you could terminate it on March 1.

2. If he does not move at the end of his term you should employ an attorney to sue for possession.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 10, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—While the government was proceeding to arm American ships to repel German submarines President Wilson issued a call today for an extra session of the Sixty-fifth congress, to assemble on April 16. These two steps are the most important of numerous developments of the day, indicating that the government is embarking upon a course which may lead to war between the United States and Germany. It became known that the administration is preparing a white book setting forth all of the evidence of German plotting against the United States, chiefly in the Latin-American countries, and of the activities of German agents in inciting acts of violence on American soil. These documents are to be published in the event that relations with Germany take a more serious turn. Lacking legal authority to establish general censorship, the administration appealed to the patriotism of the country's newspapers and cable companies to suppress publication and transmission of information about the movements of American merchant craft now to be armed against German submarines "The best news that readers can have," Secretary Daniels said in a formal statement to press representatives, "is that the government will protect the rights of Americans to the freedom of the seas. The publication of details can serve no good purpose and might jeopardize human life."

OTTAWA.—The British government is negotiating for the purchase of the entire 1917 wheat crop of Canada, it was announced here. Great Britain bought the Australian wheat crop last year, but as a steamer can make four voyages to Canada while making one to Australia it has been decided the conservation of tonnage makes it advisable to draw on the dominion for wheat needed by Great Britain, France and Italy.

PARIS.—France and her allies and neutral countries this year must economize or replace with other cereals from 34 to 38 per cent of their requirements of wheat, according to estimates made in the chamber of deputies by Victor Boret, president of the agricultural committee. The requirements of the allies of France and neutrals abroad are from 560,000,000 to 570,000,000 bushels. The surplus available from overseas countries is from 360,000,000 to 370,000,000 bushels, leaving a deficit for the entente allies and neutrals of from 190,000,000 to 216,000,000 bushels.

LONDON.—The British transport Mendi, carrying South African native laborers, was sunk after a collision on Feb. 21 and 625 persons lost their lives. Ten of the victims were Europeans. The collision occurred off the Isle of Wight.

WAR SUMMARY.—Paris reports that German positions on a front of 1,550 yards in Champagne were carried to a depth of 600 to 800 yards. The Russians are advancing through Persia and have reached the border of Mesopotamia. Petrograd admits the loss of mountain positions in northern Rumania to the Germans.

SANTIAGO.—Maj. Rigoberto Fernandez, leader of the Liberal forces, left Santiago last night with his troops and many civilians. Before leaving he liberated all political prisoners, including Rodrigues Fuentes, the former governor, and other officials. The city continues peaceful under the protection of American sailors. An engagement is reported to have occurred in the vicinity of San Luis and many combatants are said to have been killed and wounded.

HOBOKEN, N. J.—The Hudson county grand jury returned indictments against Hans Schwartz, Fritz Kolb, and a third man whose identity was not disclosed, charging them with having had high explosives in their possession. The secrecy maintained regarding the identity of the third man gave rise to reports that Schwartz and Kolb have given the state important information relative to the munitions explosions at Black Tom island and at the Kingsland, N. J., plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry company.

NEW YORK.—Four thousand persons attended a massmeeting held in Carnegie hall under the auspices of the Emergency Peace federation. They hissed England and applauded Germany. They shouted for peace at any price. They applauded a speaker who cried: "If we must arm, let it be to march on Washington and restore the government to the people."

NEW YORK.—The New York Life Insurance company is underwriting a $2,500,000 policy on the life of J. P. Morgan, head of the Morgan banking firm. The policy is taken out for personal reasons, a member of the family being the beneficiary, and is the largest of its kind ever written in this country.

EDUCATION.

Champaign, Ill., March 6.—Yesterday the entire world was electrified by the news of President Roosevelt's proclamation of a banking holiday for the United States. Yet today as I, a senior in the college of commerce of the University of Illinois, sat through an entire day of classes, not once was this history making question even mentioned, and three-quarters of those classes were business courses.

Possibly I am wrong and look for a little too much from our college professors when I expect them to discuss some current economic problem. Maybe their only purpose is to teach us the economic theories of Aristotle and Plato, the Greek philosophers living in the fourth and fifth centuries B. C., but to my way of thinking, of far greater importance is the discussion of such problems as are now confronting us. I expect to graduate this June and far more important and valuable to me would be a discussion of something more practical than ancient economic theories, the use of which has brought so much grief to this world during the last few years.

Why don't our college professors wake up to the fact that this is the twentieth century in which we are now living? Let them give us their ideas on current problems, provided they have any ideas. Even when these subjects are brought up for discussion by the students the instructors usually somehow or other manage to evade the question. Let them get up to date. DISGUSTED.

UNBATHED.

Chicago, March 5.—I am very grateful to you for publishing that letter concerning the closing of the city public bathhouses. These places are operated in the poorer sections of the city, in the foreign and mixed neighborhoods, and the people depend upon them. They are not operated for profit but as a health necessity. I have 6 children including 4 girls from 5 to 16 years old. They need the use of the baths. My wife and girls have not had a bath since the middle of February on account of the place closing. Whoever is responsible for that rotten act should be put out of the city service. We vote and pay taxes for that right, and we must have it. Please put this where that man who is the big boss will see it. PHILIP LOMBARDO.

THE OREGON NEGLECTED.

Chicago, March 2.—After listening Thursday afternoon to a very interesting broadcast over W-G-N, from the Chicago Historical society, I am asking the liberty of questioning what seems to me to be an error, or perhaps an oversight, on the part of the reviewer of the Spanish-American war.

The program especially dealt with the naval maneuver, etc., and in mentioning each battleship the name of the admiral, captain or commander was given; however, on mentioning the Oregon's achievements the reviewer failed entirely to mention Admiral Clark, and in my judgment it was a slight or neglect that should not have occurred.

JULIET E. HULL.

ON FATHER COUGHLIN.

Chicago, March 1.—I would suggest to Robert W. Shoemaker that he know what he is talking about before he bursts into print.

No sane, intelligent, and unprejudiced person would dare attack Father Coughlin's ideas. On the other hand, if legislators had the courage to carry out the good priest's "absurd" ideas we would find ourselves definitely on the way to prosperity! J. J. WEBER.

FOR SEXTON.

Chicago, March 6.—William H. Sexton for mayor! The thinking people of Chicago would approve such a choice. Mr. Sexton's record makes him a logical selection and I would like to see the TRIBUNE go on record for him.

KENNETH C. SMITH.

THE GREAT PARADOX.

Chicago, March 3.—After reading your editorial "The Great Paradox" I cannot say that I think much of it. In your customary way you have minimized the fact that President Herbert Hoover's administration went into office six months before the stock market debacle, which was the beginning of the greatest economic collapse this country has ever had. To guide the destinies of a nation the size of ours through an upheaval as severe as the present depression is no easy job.

President Hoover, during his whole administration, with only a nominal control of the senate and with the house of representatives Democratic for two years, has continuously, with great courage and unselfishness, fought to alleviate the distress of our citizens by the enactment of various emergency measures. He has done a service to his country that will go down in history as an achievement accomplished by few Presidents.

C. H. B.

PEGLER IN WASHINGTON.

Chicago, March 4.—It was a wise decision that assigned the versatile Westbrook Pegler to the Washington staff of THE TRIBUNE. Pegler not only has the analytical mind so necessary to the presentation of political ideas, but also has the ability to bring out the background forcibly and pungently.

The entire country [nation, states, counties and cities] is struggling as the result of an orgy of tax spending—wasteful, extravagant and downright graft—so that it is time the people were awakened to a realization of the true conditions confronting them. Nothing shows up these conditions like sarcasm, humor and ridicule. Your bombastic official can stand facts and say, what of it? But ridicule, never.

The people are to blame for a major part of our present distress because of their voting bond issues after bond issues, never realizing that these bonds and their accumulations would have to be met some day. All these bonds were joyfully approved by our politicians.

Business firms of recognized repute and wide influence in their respective fields have also contributed their share to the chaos that confronts us today. Not all the graft and grafting are political.

Keep Pegler, the inimitable, after the pork that is tucked away, both brazenly and carefully, in many appropriation bills. I chance the observation that Pegler's articles are among the first read. They are unique, truthful, forceful and most interestingly presented. Again, keep Pegler on the job, more power to him. W. H. WHIGAM.

IN JUSTICE TO MR. HOOVER.

South Bend, Ind., March 3.—While you are cooperating with the next Democratic speaker of the house of representatives in publishing the extravagance and cost to the taxpayers of President Hoover's periods of relaxation, which were fewer than any President for a very long time, don't you think you would have shown a spirit of fairness if you had mentioned the fact that the first thing Mr. Hoover did when he assumed the presidency was to save the taxpayers the cost of maintaining the Mayflower, a presidential luxury inaugurated by the other Roosevelt—and a voluntary return of a part of his presidential salary?

M. E. ROZELLE.

THE ENGINEER.

Evanston, March 5.—In today's TRIBUNE one of your readers, "Brainwave," suggests we build a city transportation system in the air like the sky ride at the fair. He further asks: "Where are our engineers with their trained minds?"

Why! We could shoot you home from work in a tube in less time than the elevator would take to get you up to your sky ride. Right now we engineers are sitting at home waiting for the rest of the world to catch up with the progress made in engineering.

Honor Cermak with March at Symphony

Myra Hess Is Soloist for Good Program.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In spite of there being no direct statement on the subject, there was a somewhat obvious implication that Mr. Stock had suddenly rearranged the Chicago Symphony orchestra program last night so as to include Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony in memory of Mayor Cermak. It is a work of high nobility, and it contains what is probably the stateliest and most impressive funeral march ever written. All its magnificence was reflected in the orchestra's performance.

The soloist was Myra Hess of London, an artist with a firm position in the first division of pianists. She appeared in two numbers, Mozart's Concerto in F, wherein she used her notes, and Franck's Variations Symphoniques, where she did not. The matter has only an academic interest.

Any one who is as fine a pianist as she can be freely permitted to play from the score or not, quite according to her own whim. For fineness is the secret of her playing. It seldom flashes; it always glows with the spirit of the composer who wrote down the notes. Miss Hess is a faithful student with an imaginative personality. Having ascertained what the composer was about, she recreates it with unfailing certainty and still more unfailing charm.

Mr. Stock's orchestral arrangement of Debussy's piano piece, "The Engulfed Cathedral," also found a place on the program, though it had been introduced only a short time before by the Civic orchestra under the baton of Eric DeLamarter. Mr. Stock has been known for years as one of the foremost orchestrators of the world, and there is a growing suspicion that he leads his fellows in his knowledge of orchestral color and the skill with which he uses it.

When the same pieces are finished this afternoon, it is expected that he and Dr. Allen D. Albert will tell the Friends of Music something of what has been determined about music for A Century of Progress. There will be a massmeeting for the purpose, and Mr. Stock and Dr. Albert have been preparing for it by visiting several pavilions on the exposition grounds in company with a pair of trumpeters and testing out acoustics and various other matters pertaining to concert giving.

Being Serious at Benefit Dinner Dance

Such serious subjects as young Mrs. W. Irving Osborne Jr. and Otto Madlener seem to be discussing as they sit out a dance at the recent Russian charity dinner dance. Mrs. Osborne is the former Elsa Armour and is the daughter of the A. Watson Armours. Mr. Madlener is one of the "w.k." Madlener twins, the other being William, who was treasurer for the party.

Ping-pong Fans Will Attend Tourney Play

Women Enter U. S. Meet for First Time.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TONIGHT the Lawrence Scudders, the Raymond Ashcrafts, the Charles Garlands, the Hunter Dicksons, and several hundred more well known ping-pong enthusiasts will gather around a big arena in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house to watch the first round of the national amateur ping-pong championships sponsored by the Interfraternity club in coöperation with the American Ping-pong association. The rest of the matches are to be played tomorrow and Sunday.

For the first time in a national tournament, a woman's championship is scheduled in addition to the men's singles and doubles. In this will be Mrs. John H. Noyes, winner of the Woman's Athletic club tourney; Miss Helen Ovenden, the western champion; Miss Anita Currey, the Missouri valley titleholder, and Miss Nina Berman, the eastern champion.

James Keeley to Give Party.

The hundred friends of James Keeley who received in yesterday's mail invitations from that popular widower immediately decided that life was becoming bright and cheerful again and that they would mark March 20 with red pencils on their calendars so that nothing would interfere with their being at the party.

Mr. Keeley is of English birth but certainly he has Irish wit and it is very evident in the invitations which read like this: "I am giving a party to myself on March twentieth at the bungalow on the roof of the Sherman hotel to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of my arrival in the United States. Will you come and help evaluate this half-century of so-called progress? Seven-thirty for eight o'clock. Black tie."

That "seven-thirty for eight o'clock" is a masterly touch, isn't it, in this day of fashionable tardiness when some dinner guests think nothing of being thirty minutes or even a full hour late? Apparently Mr. Keeley is reminding his guests that dinner will be at eight with cocktails at seven-thirty.

It was just fifty years ago that a sixteen year old lad decided to leave his native Whitechapel in London and emigrate to America and he still laughs at the remembrance of how a London booking agent sold him a ticket to Leavenworth, Kas.—there being just enough savings from the proceeds of blacking boots and selling newspapers to get a ticket to that far away place, which young "Jim" Keeley thought was some port of New York, like Hoboken, for instance.

Rides for Days on Crowded Train.

He discovered his mistake, however, when he rode for days and nights upon a crowded emigrant train. The story of how the young boy rose until he became the managing editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is known probably to all who will help him "evaluate this half century of so-called progress" and to all students of successful newspaper men's lives.

Mr. Keeley left the newspaper business some years ago and now is vice president of the Pullman company. Two of his three daughters, Dorothy, the eldest one, who is Mrs. Graham Aldis, and Ruth, the youngest, Mrs. Luther S. Hammond, live here, and the middle one, Peggy, Mrs. Cabot Brown, lives in San Francisco. She visited her father and sisters here last spring, but they are not expecting her to come again this spring, unfortunately. Mrs. Keeley died in France in 1927 while on a motor trip with Mrs. J. Morse Ely and Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, and two years ago Mr. Keeley gave the beautiful terrace and pavilion atop the Passavant hospital as a memorial to his wife. The former Gertrude Small entered newspaper work in Chicago in 1890, coming here from Boston. She reported the activities of women during the World's Fair for THE TRIBUNE and later was Sunday editor. She and Mr. Keeley were married in 1895 when he was city editor of the paper.

Play Club to Meet Tonight.

David Hulburd is keeping the name of the play a deep secret, but tonight he's going to arrive at the meeting of the Play club at Hulburd Johnston's home in State parkway with a copy of one of the most popular plays now on a Broadway stage. He will cast the play from among the members of the club and then direct the performance.

Every other Friday evening the Play club meets at a different member's home and a comedy or drama is cast and performed. But never is the name known beforehand to any one except the director. And the director, by way of explanation, is one of the members, chosen for three times running.

The Play club was formed a year ago this last winter by Mrs. Gail Borden, who was then Miss Betty Frey, and "Hal" Noble. Since then Mrs. Borden has dropped out, but the club has continued and added to its membership, among others, Charles R. Larrabee, Mr. and Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Valentine, Miss Eleanor McCormick, Miss Barbara Wendell, Miss Jane Valentine, Harlow Higinbotham, and John Pierce. Miss Jane Rowe is another member, but she will not be present this evening for she is still traveling about Europe with Mrs. Charlotte Picher Purcell.

Cortez Movie Only New One in Production

Paramount Starts Work on "Dead on Arrival."

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., March 9.—The only picture to be launched into production since the fast moving events of California's bank holiday ten days ago is Paramount's "Dead on Arrival," and the mere fact that one new film is being commenced has infused much pep into that studio. Ricardo Cortez, well and about after a seven weeks' siege of influenza and pneumonia, during which he lost 12 pounds, is a lively principal in "Dead on Arrival." Shirley Grey and Gloria Stuart add eye appeal. Johnny Hines, once headlined comic, has a bit in it. They are all tickled to death to be working—Miss Stuart particularly. She's getting half of her customary salary; while everybody else on the pay roll at her own studio—Universal—which rented her services to Paramount, is getting no money at all.

The day the banks shut, Norman Foster, who is Claudette Colbert's husband, dropped in at dawn from his individual living establishment to Claudette's ditto, to say good-by to the actress. He was going on an extended hunting trip into Mexico, and he ransacked Miss Colbert's quarters and took all the cash he could find. She's been dead broke and living on a dollar borrowed here and there ever since.

Lionel Atwill was bemoaning that he was on his last 65 cents when Atwill's butler said: "If I might be so bold, Mr. Atwill, I would be glad to let you have some cash, sir." The butler peeled off $150. Atwill nearly swooned. The butler's name is Andrew [Andy] Mactavish.

One dinner party outfit worn during the last week that was worthy of noting was that of Wera Engel's, new German star, who wore a black and white gown and had 24 chromium bracelets on her right arm.

Richard Arlen is beginning his tenth year as a contract player at Paramount, the oldest veteran on that studio's cast list. He began his tenth year by having his salary halved and said he was "glad of it, in the sense that all we contract players who are lucky enough to be drawing more money than the great number of studio employés with small incomes would be cheap sports if we tried to insist that the full salary terms of our contracts be lived up to in this crisis."

After a long illness featured at one time by her mother's legal effort to be appointed to conserve her effects, Gwen Lee is climbing back in films. In "Warrior's Husband," the comedy about amazons, Miss Lee and Esther Muir play two flirtatious lady soldiers who try to make a mash on two bachelors, causing the latter, played by James T. Mack and William Burress, to apply for police protection.

Spencer Tracy and Sally Eilers are cast for Fox's "Lady Cop." Sally plays the well bred, well fixed and well meaning welfare worker who takes a policewoman job in order to be closer to the problems of young girls, after which she finds that young men, represented in part by Tracy, a police officer who is unsympathetic to the lady copper's intentions, represent as much a problem as the girls do.

The auctioneer took in so little money at the first public sale of Esther Ralston's effects that a second auction was booked. One memento from Valentino for which Miss Ralston paid $2,000 brought only $200.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

DOUBLE ENTRY.

As the professor's hand reached for the knocker on Kay Martin's apartment door he heard a woman's voice say, "Listen, Clausen. I'm being watched. . . . I can't stay here, but the key's under the mat. Let yourself in and wait!"

Fordney heard the click of the telephone receiver as it was replaced, hurrying footsteps inside the apartment, and then silence. After listening a few seconds he pressed the buzzer. No response. Evidently the young lady had slipped out the back door!

Smiling to himself he lifted the corner of the mat under his feet, unlocked the door, replaced the key, and noiselessly entered.

Would he have time to make a thorough search? Was the person she had just talked with mixed up in the gang for whom he believed she fronted? If only he could find some definite clew that would prove his suspicions!

As he finished a hasty and futile search of her desk he heard some one bounding up the stairs! He had reached the landing! There, the buzzer! Fordney listened intently to the jingle of a key ring as a key was selected and inserted quickly in the lock. The door was opened by a typical gangster, who stopped dead in his tracks at sight of the professor.

"Who are you?" he demanded angrily.

"Get 'em up, young fellow, and answer the same yourself," retorted Fordney, whipping an automatic from his pocket.

"Why—I—I'm Bill Clausen," said the startled man, some of his bravado slipping from him.

"That's a lie," quietly returned the professor.

HOW DID FORDNEY KNOW THE MAN WAS NOT CLAUSEN?

[See solution on page 21.]

Richard Finnie to Talk to Geographic Society

Richard Finnie, who has participated in five Arctic expeditions and was a member of the first party to fly over the north magnetic pole, will speak at a meeting of the Geographic society of Chicago at 8:15 p. m. next Tuesday in Orchestra hall. The lecture will be illustrated by moving pictures of the Canadian arctic and subarctic regions.

Explorer to Talk on Trails of Congo at Field Museum

"Jungle Trails of the Congo" is the subject of a lecture, illustrated with motion pictures, to be given by Col. Charles Wellington Furlong, explorer and author, at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the James Simpson theater of the Field museum. The James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond Foundation will present a free program of three motion pictures for children at 10 and 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the James Simpson theater. Films to be shown are "Queen of the Waves," "Fathoms Deep," and "Cotton—from Seed to Cloth."

"Primitive Uses of Bark" is the subject of the guide lecture tour to be given at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the museum. Lemon Rinse Gives the Hair a Glossy Look

It's Good for Blondes and Brunettes.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

What do I think of lemon rinses for the hair, I am asked. And how do you use them. And is lemon rinse a bleach?

I like the lemon rinse a lot. It leaves the hair feeling clean and soft and a bit clearer of color, I think. The process is simple. Shampoo the hair thoroughly and use much rinsing water. As I have said before, the rinsing and the use of lots and lots of water is the best part of the shampoo.

Then have the strained juice of two lemons ready. Pour this over the hair directly, swishing the hair so that it all gets benefited. Or you may add the lemon juice to a bowl of water and swish head and hair around in it.

Some find it more agreeable to remove this lemon rinse with a final rinsing of clear warm water. You can tell from the first reaction to the final lemon rinse. It is claimed that the lemon juice removes every shadow of the filmy curd formed by soap. In any event it makes the hair feel awfully nice.

It used to be thought that this lemon rinse should be confined to blond or red hair. But I know brunettes who use it to give their hair that certain glint we all like. For hair that has a dead, brownish look it's especially good, too.

It isn't a bleach in the accepted sense of the word. The color of the hair isn't changed, but merely brightened. It's held, too, for the lemon rinse that it has a corrective effect on dandruff. It's good for those whose hair is oily.

An acquaintance tells me that she's been using a hand preparation made from lemon juice that she is keen about. It's equal parts glycerine and lemon juice. The lemon is recommended as a skin bleach, as you know, and for the hands it's good for removing stains and discolorations. The glycerine softens.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.] — Mrs. Roosevelt attended the opening of the 73d congress today, accompanied by Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr. of New York, wife of the new chairman of the federal farm board. Mrs. Morgenthau returned with Mrs. Roosevelt and lunched with her at the White House.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Claude A. Swanson were the guests of honor at dinner tonight of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ridley McLean, who had a company of twenty-four.

Former Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson left Washington this morning for Yeaman's Hall, near Charleston, S. C. They will return to Woodley, their home here, for the spring season.

Former Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, who are in New York for a time, will divide the spring season between their Washington and Long Island homes.

Former Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Doak left Washington yesterday for Florida to be guests of Charles Hartley at Naples for a month.

Mrs. Frank C. Letts of Chicago and Washington has taken the home of Capt. and Mrs. Russell Train at 3015 Q street for the spring season. She has with her for the spring her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Borden of Chicago, the latter formerly Miss Courtney Letts.

Two Families UnderOneRoof Results in Woe

Tolerance, Understanding Are Badly Needed.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

One of the livest problems and most difficult that is presented this department today involves the in-law situation. This problem is always with us, but of recent days the numbers afflicted have grown and grown, due, as you readily understand, to the necessary doubling up for reasons of economy. The married son, out of work, moves in with his wife's people, or with his own father and mother, or two sisters-in-law try to make a go of it together.

The latter situation seems far less fraught with difficulties than where the older generation is involved. All the traditional old hate rises and bubbles and seethes where there is a member of the older and one or two of the younger generation under a single roof.

The deep rooted antipathy so commonly established between in-laws of the relationship just named may never be routed out of human beings entirely. But surely a truce could be established for a year, two years, three or whatever period circumstances create the living-together situation. It isn't asking too much of an older woman to try to see how intensely the young pair must dislike not having their own little place. And, because the fault frequently is on the side of the younger woman, why can't she get down to understanding how difficult it must be for the older folk to have her and her husband around, upsetting their schedule of life?

Let's cite a case just presented. The young woman has been married only a year; her husband has been out of work three months. There are no funds whatever. Mother's home is the refuge. Mother never approved of the match, never liked the young man. Now she has him under her foot day and night.

Because mother doesn't throw her arms wide open to the pair the girl can't say mean enough things about and apparently to her parent. Frankly, we think mother darned decent to take the pair in, and appreciation is the least the girl could offer.

But on this live issue of the moment we wish you readers would give us the benefit of your experience. Some of you are managing it cleverly and well. How do you do it? Please tell us.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we give our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Are you burning a lot of coal these days—more than you think you should? Perhaps the inside of your hot water boiler or steam boiler is coated with black dust and soot. This is expensive stuff—for you—because it does not allow the full measure of the fire's heat to get to your water. Get a steel brush and a scraper on long handles and clean away all dust and soot. If no one in your faimly wants to do it, get a handy man in town, choose a time when the fire is low, close your check draft—the one between chimney and boiler, and open the smoke pipe damper. Deposits can be loosened with brush and pushed down with scraper into the fire and ash pit. Knock off hard patches. You will find you burn less fuel and get a hot fire more quickly.

Spring Ensemble of Paris Design for Young Girl

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The ensemble that is shown in the sketch today, is created, designed, and executed for the girl in her teens. So that there could be no mistake about it, Lucile Paray, who made this ensemble calls it "Little Girl." It is an outfit that can be worn both for dressy day time parties and for evening, and combines some of the leading fashion ideas for all spring fashions that come from Paris.

For one thing it has the fur trimmed cape as a wrap; and in Paris fur trimmed capes are to be much worn this coming spring. The cape of this ensemble is made of coral pink wool and is cut circular, and comes just to the elbows. It has a bateau neckline with a band cloth collar that ties in a bow in front, and just below this is a band of silver fox.

The blouse of the dress is made of the same coral pink wool as the cape, and is shown in the small sketch. It has a highish neckline achieved by a scarf that is tied in a loop and ends in front, and the very short sleeves are bordered with circular ruffles.

The skirt is extra high at the waist, reaching well above the belt in front, with a belt below. In back the skirt, which is made of dark blue wool comes up in a panel just to the neck, as you can see in the small sketch. A full panel that is shirred at the top is set in the front of the skirt at the hipline, and is topped by two bias bands that are crossed and stitched on to the skirt.

Prof. Hatfield Is Elected to Academy of Munich

Prof. James Taft Hatfield, head of the German department at Northwestern university, was notified yesterday by Hugo Simon, German consul general in Chicago, that he had been elected a corresponding honorary member of the Deutsche Akademie of Munich. Formal notification will be given Prof. Hatfield at a dinner next Wednesday night in the Edgewater Beach hotel. The professor has been a member of the Northwestern university faculty for forty-two years.

THE SPRING BUILDING URGE

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess, while marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville, meets a girl in a canoe who lives on a nearby island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman. She tells him, in confidence, that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. When Bart realizes he loves Alice he resolves to stay away from Folly island. He becomes engaged to Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcée. The Bayleys visit New York and Bart sees them. Ingralls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," has invited Alice to Wyattville. Bart tells Alice of his engagement. Alice and her mother are guests of the Warrens for the annual Wyattville flower show. Mrs. Burgess has the Bayleys in for tea. Alice sees a photograph of Trevor Burgess. Bart suspects his Aunt Augusta and Ingy Warren of stumbling on his father's secret and inviting the Bayleys to Wyattville to expose it. Mrs. Constance Farnham is included in the intrigue. Bart calls on her. He learns that Mrs. Bayley was married to her son, who was killed shortly after in an accident, and that Alice is his daughter. Alice and her mother leave Wyattville and Bart is unable to learn their whereabouts. Lora realizes Bart loves Alice. She visits a friend in New York.

INSTALLMENT XLVII.

HER MOTHER'S STORY.

Always generous with her friends' possessions, Lora had lent Elsie Pritchard's apartment to the Bayleys when they came in to town. Alice and her mother had looked so unhappy during the minute she had talked with them. Foolish for people to let themselves get that way, she thought, riding uptown. . . . Then she remembered her own pain, which had defeated her for a little while, until she had thrown it off with a scattered volley of wisecracks.

At the entrance of the apartment house she paused vaguely, afraid that the pain would come back again and spoil it all. Then she said: "I'm an experienced woman," which acted like a tonic. For only an experienced woman can see so far into the motives behind human love as Lora was seeing now, and in her own peculiar way.

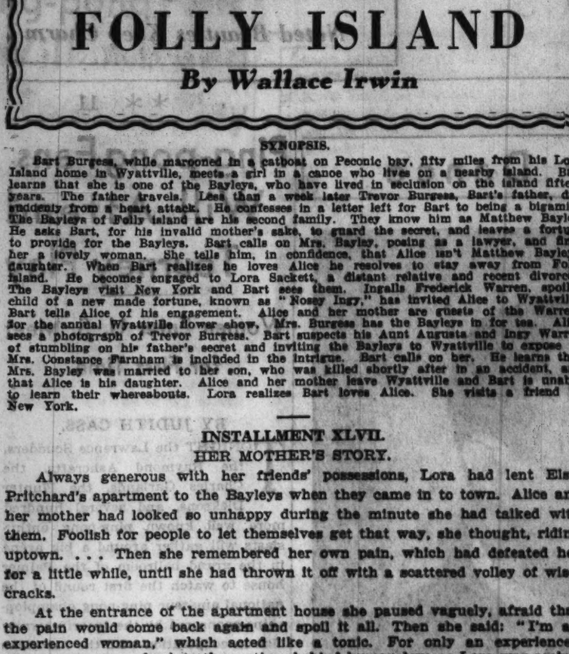
It had a bracing effect when she said to the elevator man: "Don't stand there like a Roxy usher. Miss Pritchard's apartment, please."

"But the young lady said——"

"We're twins. Now push on your car, and don't keep me waiting."

At Elsie's door she was going to use the other pass key, but reconsidered and rang the bell. A long wait, giving her time to be afraid that the Bayleys had gone, after all. But Alice had promised that she'd be here in the morning.

Then the door opened slowly, and the girl from Folly island stood there,



"I know all about you, my dear. Ingy told me." "O, how could he do a thing like that?" Her proud face very pale in the north light.

tall and straight and tragic. Lora had never thought that Alice could be pale; but now her skin was clear ivory, and her eyes were shade. pools.

"O," she said, "I'm glad you've come." She let her visitor in and closed the door.

Lora's first remark was characteristic. "Stupid, you haven't slept a wink, and you look like an angel. If I could do that I should worry about facials." They had gone into the big studio room and seated themselves under the north light. The soft illumination contrasted these two girls, who had been odd rivals up to now. Even Lora was embarrassed, wondering how to begin. And this was how:

"Darling, you don't know how that shade of brown becomes you. You ought to wear it more." Then abruptly, "I know all about you, my dear. Ingy told me."

"O, how could he do a thing like that?" Her proud face very pale in the north light. "We shouldn't have let him bring us to Wyattville. Bart told me not to come."

"Ingy's going to be good now," said Lora softly. "I've fixed him so he'll be nothing but."

Alice's eyes were saying: It's too late now.

Lora asked suddenly: "Where's your mother?"

"She's coming back from Philadelphia on the 11 o'clock train."

"Left you alone here all this time?"

"Yes. She had to go to Philadelphia right away. That's why she came in."

Lora pulled her little face into a puzzled frown.

Realization came to Lora and she cried: "Great Scotch! Hasn't she told you anything?"

"What can she tell me? The girl's color deepened suddenly; bright spots of shame were on her cheeks. Her white teeth gleamed as she spoke passionately: "I've kept away from her. I won't talk to her—say anything."

Lora sat huddled in the chair, dark eyes studying the short toe of a foolish reptilian shoe. She wasn't pert any more, only pathetic. Faintly she was considering the case. Alice hadn't talked to her mother. . . .

"Then how did you learn about Mrs. Farnham?" asked Lora.

"Mrs. Farnham?" Alice turned curiously. An instinct informed Lora that the girl was perfectly innocent of the truth which she must hear.

"I told you that Ingy's been talking," she began.

"About what?" Alice's eyes were again big with fear.

Lora's mouth was dry as dust, but she lit a cigaret to calm herself, then came back to her pert manner:

"Of course he ought to be spanked, and I made him realize it. Maybe you don't know about Ingy, the way the rest of us do here. He's had so little to do that he's taken it out in finding what's what about people, then sicking them on each other, just to enjoy the dog fight. But I'll cure him of that habit—and how."

"You mean——"

"Alice, isn't there some sort of deep sea hobo round your place called Capt. Chicken Passion?"

"Hen Love, you mean?"

"That's it. Had a big bust up with your mother, didn't he? Something about hush money."

"Hush money? For what?"

"To keep still about you. I'm sorry, my dear, if this is news, but it's the story that Ingy leaked this morning when I gave him the third degree. Ingy's a dear, if you get him right. But God made him nosey." She considered that point for a moment. "When he was wrecked on your desert island he hadn't any notion except to be himself—Casanova, I mean. But when this fish person sneaked round to him, sore as a boil, and offered, for a cash settlement, to spill the beans, Ingy stopped being Casanova and got to be Edgar Wallace. This clam digger person, you see, told Ingy plenty to keep him busy all summer."

"What did he tell?" Sharply.

"Your mother came to that island of yours, O, a long time ago. This fisher person found her in a little town near there with a young baby. Sounds like a movie, doesn't it? But your mother was looking for some sort of a job, didn't know how to get it, seemed awfully scared of something. Your fisherman friend knew of a houseboat that wasn't working that week, so he took her last $10 and planted her on Folly island. But it turned out that the houseboat belonged to a man named Bayley."

Because Lora had paused to inhale, Alice asked faintly: "What about him?"

"Mr. Bayley? I've got enough on my mind without worrying about him." Alice let out her breath sharply, then sat imperturbable, looking down at her twisted hands. "She must have been just too beautiful. But the only thing that interested the Love person was her baggage. He had a chance to look through it when he carried it over to your island. What he found I don't know. But he learned that she was a widow named Farnham, and that she came from Philadelphia."

Alice sat rigid, her face empty of all expression. She had closed her eyes; from her own eyes Lora felt the tears coming wet and hot. Impulsively she sprang up and gathered the younger girl in her arms. Pressing the dark head against her shoulder, Lora relinquished her program, which was to be calm and flip. Desperately she heard herself crying: "I'm so sorry I told you. I had to. It's because I've got something more to say—something more——"

"pounce" party at her home in State parkway. And it almost goes without saying that Durant Smith and Miss Betty Scriven will be among the guests, for they are two of the town's "pounce" champions. In fact it was Mr. Smith who introduced this variety of double solitaire a year ago this winter.

Signs of the times: The impressive row of Heidelberg beer mugs that decorated the mantel at the Cliff Dwellers has been removed. Their respective owners are preparing for more liquid times, and why not?

Hat Sale at Rummage Shop.

Mrs. Horace O. Wetmore, Mrs. David F. Taber, Mrs. Joseph M. Bricker, Miss Lydia Swift, and Miss Eleanor Litsinger will assist Mrs. Woodberry J. Agar Jr. and Miss Geraldine Swift today in selling spring hats at the White Elephant Rummage shop, thus benefitting the Children's Memorial hospital. "Cash only" will be the policy, but the bargains are wonderful, so Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, the efficient and enthusiastic publicity chairman, reports.

There won't be a more interested person in the audience tomorrow afternoon at the performance of "Outward Bound" by the Gargoyles of Lake Forest academy than Miss Lily Fleming, daughter of the Joseph B. Flemings. For Miss Fleming is going out to the academy for the midwinter festivities this week-end with "Andy" Reborl Jr. and he is to play the lead in the drama as Mrs. Midget. Others in the cast will include Fred Asher and Roger Crowe. The director is J. Hobart Tucker, who played in "Outward Bound" during his student days at Princeton.

Tonight there is to be a follies skit by the musical clubs, a takeoff on the academy faculty. In this show there will be, among others, Edward Fleer, Willard Armour White, Dale Shaffer, Kenneth Rich, Pierro Johnson, Norris Bokum Jr., Charles Compton, Leroy Kling Jr., William Donker, Charles Trent, Benjamin Bryan III., and George Heavernes.

Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe and Miss Jean Schweppe are at home after quite an extended holiday in the south.

The Francis Reynolds Dickinsons and their daughter, Alice May, left town the same day last week, but they boarded different trains. Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson went south for a short holiday of sunshine and ocean air and Miss Dickinson traveled down to New York for a week's visit with friends.

Grace Dewes Returns Home.

Miss Grace Dewes, daughter of Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes of Lincoln Park West, is back in town following her graduation in February from Bryn Mawr college. Miss Dewes' four year course was interrupted during the fall of 1929 when she made her bow to society. Miss Dorothy Dewes, the second of the three Dewes daughters, is in Baltimore for a short visit with Mrs. Dewes' mother, Mrs. Robert A. Wooldridge.

Mrs. William Burry Jr. and her son, William Burry III., are at home again after a six weeks' sojourn at the Pokake inn in Phoenix, Ariz.

The only girl from Chicago or the north shore to be elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Vassar college is Miss Roberta Scott, daughter of Mrs. Bruce Scott of Evanston. Besides distinguishing herself in studies, Miss Scott is good in athletics, being on the varsity hockey and the varsity basketball teams as well as her class teams.

Mrs. Edwin J. Mosser is opening her residence at 545 Stratford place this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock for a reception that the president and the board of directors of the Woman's symphony orchestra will give for Frank Mannheimer, who is to be the piano soloist with the orchestra Sunday afternoon at the Drake hotel.

Receiving will be Miss Ebba Sundstrom, conductor; Mrs. Arthur Byfield, president; Mrs. Wallace F. Grosvenor, Mrs. Louis M. Anderson, Mrs. Samuel Moist, and Mrs. Jerome G. Farrell. Pouring will be Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. William J. Dixon, Mrs. Gerhardt F. Meyne, and Mrs. Henry J. Vanzwoll.

Mrs. Henry Justin Smith and Mrs. John H. Weddell are sponsoring a lecture this evening at 8 o'clock in Mrs. Weddell's home at 834 Sheridan road. Silence, which will be given by Mrs. Katherine C. Ferguson. Mrs. Ferguson will speak on "Historic Gardens" and, with the aid of lantern slides, will take her listeners through the gardens of Italy, Spain, France, and Austria. Profits will go to the Emergency Relief fund.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith of Winnetka announce the marriage of their daughter Catherine to Marc Esterbrook Day of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Day may have left to make their home in Los Angeles.

Announcement has been made of the approaching marriage of Miss Clarabelle Salmon to the Rev. Howard S. Congdon, son of the Rev. and Mrs. James Edward Congdon of 6500 Harvard avenue. The wedding will take place on March 18 at 4 o'clock in the Northminster Presbyterian church in Evanston, of which the Rev. James E. Congdon Jr. is pastor. He will assist his father in performing the ceremony. After May 1 the Rev. and Mrs. Howard S. Congdon will be at home in Corning, Ia., where the bridegroom has been made minister of the First Presbyterian church.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: The Plot Thickens

GOOD MORNING, MISS WINKLE! WE'RE GOING TO NEED YOUR HELP SOME MORE IN TRACKING DOWN THE PERSON WHO SHOT HAL RICHARDS! WE LET MABEL GOOD GO - SHE PROVED A GOOD ALIBI !!
WELL, FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE — WHO COULD HAVE DONE IT, THEN ??
MAR. 10
YOU KNOW A MAN BY THE NAME OF RONNY PENN, DON'T YOU ?
WHY-ER-YES - SURE I DO, BUT RONNY IS A MILLIONAIRE AND A PERFECT GENTLEMAN!
WHEN DID YOU SEE RONNY PENN LAST?
NOW THAT YOU MENTION IT, I HAVEN'T SEEN MR. PENN SINCE THE DAY BEFORE HAL RICHARDS WAS SHOT !!!
WE'RE GOING OUT TO LOOK FOR HIM! IF WE NEED YOUR HELP WE'LL BE BACK!
I TRIED TO PHONE AND WARN RONNY ABOUT THE POLICE, BUT HE'S CHECKED OUT OF HIS HOTEL! I WONDER IF HE SHOT HAL? MAYBE HE DID IT TO SAVE ME FROM HAL'S FURY, WHEN I ACCUSED HAL OF TRAILING RONNY PENN TO TRY TO SEPARATE HIM FROM SOME OF HIS MILLIONS! ANYWAY, I'M GLAD I PUT A CRIMP IN THAT!

Cleveland Couple to Adopt Child Held at Ellis Island

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Burns Oakley of Cleveland, accompanied by an attorney, went to Ellis Island today and signed papers necessary to obtain the release of two year old Suzanna Karcher, whom she and her husband plan to adopt. The Oakleys, when in France recently, arranged for the child's adoption, but she was detained and sent to Ellis Island yesterday when she arrived in the care of a stewardess on the French liner Champlain because there were no papers to show that she would not actually become a public charge.

The New Hats Require Short Haircut Style

Soft Wave or Straight Top Fashions Needed.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Having invested a goodly sum of your best savings in hats you probably are struggling with the problem of haircuts. . . you simply can't wear these new irrational climbers without shearing some of the extra locks from your head. And since this is a millinery season when short shoppers suddenly gain four to five extra inches you may be sure these stratosphere hats are here to stay for awhile.

After the sometimes unflattering and complete exposure of the berets, these rather boxy affairs are a bit difficult to manage, but with understanding designers using soft pliable straws, squashable materials, and in some models an obliging brim that can be dipped into enticing becoming curves and boxy crowns that can be mashed and dented, folded and creased to suit the particular head and face it tops, much of the managing becomes a very individual problem.

But, with all the new hats, no matter how easily you can bend and change the first stiff outline, nearly every hat owner needs a new haircut . . . a haircut that clips all straggled ends, reduces a crop of curls to a minimum and keeps a sharp clean outline to the head.

Soft waves or else a straight flat sector of front hair is drawn back flatly on the tiptop of your skull, a good landing field for any of the new hats. . . the ends are curled loosely and are turned up from the back of the neck. This is the easiest and simplest as well as most becoming way of wearing both a new hat and a new spring coiffure. Other hair dressings are merely elaborations or more simplified versions of this smooth, well groomed first idea.

If you have resisted bangs in any size, shape or style, this is a good time to weaken for you can bang yourself with a good pair of shears, a triple mirror and an idle half hour. Just because a solid fringe of the things never appealed to you, it isn't any reason why you can't invent some new tricks of your own.

You can have a swirl of bangs like a tiny fan to cover a bad set of wrinkles . . . you can have an inch or so of bangs to fill in a shallow space . . . any way you fix them, they do, and will soften your facial contours. And if you keep them long enough it becomes an easy matter to brush them back, out of visibility, with the rest of your waves.

You are going to hear a lot about hair hoops . . . slender hoops of shell or gold or silver that will be worn like the pompadour combs of your childhood, those unforgetable combs that held your hair in place and out of your eyes. These 1933 hoops are merely the hoops, but you wear them the same way. In a few weeks you will be able to buy them in tortoise shell for daytime and the same idea in gold or silver bandeaux for evening, and jeweled creations for gala events.

Youthful Model Is Effective in Black and White

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

This youthful model is suitable for girls or women with rather full figures. The bodice has slenderizing lines, and the hips are smoothly fitted, while the skirt flares slightly. The sleeves are unusually pretty, and they, too, are slenderizing. Black rough silk crêpe with white silk crêpe for the collar will be smart.

The pattern, No. 3343, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Avoid Being Too Critical with Children

It Makes Them Distrust Their Abilities.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

He came back from the store with a package under one arm, some change rattling in his pocket, and a dubious look on his face.

"Look here, dad, I don't know whether you'll like what I got or not. I bet you'll bawl me out, but I had to decide on one of them. They didn't have any of the wrenches you told me to get. And I knew you were in a hurry. So, after I'd been to three stores I went back to old Jackson's and got the next best type of small wrench they had, and it cost a quarter more. Gosh, I didn't know whether you'd like it or not. Here."

His father took the wrench at this point and looked it over, doing some quick thinking the while. He remembered how "crabby" he'd been over a couple of similar ventures, and decided he'd been on the wrong tack. He swallowed hard, being devoted to nice tools, and said. "This is pretty good, son. I can make it do even if it won't grip as well as the other kind. And listen here—I've been overlooking the fact that you're 12 and have got a lot of good sense. After this you use your own judgment and I promise I won't bawl you out. Now come on, give me a hand out in the shed."

Some of the talk about helping small children to make their own decisions is very much out of place—and quite premature. But we must be careful as boys and girls "get along" not to criticize them too much when they act at their own discretion, or we shall get them into a state of chronic distrust of themselves.

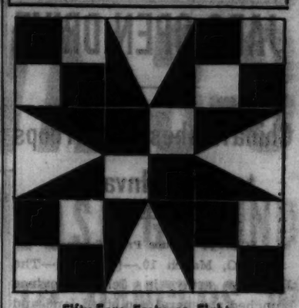
Denied Suffrage, Named Quilts in Patriotic Fervor



Fifty-Four Forty or Fight.

BY NANCY CABOT.

So far as I am able to tell, the above design in no way portrays the political battle waged in 1884 between Russia, England, and the United States over the Alaskan boundary. The event is clearly epitomized in the slogan, "Fifty-four Forty or Fight."

But as the spontaneous expression of patriotic American women it does honor to and commemorates that historic event. Women of the period had no effective outlet for their political opinions, since woman suffrage was not adopted until many years later.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Art Institute Will Show Five Masters During World's Fair

Five masters of the late 19th century, all of them leaders and innovators of modern painting, will be shown at the World's Fair exhibition of painting and sculpture at the Art institute this summer. The painters are the Dutch artist, Van Gogh, and the Frenchmen, Gauguin, Toulouse-Lautrec, Seurat and Henri Rousseau.

Toulouse-Lautrec was a painter of the underworld life of Paris. Among his canvases that will be hung at the institute are "The Dance at the Moulin de la Galette" and "At the Moulin Rouge." The exhibit of Gauguin's work will include thirteen colorful paintings of scenes at Tahiti and the Marquesas.

Since the Art institute is a fireproof building, many works of art will be loaned to it that could not otherwise be obtained, according to Robert Harshe, director. There will be no exhibition of art on A Century of Progress grounds.

Many of the visitors at the institute will be guests at various art conventions this summer. They will include meetings of the American Federation of Arts on June 8, 9, and 10, the American Association of Museums on June 12, 13, and 14, the Association of Art Museum Directors at the same time, and the College Art association three days later.

BATTLE RAGES ON THE GREAT WALL; JAPS OPEN DRIVE

China Rushes More Troops to Check Invasion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 10.—[Friday.]—The Japanese army in Jehol province launched a general combined land and air attack against the Chinese defenders this morning all along the Great Wall dividing Jehol from North China. The Japanese thus marked the army's Memorial day. Troops started moving early this morning, while planes took to the air shortly thereafter.

The object of the Japanese drive is to crush the remaining Chinese resistance to the Japanese invasion. The Chinese are rushing troops toward the Great Wall from the south, and a major battle is expected.

Several battles were reported at various points in Jehol yesterday. Chinese reports said the Japanese were driven back at Koupeikow pass, 65 miles northeast of Peiping. Japanese reports said the Chinese attack was repulsed. Fifty thousand Chinese were reported marching on Jehol City, which was captured by the Japanese last week.

Chiang Orders China to Fight.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PEIPING, March 9.—Launching of a vigorous counter offensive against the Japanese in Jehol province was ordered today by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese dictator and commander-in-chief of the Chinese national armies, while Chinese forces in Jehol reported advances toward Chengteh (Jehol City), capital of the province.

Reaching North China today after a hurried trip from Kiangsu province, where he had been battling communist armies, Gen. Chiang quickly took direction of the confused situation that has followed the defeat in Jehol of Marshal Chang Hseuh-liang's forces.

He spent eight hours in conference with Marshal Chang, whose resignation from the North China command he refused to accept, and with Acting Premier T. V. Soong and Gen. Ho Ying-ching, Chinese war minister.

Chang Says He Wants Action.

Marshal Chang told his commander that he resigned to be relieved of his post as northern commander so he could command a brigade in action against the Japanese instead of directing operations from Peiping.

"If I fail I won't come back alive," he said.

After this consultation, which took place in Gen Chiang's private car near the Marco Polo bridge, 15 miles south of Peiping, Chiang conferred with the powerful semi-independent northern leader, Gen. Yen Hsi-shan.

Then, apparently having obtained pledges of unity and general support, he ordered that 66,000 men be sent to undertake the counter offensive as soon as possible. Included in this force are three additional Nanking regular divisions, two being already in North China.

U. S. Protests Seizure of Trucks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 9.—Officials of the Ford Motor Export corporation here today confirmed that strong representations have been lodged with the Japanese government through Ambassador Grew at Tokio over the Japanese action in diverting a shipment of 100 heavy trucks and two touring cars destined for the Chinese army from Tientsin to Dairen, where the Japanese ship carrying the cargo now allegedly is detained by Japanese naval authorities.

When the shipment was placed aboard the Japanese ship Hara Maru on March 2 the Japanese attempted to hold the ship, but finally permitted it to sail. According to Japanese reports, the sailors aboard the ship finally compelled the captain to divert the vessel from Tientsin to Dairen, claiming the trucks were war materials intended for use against the Japanese army.

Chinese officials are incensed at the Japanese action and are demanding that the Ford company compel the Japanese to release the shipment. Since the trucks are consigned to the American company at Tientsin, the Chinese insist that title still rests with the Americans, hence it is up to them to obtain the release and make delivery in accordance with the contract.

Employment Offices Reopened.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, March 9.—Soviet employment offices, which were suddenly closed two years ago when Moscow decreed there was no longer any unemployment in Russia, have been reopened. The Moscow Trud (Labor) reports employment bureaus have been opened in all Russian cities to register thousands of government employés and workers discharged in the Kremlin's latest campaign against bureaucracy. More than 100,000 persons are idle in Moscow and the Leningrad Pravda reports an average of 6,000 persons are being discharged weekly in that city.

"Officials of the workers' and peasants' inspection commissariat have discovered enormous graft in the pension fund," says the Pravda. "Forty per cent of the government appropriations for invalids and Red army veterans have been absorbed by overhead expenses. Although twenty per cent of the personnel of the pension board was discharged by the inspectors another reduction is necessary.

War Against Bureaucrats.

"In his January speech Stalin declared war against the bureaucrats. Inspectors will discharge every person holding a government job who has connections with the declassed elements. The remnants of these dying classes must be exterminated in order to erect a strong and powerful dictatorship of the proletariat. The enormous expense of the government apparatus must be further reduced and the mass discharge of employés will be in vain unless every member of the former intelligent classes and bourgeoisie are eradicated."

The iron discipline which Stalin introduced into soviet industrial undertakings is not having the anticipated results, continues the paper. The fact that workers are no longer permitted to quit work and seek jobs in other undertakings or cities and are placed on the blacklist for inefficient work or for being absent has not improved production or lowered overhead costs.

Even the threat of depriving workers of their bread cards and banishment from the cities has proved ineffective.

"The latest statistics furnished by Leningrad industries reveals waste and spoiled materials amounted to 4.3 per cent in 1931 and increased to 5.2 per cent in 1932," the Pravda says. "The losses amounted last year to 27,102,000 rubles (about $13,551,000). Open sabotage has been noticed in many undertakings. In the Stalin factory during the first three months of last year standstills amounted to 1.1 per cent, or 29,515 hours of working time, and the production program was 94 per cent completed.

Production Decreases.

"After the introduction of the penalties above mentioned it was noticed that although standstills decreased to one-half of one per cent, still the production program was only finished by 77 per cent. In the Vulkan factory during the same period the standstills decreased from 4.5 per cent to 0.8 per cent but the production program decreased from 97.5 per cent to 46.2 per cent."

The Pravda believes the sharp fall of production in all Leningrad enterprises is due to unpair piece work conditions. Factory administrations, in order to decrease expenses, are accused of setting the normal day's output of the workers so high they are unable to earn extra money.

This has resulted in sabotage which has increased overhead costs and decreased production. The paper urges all factories to revise their agreements with the workers granting concessions in piecework. Workers caught loafing will be discharged and deprived of their bread cards, and those found harming machinery will be more severely punished.

AVIATION NOTES

Aided by a March wind from the northwest, a United Air Lines trimotored Ford transport, carrying ten passengers and 600 pounds of mail and express, yesterday flew 736 miles from Chicago to New York in four hours flat, an average speed of 183 miles an hour. The plane flew at 8,000 feet to take advantage of the tail wind. Westbound planes were delayed up to an hour by the headwind.

Air express carried by American Airways amounted to about twice as much during February as during the same month last year, L. D. Seymour, president of the system, announced yesterday.

Since the national banking holiday has been in effect about 73 per cent of passengers on United Air Lines have paid for their tickets in cash and the remainder by check. The passenger traffic has fallen only 25 per cent.

BATAVIA REFORM LEADER HELD FOR THEFT OF $17,000

Nicholas L. Johnson, 55, Long Dry Worker.

Nicholas L. Johnson, 55 years old, dry leader, reformer, and a leading citizen of Batavia for many years, was held to the Kane county grand jury yesterday by Justice W. A. Kaiser of Geneva, for the alleged embezzlement of more than $17,000 of the funds of the Batavia Savings and Building association. He was released in bond of $25,000 scheduled by his mother, Mrs. Anna Johnson of Batavia.

The investigation and arrest followed rumors that led to Johnson's resignation last month as secretary of the building and loan association and as vice president of the Batavia National bank.

Plans to Make Restitution.

Johnson is said to have admitted diverting funds of the building and loan association to his own use, and announced that he planned to make restitution.

Kane county officials said that the books of the private real estate, loan and mortgage business operated by Johnson would be subjected to careful scrutiny by auditors. Johnson, long a leader in county prohibition and law enforcement organizations, is said to have been one of the most admired and respected members of his community. He served as financial adviser to a great part of the community.

Treasurer of Church.

He is a trustee of Wheaton college and his wife is the daughter of the college president, H. A. Fischer. Johnson for years has been treasurer of the Batavia Congregational church, and is a former president of the Illinois Christian Endeavor union. He was the first man to be elected to the state legislature on the prohibition ticket from the 14th district.

Johnson was also instrumental in organizing the town of Frankfort, Mich., as a summer retreat for members of his church. He had served as president of the Batavia library board, and is one of the officials of the Johnson Manufacturing company of Batavia, makers of riveting machines.

Johnson, questioned yesterday in Geneva, refused to make a statement. John Geiss, president of the Batavia Savings and Building association, said that investors would not lose through the alleged embezzlement.

POLAND JAILS 15 STUDENTS; DEFIED NEW SCHOOL LAW

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, March 9.—Fifteen Warsaw university students were sentenced today to two months in prison for strike propaganda. They had distributed a leaflet condemning the new university status, saying it destroys the academic school's autonomy.

The new status was brought about by a law placing the state in control of all schools.

The rectors of five universities and eight other colleges resigned after the senate's vote on the law, but remained in office pending a decision by President Moscicki, who is also a professor and who was petitioned by a group of eminent colleagues to withhold signature of the new law.

JAPANESE ENVOY VISITS BIG 'WAR' FIRMS IN EUROPE

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 9.—Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's former delegate to the league of nations, returned to Paris today after a week's trip during which he visited big industrial plants and important industrialists in Germany, Holland, and Belgium. In Germany he visited the Krupp works at Essen and talked to the directors of Siemens and the great chemical combination of Ig Farbenindustrie. At The Hague he studied the efforts being made there to perfect the hydrogenation of coal into oil.

These activities have aroused keen interest here in view of the extensive purchases of raw commodities and war materials Japan is believed to be making in Europe. It is known, for instance, that the Japanese navy is short of oil, very little of which is produced in Japan and Manchuria. One high authority here said recently the Japanese navy had only enough oil to last eight months.

It is reported that the Japanese have placed a large order for bombing airplanes from Potez and Breguen. Another report says that Hotchkiss is filling heavy orders for machine guns, seventy-fives, and bullets and projectiles.

HAWKS' 3 GOALS IN 3D PERIOD TIE OTTAWA, 3-3

SOME FIND IT HARD TO TELL PUG FROM THUG

Pegler Claims There Is No Difference.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 9.—If I had to name offhand the greediest, the most arrogant, and most ungrateful group of citizens in our midst, I think I would take a chance on the professional prize fighters and their managers and let them be my entry. For all around selfishness, arrogance, and free style ingratitude from scratch, they are my champions.

I am sure the stockholders of Madison Square Garden, the Chicago Stadium, and the Detroit arena, among other temples of the kind, would back them heavily in any open competition. They would be almost certain to win under fair conditions because they would also have a tremendous advantage over any other group that I can think of at the moment in the important matter of dumb, thick, stupid ignorance.

Yes, looking over past performances I think my entry would take the title.

Special Permit to Exist.

You have to bear in mind in the first place that it is only by special permission from the public that they are allowed to exist at all. Up to the year 1920 in most of the states professional prize fighting and purse snatching were held to be morally and socially just about alike. There was constant unrest about this. The prize fighters and their kind claimed that their business was distinctly superior to purse snatching in several little ways. The purse snatchers were equally resentful.

For many years in many places prize fighting was a felonious trade and naturally, when the speakeasies began to multiply, it became the favorite sport of the boys engaged. They felt spiritually at home in the fight racket and naturally the racket rejoiced at the enlistment of the more sinister and notorious characters of the underworld.

Clear the Way for Al.

I am not quite certain which occasion was the brightest one in the modern history of pugilism, the night when Jack Dempsey, in person, as official host for the Garden corporation, ushered Al Capone down the aisle to a special supor-ringside seat for self and party of gorillas at the Sharkey-Stribling bout or that other night when the heavyweight championship runner-uptcy was decided in the Yankee stadium before a million dollars' worth of cash trade with three prison alumni among the attending seconds. A fourth alumnus, an old San Quentin boy, would have served in one of the corners but for a personal spat with one of the principals.

For this racket the stockholders of the big arenas spent millions of dollars, creating huge entertainment plants with elaborate trimmings and comforts. Instead of dressing in moldy dens under wooden stairs, the athletes had clubrooms in which to change their clothes. There were rubbing tables, expensive shower equipment, and all such fittings as they never had been used to.

Can't Keep Anything Clean.

Of course, it was not long until they had fouled up the walls with pencilled remarks and characteristic art and stolen all those parts of the plumbing and furniture which could be worked loose with the conventional cold chisel. In very little time their lovely dressing rooms were stockpens and so they have remained. It is useless to try to keep anything clean around the prize fight racket.

However, it is in their business dealings with the Garden firm and the few other big stores that the fighters and managers show their championship greed, arrogance and ingratitude, guided always by their dumb, thick, brutal stupidity. The big firms, which are soulless corporations, of course, gave them the greatest money making opportunities which the racket ever enjoyed. In some cases the big firms put up the money to buy the country legislators to vote for the boxing laws.

Invited to Prosper.

A racket which had always been a rodent activity, hiding in cellars, was invited to prosper in huge edifices in the presence of the most liberal spenders in the world. The fighters were given guaranteed sums and were paid off to the dollar every time. They could borrow money from the big firms when nobody else even in their own racket would trust them with the Rocky mountains. They found themselves quoted in the newspapers. They were not criminals slinking up alleys any more, but important somebodies. It was more than they could stand, being dumb, thick and stupid.

Nowadays, with the best facilities in the world for fighting and promotion, and needing money, the soulless corporations cannot induce the boys in the racket to fight enough bouts to decide the championships. It is not that the boys themselves are rich. Being so dumb, most of them have lost the money they made. But being such ingrates they do not wish to let the big stores make any money out of them. So they fight very little or not at all and spend most of their time trying to promote new promoters to buck the old ones who brought them up out of the slums and introduced them along the avenue.

LOSE GROUND TO RANGERS IN PLAYOFF FIGHT

Jenkins, Cook, and Burch Score.

Ottawa, March 9.—(AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks scored three goals in the third period tonight to tie the Ottawa Senators, 3 to 3, in the final game of the season between the two teams. The tie cost the Hawks ground in their fight for a playoff berth, as the New York Rangers defeated Detroit, stretching their lead over the Hawks to six points.

Cox and Weiland gave Ottawa a 2 to 0 lead with first and second period goals and Howe apparently settled it with a third period score. However, successive penalties to Burke, Rockburn, and Shields put Ottawa on the defensive, from which it could not emerge until the score was tied.

Hawks Get Going.

Chicago opened the third period with a spirited attack, but the Senators retaliated with their third goal, Howe driving in a rebound from Forslund's shot in 4:10.

The Hawks finally got their rally under way midway in the period. Jenkins got an uncovered shot from close in. Cook, McFadyen, and Thompson got assists. The time was 8:40. Howe, Forslund, and Touhey each missed chances during a scramble at the Chicago net and then Tommy Cook picked his way in alone to score the second Hawk goal. The time was 10 minutes.

Burch Ties Score.

Burch and Rockburn came to grips in front of the Ottawa net. Rockburn drew a major penalty and Burch a minor. When Burch came back the Hawks had six men to four. Burch scored the goal that tied the score during this period, taking a rebound from Gottselig's shot to score in 13:20.

The Senators, although shorthanded, were dangerous in the first few seconds of the overtime and the Hawks laid back to hold the tie. They shot the puck up the ice repeatedly.

MICHIGAN STARTS DRIVE FOR TRACK CROWN TONIGHT

Indoor Meet Brings Big Ten Stars to Midway.

Indiana, surprise winner last year of the first Big Ten track championship in Hoosier history, tonight undertakes a heroic effort to retain its title. Preliminaries in five, and possibly six, events of the 23d annual conference indoor meet will begin at the University of Chicago field house at 7:30 p. m., with more than one hundred picked athletes in action.

The finals in all ten events will be held, beginning at the same hour, tomorrow night, and if Indiana carries its championship safely back to Bloomington, the victory will be just as surprising as it was last year, and even more heroic.

Michigan Is Threat.

The Hoosiers will be faced with powerful opposition, particularly from Michigan, Illinois, and Ohio. Graduation has deprived them of their two principal point winners last year, Henry Brocksmith, who smashed both the one mile and two mile records in spectacular fashion within an hour, and Bryce Beecher, who tied for the high jump title and then vaulted till 11:30 p. m. to capture that event and give his team victory over Michigan by 5-6 of a point.

No comparable sophomores have risen to replace Brocksmith and Beecher, so that Coach E. C. Hayes must depend upon the efforts of his remaining veterans plus such acts of Providence as often mark track meets. Cast for hero rôles are Charles Hornbostel, only returning individual champion in the meet, who should win the 880 yard event easily but must also take second in the mile a few minutes earlier; and Ivan Fuqua, who must place in the dash and then win the 440 yard event, in which he placed third last year, just behind Capt. Charles De Baker of Michigan, his chief rival this year.

They Need Plenty Places.

Hornbostel holds the national collegiate 880 yard title, and this winter won both the New York A. C. half mile and the Millrose A. C. 1,000 meter races. Fuqua was a member of world's record Olympic 1,600 meter relay team.

Granted these points, plus a victory in the two mile run by Cliff Watson, who was second last year, and place points by Divich in the pole vault, Walsh in the high jump, Biddinger in the shot put, Neese in the two mile, and a fourth in the mile relay, Indiana can accumulate about 27 points, which probably will be just short of Michigan's total.

Events in which preliminaries will be run tonight are the 60 yard dash, the 70 yard high hurdles, the one mile relay, the 440 and 880 yard races, and possibly the one mile run. If enough entrants in the latter event are scratched Hornbostel will be spared the strain of qualifying in two events tonight.

Five Records Fall.

Last year's meet, preceding the Olympics, witnessed the fall of five records, the mile, two mile, 440, relay, and the shot put. All of these appear fairly safe this year but the dash, the hurdles, the 880, and high jump marks are seriously threatened. The Maroon fieldhouse has one of the fastest indoor tracks in the country and lends itself to record breaking in the running events.

PING-PONG STARS BEGIN PLAY FOR TITLES TONIGHT

The national ping-pong championship tournament will open tonight in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. Widely separated sections of the country will be represented in the matches which will be carried on simultaneously on eight tables. Players from New York, California, Wisconsin, Missouri, West Virginia, Michigan, and other states will vie for the title which is now held by Coleman Clark.

The committee in charge of the tournament, which is being sponsored by the Interfraternity club of Chicago, has arranged a series of feature matches to be played on two center courts. The ballroom has been equipped with raised bleachers from which the spectators will be able to command an unobstructed view of all tables.

Start Singles Tonight.

In this tournament the national women's ping-pong title will be decided for the first time. Tonight's program calls for two rounds of men's singles and two rounds of women's singles. Tomorrow afternoon the doubles competition will begin and the singles play will continue.

Among the most prominent women players of the Chicago district who will try for the national title are: Helen Ovenden, western champion; Flossie Bassler, city champion; Mrs. Katherine Hammond, Carol Herr, and Mrs. Frank Noyes. Mrs. Ethel Schneider, Missouri state champion, will carry the hopes of St. Louis; Anita Currey, Missouri valley champion, will represent Nebraska, and Mabel Etzweiler, Wisconsin. New York is sending Nina Berman.

Ranking Players Entered.

Among the men players who have arrived from the east are Jimmy Jacobson, W. C. Wells Jr., and George Bacon, ranked second, third, and fifth, respectively, in the national ratings. Abe Krahauer, runner-up to Coleman Clark in the championship tournament last year in New York, also will compete. He recently won the eastern title.

ROSENBLOOM TO FIGHT HEUSER FOR TITLE TONIGHT

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—Maxey Rosenbloom, who will defend his light heavyweight championship at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night against Adolph Heuser, has been made a 2 to 1 favorite.

The bout will be 15 rounds—or fewer—but probably 15. Maxey is not in the habit of knocking out tough boys, and Maxey is not in the habit of being knocked out. Each will weigh 175 or under, the title weight.

Goofs Take Advantage of Sox Regulars; Win, 10-6

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 9.—The White Sox regulars were embarrassed in a big way today when they engaged a Goof team in the first full length intra-camp game of the spring. The Goof team, made up of a few white hosed athletes and some unemployed youths from various sections of the country, beat the regulars, 10 to 6.

JACK HAYES.

It was rather annoying to see pitchers like Vic Frasier, Paul Gregory, and Chad Kimsey, all of whom are figured for heavy work this summer, knocked about like so many toy athletes. Each worked three innings. Frasier surrendered two runs, Gregory six and Kimsey two. This, however, shouldn't be taken too seriously. The pitchers naturally were cautious about hurting their arms, whereas the kid pitchers on the other side held nothing in reserve.

Haas Dropped to Second.

Contrary to the previously announced batting order, Manager Fonseca made a last minute switch. Mule Haas, who had been picked to lead off today, was dropped back to second place and Hayes was assigned the No. 1 post. Fonseca, Simmons, Kress, and Appling batted in that order behind Haas. Jimmy Dykes, who had been listed for second, was lowered to seventh, the spot he occupied while with the Athletics. Hayes got three hits, one a home run.

Simmons, who has been in camp only three days, played nine innings, but his bat wasn't particularly explosive. While Wilson, the lengthy rookie from Buffalo, was pitching for the Goofs, Simmons grounded out twice. He flied out in his only appearance against Sneligrove, a De Kalb, Ill., southpaw, who invited himself into camp. In the eighth inning, however, with rookie Boono pitching, Simmons hit one of his whistling singles through short.

In this same inning Hayes and Fonseca hit homers. Prior to this the Regulars had scored only one run, on singles by Hayes and Fonseca in the third. Rhyne's error in the ninth also helped the Regulars.

Semi-Pros Hit Homers.

Frasier allowed singles by Wilson and Rhyne and a double by Funk for two runs in the third. Two singles scored a run against Gregory in the fourth and in the fifth inning five runs were scored off him. Four of these resulted from a home run over the fence by Mathewson, a Pasadena semi-pro. Later on Pistonetti, another Pasadena boy, hit a home run off Kimsey with a man on base.

Besides the game, much work was accomplished. All the fat boys, who are numerous, had to do a lot of running. Among those wearing rubber shirts were Simmons, Haas, and Dykes.

Charles Foster, Veteran Sports Writer, Is Dead

HAVANA, March 9.—(AP)—Charles C. Foster, 61, veteran newspaperman and director of publicity for the Cuban American Jockey club, died today of heart disease. His widow and one son, Donald, survive.

A native of Lexington, Ind., Foster had served as sports writer or editor on newspapers in many parts of the United States. This morning he received a letter from James A. Farley, postmaster general, offering him employment in government press work at Washington.

DIRECTED RACE PUBLICITY.

For the last half dozen years Charles C. Foster served as director of publicity for the American Turf association race tracks in Chicago, Lincoln Fields, and Washington Park, and resided here except for the few months he put in each winter in Cuba. He was a lifelong friend of Col. Matt J. Winn, the manager of the Chicago tracks.

Mr. Foster came from Washington to Chicago. During the Wilson administration he was director of prisons in the District of Columbia and gained considerable fame from the prison reforms he put into effect.

Illinois Elects Hellmich 1934 Basketball Captain

Champaign, Ill., March 9.—[Special.]—Hudson S. Hellmich, center on the University of Illinois basketball team for two years, today was elected captain for next season. Hellmich's home is in St. Louis. He is a student in the college of commerce.

CUBS WONDER IF THERE'LL BE ANY EXHIBITION FANS

May Cancel Tour; Meet Giants Today.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 9.—The Chicago Cubs arrived here from their Catalina island training camp early this evening and tonight are wondering what is this scrip which is going to be issued in this state tomorrow morning.

This scrip idea has a heavy bearing on the training affairs of the Cubs other than in the matter of the personal expenditures of the players. The manner in which the customers are willing to pass scrip through ball park wickets will determine whether or not the Cubs will make their pilgrimage to San Francisco and Sacramento a week hence. If it is revealed that the customers hold on tight, the Cubs may stay right in Los Angeles until time to set out for Kansas City on the night of April 2.

The Cubs reach the second stage of their spring training in a game against the New York Giants tomorrow with a record of not having lost a minute's time because of adverse weather conditions. Not a drop of rain fell, day or night, while the lads were on Catalina island.

There's Too Much Tinning.

It cannot be said the squad is in perfect condition, especially as to the pitchers, several of whom are moaning about this or that. Bud Tinning's progress perhaps has been the least satisfactory. Counted upon to be a sensation in 1933, Bud reported weighing a few ounces under a ton and hasn't been able to shed the surplus as rapidly as expected.

One of the other behemoths, Pat Malone, is down to the lowest weight he's enjoyed since the joined the Cubs in 1927, 199 pounds. But Pat threw his arm after the ball in bearing down against the Giants last Saturday and plans to go to a specialist here to get his arm working again. Burleigh Grimes did no pitching on the island and the status of his comeback endeavor therefore is obscure. Charley Root, though complaining of no aches or pains, is said not to be as far along as usual at this time of year.

Henshaw Gets Chance.

Beryl Richmond and Carroll Yerkes, two personable left handed southern gentlemen, have shown the southern tendency to be tired a great deal of the time, according to certain Cub attachés, and their reported languor may mean that Roy Henshaw, late of the University of Chicago, will get in the National league record books a year or two earlier than expected.

The infield and outfield afford few surprises except in the probable retention of Stanley Hack as a utility third baseman. Many had supposed he would be dropped off at Wrigley field here, but Manager Grimm has indicated Stan again will be seen this season at Wrigley field, Chicago.

Frank Demaree will be the first spare outfielder. Vince Barton, Paul McCarron, and Mike Kreevich are still battling for the second spare job, with chances rating in that order.

Warneke will start against the Giants, but Manager Grimm has not decided on the other two workmen.

INTER CITY GOLDEN GLOVES TICKETS NOW ON SALE

Mail orders are now being accepted for the inter city bouts between Chicago and New York at Chicago Stadium March 29. Send your application to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

The prices are $1.10, $2.20 and $3.30.

This is the sixth inter city match. Chicago has won two, New York two and there has been one tie. You will see the best amateur fighters out of a field of 11,000 when the representatives of America's leading cities clash in the Stadium ring.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

WHAT! NO MONEY?

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 5.—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, you know it is a trite but once was a witty comeback when any one asked you why you didn't do something you wanted to do to reply, "But what will I use for money?" That expressed our condition yesterday when the radio broadcast of President Roosevelt's inauguration we were enjoying at a neighbor's cottage was interrupted by announcement of the bank moratorium.

At first we thought it was sort of a good joke, and maybe it will be a good joke by the time you get this letter, but just now it isn't so good a joke even if it's a joke at all. You see, Mrs. Wake and her friend, Mrs. Neal, thought I had plenty of currency. I did bring along what I thought was enough to carry around and the rest in travelers' checks.

But there had been a little drain in the meantime. On Friday I went out to Hialeah to improve the breed of thoroughbreds and in a mild way was unsuccessful. But the real havoc was when the chap who owns the cottage we're in called for his rent in advance. I offered him a check but he said if I didn't mind he'd like the currency because he didn't have much faith in banks. I thought, "O, the poor sap," so I borrowed some from Mrs. Wake and also gave him part of my roll, although the rent is real reasonable. Why, Arch, he wasn't a poor sap at all. He was a wise guy.

So I listened some more about the "new deal" and I got to thinking if this was a sample we better take an audit. So Mrs. Wake reported a cash balance of $5.64, less $2 she owed her friend for some sunburn lotion, and Mrs. N. had $3.82 besides the $2, and I had $9.13, which was pretty good for me considering I had improved the breed of thoroughbreds for cavalry remounts.

So we hurried downtown to do something about it, but the bank didn't care to take any checks except subject to collection, and what good would that do when there wouldn't be any collection on account of the moratorium.

Still this didn't worry so much, Arch, because we had those travelers' checks. So we went over to the office of the company and stood in line and everything was fine because they were paying. But when they came to the lady just ahead of me, the payer said "I'm sorry, madam, we've run out of cash, but there is nothing to worry about." And she said, "You should tell me. I wouldn't worry either if I had all your money and you had my checks. Besides, I'm on my way home by motor and haven't any more money."

Well, I was next and I thought I better be conservative, so I offered a $20 check to be cashed—the other lady, no, I don't mean that, I mean the lady, had tried to cash $100—but no go. He didn't have any more money on hand, so of course I didn't get any. He said they'd have more from Miami Monday, but how do I know that, when I thought the landlord was a poor sap for wanting currency because he had no confidence in banks.

So this morning, instead of visiting the pool where it costs 35 cents, we sat on the beach where the air and sunshine and all the usual sales talk stuff are free. Then instead of going out to dinner where we sometimes go, because the proprietor is from Indiana and I was Hoosier born, we stayed at home and feasted, or fasted, as you prefer, on the remains of some pre-war chicken we started on Friday.

I'm sure this chicken was pre-war, Arch, because the lady who sold it to us for 92 cents said to cook it 1½ hours and we cooked it two hours the first time and still it was pretty difficult to eat. The second day we cooked it two hours more, and again two hours today, and it really became pretty good when shredded on toast.

Now about this restaurant man from Indiana. I wish I knew the Hoosier distress signal like the fraternities and fraternal organizations have, although I know Ed Burns doesn't think much of distress signals because a fraternity brother once flashed one on him and then forgot to come back. But this is a time when Hoosiers should stick together, especially if one of them owns a restaurant.

Now, Arch, I wouldn't bother you with all this except I want you to know that if you receive a telegram collect to mail me a sawbuck, if you happen to have one; it's authentic. I'm not a bit worried—O no, can't you hear me whistling just like going by a graveyard—because I know the new deal will not allow this to continue long. As soon as I get over not being a bit worried about my finances I'll tell you about coming down, etc.

Regards to the gang,

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

Receiver Appointed for Louisville Baseball Club

Louisville, Ky., March 9.—(AP)—The Louisville Baseball club, a member of the American association since its organization in 1902, was placed in the hands of a receiver today. Thomas A. Barker, a local attorney, was named receiver and was expected to operate the club this season. The action followed failure of a local campaign to sell bonds to refinance the club.

CHICAGO OPENS DRILL TUESDAY FOR N. Y. BOUTS

Golden Gloves Climax at Stadium March 29.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's Golden Gloves champions rested yesterday preparatory to the training period which will lead to the sixth annual intercity fights with New York on March 29 at the Stadium. Wednesday night, before 15,200 fans, the eight best amateur boxers of the 5,000 who two months ago entered the Golden Gloves competition won 1933 honors.

Seven of the eight champions are from Chicago. The only exception is Johnny Baltzer of Davenport, Ia., who was awarded a close decision over Leonard Cohen of Trafton's gymnasium in the 112 pound class. Twenty-three cities in seven states competed in the Golden Gloves tournament and this would seem to promise that more of the champions would come from the sectional tournaments outside Chicago.

There were thirteen cities represented in the semi-finals. These cities were located in six states. While the other members of the Chicago squad largely are drawn from the out of town sectionals, the championships belong to Chicago.

Rothier Is Transplanted.

Henry Rothier, the welterweight champion, however, is transplanted. Last year Rothier won the lightweight title as a member of the Davenport, Ia., team. Rothier lost his intercity bout in New York, but he whipped the champion of Germany in the international show at Soldiers' field last summer. Since then Rothier has moved to Chicago.

The intercity squad of 25 boxers will report at the Illinois Athletic club, 112 South Michigan avenue, on Monday. They will be assigned rooms by John Behr, head coach of the Chicago team, and the training period will get under way Tuesday morning.

Here Is Team Roster.

Four boys have been chosen in the bantamweight class. Three were selected in each of the other weight divisions. The roster of the Chicago team follows:

112 POUNDS—Johnny Baltzer, Davenport; Leonard Cohen, Chicago; Walter Matthys, Chicago.

126 POUNDS—Leo Rodak, Chicago; George Van Der Heyden, South Bend; Irving Goldstein, Chicago.

135 POUNDS—Edward Ward, Chicago; Johnny Dobler, Cleveland; Keith Graves, Peoria.

147 POUNDS—Henry Rothier, Chicago; William Celebron, Chicago; King Wyatt, Fort Wayne, Ind.

160 POUNDS—Fred Caserio, Chicago; William Treest, Joliet; James Cummings, Chicago.

175 POUNDS—Max Marek, Chicago; Vernon Miller, Davenport; Harvey Diesch, Milwaukee.

HEAVYWEIGHT—John Pacek, Chicago; Jack Kranz, Gary; Adolph Wiater, Green Bay.

Changes may be made in this list. As a general rule, in previous years, it has been necessary to make substitutions for some of the alternates. Sixteen of these boys will fight against New York on March 29. By the rules of the inter-city competition, the eight Chicago champions will meet the eight Golden Gloves champions of New York. The best other eight boys, judged by their performance during the training period, will fight New York's seconds.

Intercity Score Tied.

The intercity score for five years now is tied. In 1928, the first year of Golden Gloves, New York and Chicago fought to a draw, 8 bouts to 8, at the Coliseum. New York won in 1929 at Madison Square Garden, 11 to 5. The following year at the Chicago Stadium, Chicago was the winner, 10 to 6.

In 1931, when the intercity matches were switched to Chicago because of a dispute with the Metropolitan association of the A. A. U. over out-of-town judges, Chicago ran up the record total of 13 victories to 3. Fred Caserio, who won the middleweight championship Wednesday night, was the captain of that team.

Chicago Loses in 1932.

Last year Chicago lost to New York, 12 to 4. Leo Rodak, present featherweight titleholder, the only boxer ever to win three titles, captained that losing team. Max Marek, who won his intercity bout as a middleweight, now is the 175 pound Chicago Golden Gloves champion. Vernon Miller, last year's light heavyweight titleholder, who was beaten by Marek Wednesday night, won his intercity fight. The other Chicago winners were Johnny Phagan, welterweight, who since has become a professional, and the secondary heavyweight, Gene Klopack.

New York Finals Monday.

New York's Golden Gloves finals will be held Monday night in Madison Square Garden. From all reports the Gotham amateurs will be represented by the greatest team since the inception of the tournament not excepting the meet last year. Chicago, however, in most of the weights also will have experienced contestants.

PEREZ, LOYOLA MEET SUNDAY IN K. OF C. FEATURE

With only two weeks remaining before the close of the preliminary round, important games in determining finalists will be played Sunday in all divisions of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league. The league will open its title play Thursday night, March 24, at the 132d Regiment armory, with three quintets from each division.

Perez vs. Loyola Hyde Park in the south section and Quigley vs. St. Philip Neri in the south end are among the feature contests for Sunday. The north side will have an old timers' game between Marquette and De Soto, while the west section will put on a similar affair, involving former stars of Hennepin and Setters against the veterans of Barry and Damen.

SMITTY—FIT TO BE TIED

Northwestern U. to Hold Boxing Meet March 21, 22

Boxing is to be revived as an intramural and intercollegiate sport at Northwestern university this spring. With most of the Big Ten schools organizing teams, the Wildcats plan to pick a squad for limited competition. The teams in all of the schools are being organized on a self-sustaining basis.

The impetus given to amateur boxing by THE TRIBUNE Golden Gloves has served to heighten interest in the sport on the Northwestern campus. Each year several Northwestern boxers have entered the Golden Gloves trials.

Introduction of a boxing class at Northwestern met with such an enthusiastic reception that Athletic Director K. L. Wilson has decided to hold an all-university boxing tournament March 21-22. In order to be eligible for the tournament a student must participate in at least six workouts under the supervision of Clare Bennett, boxing coach.

Winners in the tournament will represent the university in a dual meet with Wisconsin at Madison, March 28. A return match with the Badgers, together with matches with several other schools, is pending.

Al Kawal, football and basketball star, will be a candidate for the heavyweight position. Kawal won the Evanston heavyweight boxing championship last year. Another heavyweight aspirant is Roy Babich, freshman football player. He took part in the Golden Gloves sectional trials at Loyola.

Four light heavyweight wrestling matches will be presented tonight at Marigold Gardens. The pairings are: Zack Malkov vs. Ralph Ransone, Lou Talaber vs. George Kogut, Fred Kohler vs. Johnny Schoop, Stanley West vs. John Holda.

Samuel Abruscato, matchmaker of White City boxing shows, sustained five broken ribs in an automobile accident yesterday morning at Devon avenue and Sheridan road. Pep Kerwin, White City promoter, suffered minor bruises. Abruscato was taken to St. Francis hospital in Evanston, where he will remain for several days.

Kerwin announced that his show scheduled for Monday at White City will be held. Jackie Sharkey has canceled his match at the Coliseum next Wednesday against Sammy Levine to box Jackie Stewart at White City. The bout is set at eight rounds.

It was indicated last night that the card at the Coliseum next week will be called off. Johnny Pena and Varias Milling, principals in a ten round feature at the Coliseum, did no training yesterday.

King Tut left yesterday for San Francisco to fight Baby Marino there on March 22.

Two bouts at ten rounds and three at six will comprise the card at the Chicago Stadium on March 22. Billy Petrolle will meet Barney Ross in a ten round contest. The other will bring together Charley Retzlaff and Walter Cobb or Hans Birkie. Nick Scialaba, former international Golden Gloves bantamweight champion, who is fighting professional as Nick Scalba in New York, will appear in a six round match. So will Billy Gladstone.

An amateur card will be offered tomorrow at the Lincoln Turner hall, Diversey parkway and Sheffield avenue. Boxers from Cicero will meet boys from the German-American Boxing club. Augie Vollmer, Allen Asp, and Erich Schlachter are three of the German club's representatives.

The Holy Name society will present an amateur show at St. Alphonsus auditorium on March 31.

MOTZ PILES UP 142 POINTS TO LEAD AT LOYOLA

Harold Motz, sophomore center, led the Loyola university basketball team in scoring this season with a total of 142 points in 21 games. Three other regulars on the Rambler team, which won 14 out of 21 games, pressed Motz for scoring honors. James Hogan, junior guard, totaled 130; Capt. Don Cavanaugh, 125, and Eddie Connelly, 119.

Cavanaugh, Connelly, and Silvestri finished their college basketball careers against Wisconsin last Tuesday. The scoring records:

	B.	F.	P.	Pts.
Motz, C.	53	36	32	142
Hogan, g.	44	42	37	130
Cavanaugh, g.	47	31	24	125

Polo Teams End Drills for Tomorrow's Games

Final heavy workouts were taken yesterday by the four teams that will compete in the Metropolitan Polo league championships tomorrow night at the 124th Field Artillery armory, Cottage Grove avenue and 52d street. The double bill will bring into action two of the league leaders, the Sixth corps area in the senior division and the 124th Field Artillery Cardinals in the junior class. The Sixth corps area meets the Milwaukee Badgers, while the Cardinals play the South Shore Remounts of the 124th F. A. Cardinals.

Old Mike Hall Is Withdrawn from Racing

Miami, Fla., March 9.—[Special.]—The Robert M. Eastman estate's 9 year old Mike Hall, most illustrious son of Hourless and winner of more than $250,000, was scratched from the sixth race at Hialeah Park today and retired from the turf permanently.

Efforts to bring the great horse back to profitable racing were of no avail. Mike Hall's last great race was in 1931, when he won the Agua Caliente handicap. Few horses of this decade could run farther and faster than the aged gelding when he was at his top form. The value of the Agua Caliente handicap the year he won it was $100,000, now reduced to $50,000.

Bred by Chicagoan.

Mike Hall was bred by the late R. M. Eastman of Chicago, and he has run all of his races for the estate of the breeder and owner since Eastman's death. It was the late owner's intention to race Mike Hall in England, but his death ended that plan.

Mike Hall, being a gelding, can be of no value in retirement, except one of pride in his achievements on the turf. He has earned his rest.

Crap Shooter Wins Feature.

Crap Shooter won the Lake Worth purse, the feature race, by a length, carrying the colors of the William Adrian stable. E. R. Bradley's Blessed Event was second, and the Miami stable's Terrier third. Terrier was favorite at post time, but after being in close contention, faltered in the stretch.

S. Coucci kept Crap Shooter in front all the way after repeated challenges. The winner paid $5.40. He ran a mile in 1:37 flat, and is an eligible for the Florida Derby.

St. Bernard, St. Joseph to Play for Title

St. Joseph's heavyweight basketball team last night moved into the finals of the Catholic Youth organization tournament by trimming St. Elizabeth, 20 to 19, on a last minute basket by Paul Yoman, star guard.

St. Bernard, the other heavyweight team that goes into the finals, won another thrilling victory in defeating St. Agatha, 25 to 23, in the third overtime period.

Sacred Heart, last year's lightweight champion, is back in the finals again this year, having defeated St. Mary of the Lake, 29 to 25, last night at St. Michael's gym. St. Sylvester, the other lightweight team, moved into the finals by subduing St. Cecelia, 31 to 21.

In the girls' league Sacred Heart and St. Agatha went into the finals by defeating St. Mary's Training school and St. Agnes, respectively.

The finals of the tournament will be played Sunday afternoon at the 181st Regiment armory, 16th and Michigan, beginning at 2.

GAMES TODAY.
[At Loyola gymnasium.]
Leo vs. St. George, 3 p. m.
De Paul vs. St. Mel, 9 p. m.
St. Patrick vs. St. Rita, 10 p. m.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
[Lightweight.]
De Paul, 26; St. Michael, 25.

Three games will be played in the quarter final round for the Chicago Catholic High School league heavyweight basketball championship at Loyola university gymnasium tonight. The semi-finals will be held Tuesday night, while the finals are scheduled for March 17.

Leo, south section champion, will meet St. George of the North division in the opening game at 3 o'clock. De Paul will play St. Mel in the second contest and St. Patrick, west section winner, and St. Rita will clash in the third.

Lightweights Play Sunday.

The quarter final round in the lightweight division will be held Sunday night at De La Salle gymnasium. The survivors are St. George, St. Mel, Leo, De Paul, St. Philip, and Mount Carmel.

De Paul qualified for the title series by defeating St. Michael, 26 to 25, at St. George gymnasium yesterday. The victory gave De Paul second place in the north section. Arundel sank the winning basket in the final minutes.

Bowen to Play Lake View.

The final game for the Chicago Public High School league heavyweight championship, between Bowen and Lake View, will be played at Loyola gymnasium Tuesday afternoon. The date and site were selected yesterday. The place and date of the lightweight finals will be picked at a meeting tomorrow morning.

The lightweight finalists are Bowen, south section, and Roosevelt, north division. The Bowen lightweights are seeking their first title since 1917.

33D TOURNAMENT OF A. B. C. OPENED BY OHIO TEAMS

Columbus, O., March 9.—[Special.]—The 33d American Bowling Congress tournament opened in the Coliseum at the fair grounds here tonight. Gov. George White of Ohio, Mayor Henry Worley, and Charles E. Nixon, president of the Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the A. B. C. as 56 teams, made up of employes of the city and state, started the show, which will continue until April 10.

Thousands of flags adorn the building. There are 28 new alleys. Whether or not the financial problems of the country will affect the 1,597 teams entered from 20 states is a problem.

Chicago is sending the largest out-of-town delegation here. A total of 80 five-man teams, 204 sets of doubles, and 411 individuals are entered from the city and suburbs. Twelve Chicago lineups are scheduled for Friday, March 17, the date for the annual convention. Milwaukee will be represented by 13 teams, 45 sets of doubles, and 91 individuals.

CHICAGO MATCH BOWLING MEET STARTS TONIGHT

Four bowlers—George Morrison, Lee Calloway, Stewart Watson and Lloyd Strouse—will start the first block of six games tonight at the Randolph alleys, 29 West Randolph street, in the final eliminations to decide the Chicago match bowling champion. They will bowl a total of 36 games, and the one having the greatest number of pins will be pitted against the eastern champion in a 60 game match. The four bowlers will start play tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Pairings follow:

Strouse vs. Morrison.
Watson vs. Calloway.

Tomorrow night at the same hour they will bowl as follows:

Morrison vs. Watson.
Calloway vs. Strouse.

Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock they will be matched as follows:

Calloway vs. Morrison.
Strouse vs. Watson.

Seminole Has His Own Home Making Ideas

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Seminole Reservation, Fla., March 9.—The Seminole makes a house that is unlike anything we have ever seen in North America or along the Amazon in Brazil where the Indians adapt their dwellings to somewhat the same climate that prevails in southern Florida.

The Seminoles make their hot weather houses on a platform three feet from the ground. The small logs which go into it are smoothed off flat with an axe. Over this platform they construct a roof with overhanging eaves. This is thatched with palmettos and weighted down with logs tied together and slung across the ridge. In a large house, say 12 by 25 feet, the platform may be made up of several sections separated by narrow alleys. If there are three sections, two of them are used for sleeping and the third as a dining room. The Seminole does not stack up palmetto leaves for a bed like many of us outdoor fans construct a bough bed with balsam tips.

No Soft Bedding.

At Whitney Cypress camp and at Guava camp we noticed a deer skin or a piece of old canvas stretched out on the hard wood floor. On this the Indian goes to bed. But soft bedding, although available in the wilderness, is not used.

When we arrived at John Osceola's camp we found quite a collection of these plain thatched houses. The Indians build one or two extra shelters for general purposes. For example, we found one well made shelter being used as a sort of workshop. In it raccoon skins were drying.

The suitability of these Seminole houses with their high platforms is quite obvious. In hot weather they are cool. We saw one house in John Osceola's camp which had a combination thatch and canvas wall to keep out the driving rain.

Smokes Start Visit.

At Whitey Cypress' temporary camp we found the whole family at home—father, mother, and three daughters and two sons. All except Whitey, a famous hunter among the Seminoles, were sitting in a main shelter in their gaudiest garments. On a line near the house a fresh deer skin swung in the breeze. A big pot of sofskee [the Indian name for hominy grits boiled as thin gruel] was in evidence. When we passed out the cigarets, Whitey, his wife, the three daughters, including Che-na-

BULGARIA GOES OFF MONEY AND ON BARTER BASIS

Seeks Agreements with Other Nations.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 21.—[By Mail.]—Restrictions on the buying and selling of foreign exchange are now so rigidly enforced in Bulgaria that the government has been obliged recently to enter into negotiations for trading on the barter system.

For a long time the National bank of Bulgaria has been the only institution allowed to deal in exchange. If a hotel accepts foreign money in payment of a bill from a traveler, even at current rates, it is liable to a fine. If the National bank is closed, as it is on holidays and week-ends, there is only one place in Sofia where Bulgarian money can be obtained, and that is at the railway station, where a small office is maintained and opened an hour in the morning and an hour in the afternoon at train time.

Boost Gold Holdings.

These drastic measures, however, have served to protect the national currency, it is claimed, even at the expense of trade, and at the end of last year the Bulgarian National bank claimed a gold coverage of a little more than 35 per cent.

Negotiations for the adoption of the straight barter of goods without using the medium of money except as a method of evaluation are on between Bulgaria and Germany. The Bulgarian government recently was considering a proposal from a large German consortium for the supply of material, rolling stock and locomotives for the Bulgarian state railways. In return the Germans would take over last year's tobacco crop, which remains unsold, and place it on the consuming markets.

Negotiations are also proceeding, it is reported, on similar lines for the exchange of Bulgarian produce for other necessities in manufactured goods.

Germany Takes Lead.

The Germans, in fact, are taking the lead in introducing the barter system in other sections of the Balkans to get around the restrictions on transfers of money, restrictions in restraint of trade but necessary in order to protect the currency since the British threw the monkey wrench into the gold standard.

Thus in Greece recently also German business men were negotiating with the Greek government to take over Greek crops and pay for them with services. One project of this kind actually involved an American company, the Ulem company of New York, which had done extensive public works for Greece, such as the Athens water supply system.

The Greek government had reduced greatly its payments to the Ulem company for a three years' contract for land drainage in Macedonia so that the company could hardly complete the work with profit. The Germans offered to take over this contract and take out renumeration for their services in Greek products, such as tobacco.

Bulgaria Staggers under Debt.

Bulgaria staggers under a heavy public debt and recently Premier Muchanoff was in hot water with his parliamentary opposition over reports that the government was negotiating for putting the government finances under foreign control, possibly under the league of nations, which desired to protect loans which the league had sponsored.

The Bulgarian foreign debt stands at around $150,000,000 and the domestic debt at around $200,000,000. It is estimated that the debt service takes 28 per cent of the budget. The foreign debt includes prewar loans, the 1926 7½ per cent refugee loan, the 7½ per cent stabilization loan, the reparations debt, and other foreign obligations.

In state finances the position is bad. The state budget for the fiscal year 1931-'32 closed with a deficit of 891,000,000 leva; receipts totaled 6,475,000,000 leva and expenditures 7,366,000,000 leva.

The heavy drop in revenue from the export trade is increasing the existing difficulties of the government and the collection of taxes is becoming more and more difficult. Internally also, because of the continued low price of cereals, the peasants have held back in putting their produce on the local markets.

Not Affected Much by Slump.

Still, because of the agricultural character of the country, the world depression, comparatively speaking, has not affected the Bulgarian population to the same extent that it has countries where industries are developed. The Bulgarian peasant is simple and frugal and has a standard of living which makes him a very meager consumer. The proportions of this may be seen from the estimates that in 1926 of the total population of the country of 5,478,740, those engaged in agriculture and cattle raising comprised households totaling 4,067,037 people.

So, while there is no aggravated distress in Bulgaria directly because of the depression, and probably no hungry people, there is a growing concern with what to do with the country's farm produce. Bulgarian business men point to the possibilities of a mutually helpful economic alliance with Greece. The Bulgarians are producers; the Greeks are shippers and merchants. But many political and minority problems stand in the way of the smooth working of such an arrangement.

North Chicago Bank Bandit Sentenced to Joliet Prison

Joseph Beck, 20 years old, 5407 South Justine street, one of the bandits who held up the Lake County State bank in North Chicago last September, was sentenced to one to fourteen years in Joliet penitentiary yesterday by Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady at Waukegan, following his plea of guilty to a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. The charge grew out of the shooting of Mrs. Monetta Steffen, a bookkeeper, during the robbery. Beck escaped from the Lake county jail last November, but surrendered a month ago.

S. M. STEIN OF CHICAGO DIES IN LOS ANGELES

Samuel M. Stein, president of A. Stein & Co., garter manufacturers, died late Wednesday night in the Ambassador hotel at Los Angeles, according to word received yesterday at the Chicago headquarters of the company. Mr. Stein, who was 61 years old, died of heart disease.

SAMUEL M. STEIN.

Mr. Stein was born in Germany. He came to this country when he was 15 years old, and three years later joined the company which had been founded, with $300 in capital, by his elder brother, Albert, and two other brothers. Mr. Stein was active in charitable and civic affairs.

He and his wife, Mrs. Minette Stein, were in Los Angeles on a pleasure trip at the time of his death. Their Chicago home is at 5430 South Shore drive. A son, Albert M. Stein, and a daughter, Mrs. Morton G. Schamberg of Highland Park, survive. Funeral plans will be made later.

MRS. EMMA RING IRWIN, 64 years old, died yesterday after six months illness in her home at 6900 Euclid avenue. She was the wife of John Irwin, member of Irwin Brothers, meat packers, and was a native of Chicago. Two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Jamieson of Chicago and Mrs. Elizabeth Englemann of Santa Ana, Cal., survive. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow from the home, followed by burial in Oakwoods cemetery.

MRS. MARIE MOULTON HOPKINS, wife of Dr. John Henry Hopkins, rector emeritus of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, 56th street and Blackstone avenue, died yesterday at Grand Isle, Vt. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at Burlington, Vt., with burial there. A requiem will be celebrated here at the Church of the Redeemer at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Three years ago Dr. Hopkins retired and with his wife moved to their home in Vermont.

MRS. ANNA C. HOWE, 65 years old, died yesterday in her home at 1319 North Lockwood avenue, of heart disease. She was the widow of M. J. Howe, a contractor, who died in 1930. A son, John J. Howe of Detroit, survives. Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow in St. Peter Canisius' Roman Catholic church, 5035 West North avenue. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

CALVIN DICKEY, a Chicago real estate broker for the last 43 years, died yesterday in his home at 547 Arlington place. He was 70 years old. He was graduated from Yale in 1886. He was a director of the Cook County Real Estate board. The widow, Mrs. Kate H. Dickey, survives. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 3900 Lincoln avenue. Burial will be at Newark, O.

Hero of Independence War Dies; Cuba in Mourning

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, March 9.—Gen. Eugenio Sanchez Agramonte, a leader in the independence war of 1898, died at his home today of heart disease. President Machado decreed three days of national mourning. Gen. Agramonte was the senate's president from 1909-'12 and was secretary of agriculture under President Mario G. Menocal from 1912-'20.

BENNETT GRIFFIN, RISK BROKER AND MUSICIAN, DIES

Bennett Griffin, insurance broker and one of the founders of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, died early yesterday in Passavant hospital.

Mr. Griffin was senior partner of Griffin, Ingram & Pfaff, insurance brokers, with offices in the Lytton building, and had been engaged in the insurance business in Chicago for the last 30 years. Before that he was a newspaper advertising man, and for a time manager of the Theodore Thomas orchestra.

With George Lytton and others he organized the business men's orchestra, an amateur group which gives yearly concerts, in 1918. Mr. Griffin was vice president and first violinist of the orchestra.

His widow, Mrs. Caroline Bowes Griffin of the Drake hotel, and a brother, Vergil C. Griffin of Mobile Ala., survive. Funeral services will be held at Graceland chapel at 2 p. m. today, with burial in Graceland cemetery.

WEST VIRGINIA HAS 70 MILLION CIVIL WAR BILL

Charleston, W. Va., March 9.—[Special.]—The West Virginia legislature has decided to bill the United States government for a matter of $70,000,000, more or less.

The reason, according to a concurrent resolution adopted today by the senate following its adoption by the house, is the state's part "in preventing the spread of the civil war over a far flung battle front and the state's sacrifices in man power and resources."

The resolution calls upon the federal government to pay West Virginia 13 million, and 5 per cent interest, since the war, which makes the total $70,000,000.

Notice of the action is to be sent to West Virginia's representatives in congress who will be asked to consider presenting the bill.

The state legislature, following receipt of information that the state is $4,000,000 behind in its last budget, is about to go into special session to consider economies.

Shutdown Is Threatened for New York's Theaters

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—The city's theaters were threatened with a shutdown today when the musicians, through Edward Canavan, spokesman for local 802 of their union, announced that the organization will refuse the offer of the managers to operate the playhouses on a cooperative basis. The managers have insisted that, under the present contract with the unions, they cannot continue open. A meeting of the stage hands' union, over the same situation, is scheduled for tomorrow, and closing is threatened next week if they take the same position as the musicians' organization.

Two Bishops Appointed for Philippine Islands

VATICAN CITY, March 9.—(AP)—Mgr. Luigi de Rosario was appointed bishop of Zamboanga, Philippine Islands today. Msgr. James Hayes was appointed bishop of Cagayan, in the Philippines. Msgr. Hayes, a Jesuit from the New York diocese, is now at San Jose college, Manila.

THOUSANDS IN LAST TRIBUTE TO WALSH; BURIED AT HELENA

Helena, Mont., March 9.—(AP)—In a little valley emerging from historic Last Chance gulch and stretching before white topped mountains, United States Senator Thomas J. Walsh was buried here today.

Thousands who had followed his climb from the humble beginning as a young lawyer to outstanding rank in the bar of the nation and through a score of years as senator paid homage to his memory in St. Helena cathedral and about the state's capitol today.

The body arrived here by train early today from the national capital. It was taken to the capitol to lie in state.

From the state building it was removed to the cathedral for solemn requiem mass, celebrated by the Rev. James G. Tougas, pastor of the St. Helena parish, for absolution by Bishop Edwin V. O'Hara of Great Falls and a eulogy by the senator's old friend, Monsignor Victor Day, administrator of the Helena diocese.

During the services hundreds of citizens, unable to gain admission, clustered on the terraces and sidewalks surrounding the beautiful structure which the late senator helped create.

As the throngs pressed toward the street, the body was taken to its final resting place in Resurrection cemetery, there to lie beside the body of the senator's first wife, Elinor McClements Walsh, who died in 1917.

YACHT CARMA TO SAIL TODAY ON LONG VOYAGE

San Pedro, Cal., March 9.—[Special.]—The yacht Carma, aboard which Capt. Walter Wanderwell was mysteriously slain, will sail tomorrow, with members of the Hollywood film colony aboard, bound first for Mazatlan, Mexico, and later for the south seas.

The Carma has sailed under the French, British, and American flags. Capt. Wanderwell purchased it after it had been impounded as a rum runner. He was slain while preparing to take a company of men and women to the south seas. A former member of one of his crews was tried for his murder, but acquitted.

The yacht is under charter to Frank Bronson, who intends to obtain wild animals for zoos, among other activities, in the course of an eighteen months' cruise.

Among the members of the expedition will be Miss Mickey Hall, sister of Mrs. Aloha Wanderwell, widow of the slain captain.

Moyle, Trans-Pacific Flyer, Is Held for Nonsupport

Los Angeles, Cal., March 9.—[Special.]—Don Moyle, trans-Pacific flyer, who made a spectacular landing in Washington, D. C., two years ago, without landing gear, was arrested in Phoenix, Ariz., on complaint of his first wife, now Edna Becker, that he had failed to provide. Moyle told Phoenix police he would fight extradition to Los Angeles. After coming back from his flight in Japan he served a day jail sentence here on a charge of driving a motor while intoxicated, and is on three years' probation.

DR. G. D. STEWART, NOTED SURGEON, DIES IN EAST

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—Dr. George David Stewart, one of the foremost surgeons in America, who had served as president of the American College of Surgeons and was professor of surgery at the New York university and Bellevue Hospital Medical college, died tonight. He was in his seventy-first year.

Dr. Stewart was the intimate friend and personal physician of the late George F. Baker, banker and philanthropist. Mr. Baker in 1929 made a gift of $1,000,000 to the New York university, directing that the fund be known as the George David Stewart endowment for surgery, in honor of Dr. Stewart.

DOES RHEUMATIC AGONY DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

You cannot hope to get lasting relief from cruel, crippling rheumatic aches and pains if you are a slave to laxative drugs.

Medical authorities make no secret of the fact that often sluggish bowels contribute the poisons and acid conditions which result in painful, swollen, inflamed limbs and joints. You must stop these poisons at the source.

The Cream of Nujol treatment does this at a cost of only a few cents a day. Doctors specially recommend this new form of Nujol treatment for those suffering from rheumatic conditions. Cream of Nujol lubricates laxative-dried bowels, gives them new elasticity and activity, so that poisonous wastes are thrown off daily by natural peristaltic action. The new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment will make you regular as clockwork and will not interfere with your work or your play. Moreover, it is delicious and easy to take. Get Cream of Nujol tonight at any drug counter.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1933.

PACKERS SURE CITY WILL HAVE PLENTY OF MEAT

Rush of Live Stock Lowers Prices.

There is assurance of an adequate supply of meat for Chicago and the suburbs in the current volume of live stock receipts being handled at the stock yards, according to leading packing houses, although at least one of the principal outside western points has decided to remain closed until Monday.

The financial crisis earlier in the week threatened to shut off almost completely the movement of meat animals, but with the banks scheduled to reopen, farmers are rushing stock in, being anxious to have some of the high money of the last few days marked up to their accounts.

Yesterday's slaughter of cattle, hogs and sheep amounted to 41,000 head, which was fully up to the average Thursday supply. This total is equivalent to approximately 8,000,000 pounds of beef, pork and lamb.

Available supplies were more than ample for all immediate needs, and prices of most live stock fell away rapidly. Hogs dropped 15 to 50 cents more, the bulk selling 50 to 60 cents under the high point Tuesday. However, sales still were 20 to 30 cents above the low point of last week.

Top Hog Price $3.85.

Top hogs dropped to $3.85, the lowest price since Thursday, last week. The average at $3.65 showed a 20 cent decline, but compared with $3.35 early last week. Members of the trade expressed hope of checking the decline today.

Light steers and yearlings were an exception to the rule yesterday, when they maintained a fully steady price basis. Other steers sold weak to lower, medium and heavy kinds showing the brunt of the decline at the close. In-between classes of steers are 50 to 75 cents under the high point of the week.

Large local packers again were the principal buyers in the better grades of cattle. Armour paid the $7.25 top for 1,089 pound yearlings. Only a small share of the "upper crust" sold above $6.50, while the bulk of the total supply of beef steers cashed within a range of $4.35 to $6.50. Thin unfinished 800 to 1,000 pound averages ranged down to $3.25.

Drastic Cut in Lambs.

Another 25 to 50 cents break in the lamb market carried quotations 65 to 75 cents under the high point of the week. A 2 cents per pound break in the wholesale price of dressed lamb carcasses contributed to the depression in the market and curbed buying by smaller interests. Big packers obtained the bulk of good grades of fed western lambs around $5.50, while shippers bought a scattered supply at $5.60 and one smaller interest paid $5.75 for one load.

DOLLAR STRONG AS SOME NATIONS QUOTE EXCHANGE

Although the United States dollar still was not quoted officially in London and Paris yesterday, indications from other nations were that when exchange was resumed United States funds would have lost little in the exchange market.

At Buenos Aires, a rate of 3.38 pesos to the dollar was quoted, the same rate that has prevailed for more than a year. Most other centers were still trading in the dollar at a small discount from the last official quotation. Soviet Russia began discounting the dollar at 10 per cent less than its former value.

Reports Big Sales of Lead at New York and St. Louis

New York, March 9.—The St. Joseph Lead company reports that 300 tons of pig lead was sold yesterday at $3.25 per hundred pounds, New York; 1,050 tons at $3 per hundred pounds, New York, and 1,200 tons at $2.87½ per hundred pounds, St. Louis.

Most Hogs Sold in 10 Yrs. in Oklahoma City Market

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 9.—(AP)—The biggest day's business in hogs on the Live Stock exchange here in ten years was recorded today. Receipts were estimated at 4,500 head, for which packers gave checks totaling more than $30,000.

U. S. Stocks Sell Higher on London Board

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 9.—American stocks remained strong on the London Stock exchange today, with closing prices well on the upside. Trading was active despite the fact it was settlement day.

International Nickel was the most active of the United States shares and closed ⅝ up. New York Central, appearing on the tape for the first time this week, was 2 points up from the last sale.

German bonds were weak on rumors of disturbances in the Reich. Silver gained another 7-16 of a penny per ounce today on speculative buying, and copper, tin, and lead also were slightly dearer. Bar gold moved up 8½ pence per ounce, being quoted at 119s 7½d.

Closing Stock Prices.

Closing prices on American stocks, quoted at 4 shillings per dollar:

Am Tel & Tel	147⅛	Int Nickel	11⅜
Atchison	55⅛	Internat Tel	9⅛
Brazil Traction	9⅛	N Y Central	22⅛
Canadian Pac	13⅜	Southern Pac	19⅛
Con Gas	78	Union Pac	90
Drug Inc	48	Nat Dairy Prods	18⅝
Eastman Kodak	76	United Fruit	36
Hydro Electric	6⅜	U S Steel	89

Paris Market Steady.

PARIS, March 9.—(AP)—Trading on the bourse was reserved at the opening today, but a stronger tendency developed later in the session. Traders appeared to be encouraged by the belief that a definite line on the American monetary policy would be obtainable after President Roosevelt had presented his message to congress. Prices at the close were sustained.

Berlin Prices Weaker.

BERLIN, March 9.—(AP)—Prices weakened on the boerse today and, after fluctuating irregularly, the market closed dull.

Montreal Prices.

MONTREAL, Que., March 9.—[Special.]—Closing prices on the Montreal exchange were irregular. Canadian Pacific sold off ⅛ to 11⅜. International Nickel was unchanged at 9⅛, and Shawinigan advanced ⅛ to 10⅜.

Toronto Mines Lower.

TORONTO, Ont., March 9.—Stocks finished slightly lower on the Standard Mining exchange today, after a comparatively slow trade, which was attended by fairly wide swings. An irregular opening was replaced by a recession, but sellers were few and the market turned strong again. The morning losses, however, were not entirely recovered.

N. Y. MART READY TO OPEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—The New York Stock exchange's special committee of seven continued in conference today, smoothing the way for immediate resumption of trading as soon as New York banks can provide adequate facilities for clearing payments.

Transactions in foreign markets were forbidden today except for the purpose of closing existing commitments, unless the customer initiating the transaction arranges to finance it outside the United States and provides adequate margin. Equities existing in United States dollar accounts, the exchange ruled, shall not be used either to finance or margin the transactions.

The New York Curb exchange issued a similar prohibition, effective after today.

Reports of bootleg markets in listed securities continued to be vague and the securities bureau of the state attorney general's office said that it had found no evidence of transactions.

The New York Coffee and Sugar exchange announced that it would remain closed until further notice for all trading and deliveries in coffee, sugar and molasses.

CARL WILLIAMS RESIGNS FROM U. S. FARM BOARD

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—Carl Williams of Oklahoma today resigned as a member of the federal farm board, the resignation, submitted to President Roosevelt, to become effective March 15.

Williams was editor of the Oklahoma Stockman, published at Oklahoma City, prior to his appointment as a member of the board by President Hoover. His term was for a period of six years ending in 1935. He was the cotton expert of the board and also vice chairman.

PREDICT SPEEDY RESUMPTION OF GRAIN TRADING

Chicago Traders See Higher Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

An early resumption of banking activities, with a consequent return to normal operations on the grain exchanges, was expected by trade leaders yesterday reading President Roosevelt's message to congress.

Formal announcement was made late in the day by the federal farm board that the conference called at Washington to consider reopening of the exchanges in order to permit hedging operations had been abandoned in view of the President's action. Members of the leading grain exchanges, millers, and others were reported to be on their way home yesterday afternoon.

Owing to inability on the part of mills to remove hedges against cash wheat, they have been forced to ask somewhat higher prices for flour to protect themselves against an advance in the former.

May Buy U. S. Wheat.

That the Grain Stabilization corporation may experience little difficulty in disposing of its holdings of 30,391,000 bushels of wheat futures was indicated in trade gossip yesterday. It was understood that mills had bid for around 10,000,000 bushels of May wheat, but their offers had been rejected by the government. Some time ago a bid of 38 cents per bushel for the entire holding is said to have been made. This was well below the price prevailing in the pit at the time and was also turned down.

Extreme optimism as to the future of general business was expressed on the Board of Trade yesterday. Memberships on the exchange, which sold to a limited number around $4,000 late last week, jumped to $6,000 within an hour after President Roosevelt had addressed congress and closed at the latter figure bid, with offers to sell at $7,000.

Inflation May Boost Prices.

Prospects of inflation in the currency as the result of the emergency banking legislation led many operators to predict higher commodity markets in the immediate future. The Winnipeg wheat market felt the effect of the possible increase in the supply of American money by advancing 1⅜ cents over Wednesday's finish to a high of 51¾ cents for the May delivery. Chicago interests were reported to have been good buyers during the day, while hedging pressure was limited.

At the high point yesterday Winnipeg wheat was only a fraction under the best figure witnessed last Monday, and 3⅝ cents above last Friday's finish. Trading was much more active than the previous day, and the finish close was at net gains of 1 to 1⅛ cents, with May at 51⅜ to 51½ cents, July at 52⅝ cents, and October at 52½ to 52⅝ cents in Canadian funds.

Other Grains Higher.

Other grains at Winnipeg also came in for attention, with oats gaining ⅜ to ⅝ cents for the day, while rye was ⅛ to 1 cent higher; barley, up ¼ to ½ cent and flax seed, 1¼ cents. Liverpool, after being somewhat easier early, reversed its action and closed unchanged to ⅛ penny higher.

No sales of cash grain were reported in leading markets yesterday. However, grain is being inspected on arrival. Local receipts were 3 cars of wheat, 22 cars of corn, 4 cars of oats, 1 car of rye and 2 cars of barley. The movement to all markets, however, is extremely small.

Havana's Banks to Reopen Today; Closed Four Days

HAVANA, March 9.—(AP)—Havana's banks will reopen tomorrow, terminating the four day holiday ordered by President Machado. United States banking houses here are provided with about $27,000,000 in new money. Withdrawals are restricted to 10 per cent for the next fifteen days by presidential decree.

Total of All Money in U.S. 10¼ Billions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—All types of money in existence in the country at the end of February added up to $10,275,195,454, the highest total on record. The increase in money stocks was due almost entirely to the printing of new federal reserve and national bank notes.

The ten billion dollars in the country was made up as follows:

Gold coin and bullion, $4,379,268,999; silver dollars, $540,007,703; subsidiary silver, $306,728,242; minor coins, $126,660,837; United States notes, $346,681,016; federal reserve bank notes, $2,694,012; national bank notes, $894,321,055, and federal reserve notes, $3,678,833,590.

Currency Based on Coin.

In addition there was in existence $1,250,946,269 in gold certificates, $482,682,772 in silver certificates, and $1,214,500 in treasury notes of 1890. These three types of paper money, however, merely represent dollar for dollar gold or silver held in treasury vaults to secure them and therefore do not increase the total money stocks.

Of the ten billion dollars in the country at the end of February, about 2,100 million dollars was in the treasury vaults. Another $1,632,540,322 was being held by federal reserve banks and their agents. The remaining $6,545,617,139 was reported by the treasury as "in circulation." Actually this amount of money was in the hands of banks, business houses, and persons.

There's $52.23 Per Capita.

Estimating the population at 125,323,000, the treasury announced the amount of money outstanding for each person in the country was $52.23.

Out of the six billion dollars "in circulation," federal reserve notes made up more than half, or $3,404,923,285. The rest was gold coins and bullion, $571,337,850; gold certificates, $649,563,859; silver dollars, $28,389,901; silver certificates, $362,436,765; treasury notes of 1890, $1,214,500; subsidiary silver, $252,068,924; minor coins, $111,497,154; United States notes, $300,555,630; federal reserve bank notes, $2,635,333; national bank notes, $860,993,928.

SILVER GETS UP TO 30 CENTS IN COMMODITY RISE

Copper and Cotton Are Also Firmer.

New York March 9.—(AP)—The "bank holiday" advance in commodities slackened perceptibly today, but some items previously neglected in the buying enjoyed higher price ratings.

Spot silver was raised ⅛ cent to 30 cents an ounce. In the absence of a normal market the quotation was based on the price of bar silver in London and the Chinese tael. Despite the nominal character of the market, the price was carried to the highest level since last August, after a virtually uninterrupted climb since the exchanges suspended last Friday. It now stands 6½ cents an ounce above the record low established in January.

Cotton Continues Advance.

There were indications of a less active demand for spot cotton, according to trade interests, but holders were said to be showing no inclination to press their offerings. There were unconfirmed reports of small transactions within the range of 7.40 cents a pound.

Spot cotton in the south today continued an upward trend with prices generally from 50 to 100 points above the closing quotations on the New Orleans and New York exchanges. The heaviest sales reported to the cotton division of the United States department of agriculture were at Norfolk, Va., where 2,093 bales changed hands at 7 cents for ⅞ strict middling, 65 points above the last quotation in New York when the market closed March 3, and 105 points above New Orleans' closing, March 1.

Copper Prices Firmer.

Copper finally parted company with the 5 cent pound quotation which had been in effect for several months. Producers raised the level to 5⅛ cents on the strength of a somewhat more active flow of orders to fabricators. In the export market the price was lifted slightly.

Most of the lower priced nonferrous metals were quoted at firm prices and scrap steel was boosted 25 cents a ton in some markets. Some transactions were reported in prime western zinc at 3 cents a pound, a gain of 1-5 cent over the previous day. Tin was nominally quoted, ½ cent a pound higher.

Canadian Railway Merger May Be Put Up to Voters

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., March 9.—Canadians may be asked at the next election for a plebiscite declaration on amalgamation of the government owned Canadian National railways with the privately owned Canadian Pacific railway. Meanwhile, the Bennett government is introducing into its railway bill a special clause specifically providing against amalgamation under the economy cooperation provisions of the present legislation.

Porto Rico Banks Take Holiday Over Next Week

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 9—(AP)—Gov. Beverley today declared a bank holiday until the end of next week. During that period all banks will be closed except for the transaction of such business as may be permitted under regulations which the governor is now preparing. This action followed refusal by the legislature to grant the executive board emergency powers.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK GROUP UNITES DEPOSITS

First Union Holds Trust Business.

The First National Bank of Chicago has taken over the banking business of its affiliate, the First Union Trust and Savings bank, according to an announcement made last night by Melvin A. Traylor, president of both institutions.

As a result of this step, which was taken following meetings of the directors of both institutions, the commercial banking power of both banks will be centered in the First National bank, which will take over the deposits, including savings accounts, of the First Union Trust and Savings. The latter will continue to conduct its present trust business.

Take Advantage of New Law.

Unification of the banking business of the affiliated banks in the First National was decided on at this time in order to take advantage of the new banking legislation passed by congress and signed by President Roosevelt last night. This legislation confers special benefits on member banks of the federal reserve system and also on national banks. The First Union Trust and Savings bank in recent years has not been a member of the reserve system, inasmuch as the parent institution, the First National bank, has been a member since the inception of the system.

While the First National-First Union group has formed one of the chief banking institutions in Chicago and in the United States, the present unification of banking functions will further strengthen the position of the First National. Combined deposits of the two banks at the end of 1932 were nearly 617 million dollars, combined resources totaled more than 698 millions, and combined capitalization exceeded 60 million dollars.

Unification Is Explained.

"The First National Bank of Chicago and the First Union Trust and Savings bank, a state bank, have since 1903 jointly offered the various banking facilities ordinarily transacted by a single banking institution," President Traylor explained. "As is well known, the stock of the First Union Trust and Savings bank is held by trustees for the benefit of the stockholders of the First National bank. The directors are the same, and the two banks have, to a considerable extent, the same official staff.

"The officers and directors of our two banks have in recent years thought it would be in the interest of economy and efficiency if the banking business of the two banks should be combined. This process has been under way for some time.

Deposits Are Combined.

"In view of the recent developments and the prospect that banks which are members of the federal reserve system may enjoy wider privileges the directors of our banks determined to combine at this time the banking business of the First National bank and the First Union Trust and Savings bank. The controller of the currency of the United States and the auditor of public accounts of Illinois having approved, the First National bank has assumed all deposit liabilities, including savings accounts, of the First Union Trust and Savings bank.

"Hereafter all the banking business heretofore done by the First Union Trust and Savings bank will be done by the First National bank. There will be no inconvenience to customers inasmuch as the same checks and passbooks can be used temporarily until First National checks and passbooks are provided. The savings department and other business will be conducted in the same quarters.

"The trust business of the First Union Trust and Savings bank will be carried on by it as heretofore."

One of Pioneer Banks.

The First National bank is one of the oldest in the country. It was organized immediately after the passage of the national bank act and opened for business July 1, 1863, having received charter number eight from the controller of the currency. The initial capital of the bank was fixed at $250,000 and its first statement, published Sept. 30, 1863, showed deposits of $273,089.

In 1882 the bank occupied its new building at the northwest corner of Dearborn and Monroe streets, which has been its location continuously since. A new 18 story structure was erected on the site in 1905, and extensive alterations and additions were completed in 1928, giving the bank an office building with entrances on Clark and Dearborn streets. The capital of the bank was increased in 1882 to three million and in 1900 to five million. Two years later it was made eight million; in 1910, ten million; in 1920, twelve and one-half million; in 1926, fifteen million dollars, and in 1929, twenty-five million.

There have been several banks merged with the First National bank, the Union National in 1900, the Metropolitan National in 1902, the Union Trust company in 1929, and the Foreman-State banks in 1931. In 1903 the First Trust and Savings bank was organized by First National interests. The growth of the First National bank has been reflected in the First Union Trust and Savings bank, the latter's capital having been increased from the original $1,000,000 to $10,000,000.

R. A. BUHLER, Secretary.

Rumor Ouster of Meyer as Reserve Head

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Brusque ousting of Gov. Eugene Meyer of the federal reserve board as head of that body and a sweeping reorganization of the whole board is imminent, according to rumors afloat in financial circles here today after Meyer called hurriedly at the White House this morning.

Gilbert M. Hitchcock, publisher of the Omaha World-Herald and former United States senator, has been offered a position on the board and perhaps the chairmanship to be left vacant by the firing of Meyer, it is said. Hitchcock is reported as undecided on his acceptance.

Combat New York Domination.

Behind the renovating that is about to engulf the board and Meyer, is a bitter battle which interior banks, especially those of Chicago, have waged against the board and the dominant New York federal reserve bank for years. For this reason, Meyer is to be handled without kid gloves, rumors say.

The governor of the federal reserve board is designated by the President from among the members and he serves "until otherwise ordered" under the federal reserve act. President Roosevelt is about to remove Meyer from the governorship, it is said, and Meyer, whose term runs until 1938, is expected to resign from the board entirely if this action is taken.

Meyer's resignation would pave the way for a Roosevelt dominated board. Two vacancies already exist in the regular membership of six, and Meyer's departure would leave half of a new board to be selected by Roosevelt. The two ex officio members, the secretary of the treasury and the controller of the currency, ordinarily are appointed by the new President.

Reserve Board Policies Criticized.

The reserve bank policies of the last year and the constantly recurring charge that the New York reserve bank leads the present board by the nose have undermined Meyer's position. The billion dollar venture in the open market, which the board launched last year and which left the reserve banks helpless in its present crisis, has brought down much criticism, especially from Chicago.

The appointment of a Chicago business man, agriculturalist, or banker to the board to fill one of the vacancies is one of the probable steps in the reorganization. Chicago is at present without representation on the country's central banking board.

OMNIBUS CORP. REPORTS PROFIT OF $970,903 IN '32

The Omnibus corporation, holding company, which owns all the capital stock of the Chicago Motor Coach company and the Gray Line Sightseeing Company of Chicago, and a large interest in New York bus lines, yesterday reported consolidated net profits for the year of $970,903, compared with $1,100,232 in 1931.

Operating profits for 1932 were $559,992, compared with $693,275 in 1931. Dividends received from investments in the Fifth Avenue Bus Securities corporation for 1932 were $357,133, compared with $364,967 in 1931. Dividends from the New York Transportation company for 1932 were $53,778, compared with $51,990 in 1931.

Current assets totaled $962,885 as of Dec. 31, 1932, compared with $817,699 at the end of the preceding year. Total assets were given as $19,604,583. Current liabilities as of Dec. 31, 1932, totaled $539,055, compared with $578,624 as of Dec. 31, 1931.

Junior Commerce Chamber Starts Meeting Tomorrow

Coming here from nine middle western states to attend the annual regional conference of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which opens a two day session in the Allerton hotel beginning tomorrow, 100 delegates will endeavor to formulate a definite program whereby young business executives who are members of the organization may help solve the present financial crisis. The delegates represent 57 chambers and a membership of 12,000 in the central part of the country.

N.Y. Insurance Head Makes Rules for Making Payments

New York, March 9.—(AP)—Regulations suspending the loan and surrender values of life insurance policies of companies doing business in this state, with exceptions "in cases of extreme need" to the extent of $100 or less, were issued today by George S. Van Schaick, state superintendent of insurance. The regulations apply to all companies doing business in the state. They take effect immediately and will continue "until further order."

PUBLIC HOLDS 7½ BILLIONS IN CASH; A RECORD

Reserve Banks Lend to N. Y. Unit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—Money in circulation jumped $18 million dollars in the week ended yesterday and most of the increase came in the three days before the closing of the country's banks, the federal reserve board announced tonight.

As currency outstanding climbed up to a total of $7,538,000,000, an all time record high, another $101,000,000 of gold slipped out of the country prior to the embargo, the reserve board announced. Total gold stocks of the country dropped to $4,243,000,000 as approximately 100 million dollars more in gold coins was drawn out of the treasury by persons in this country. This increase in domestic gold holdings is included in the increase in circulation, it was explained.

Shows Strain on System.

The report showed in its sweeping changes the strain to which the central banking system had been subjected in the last two business days of last week. The rise in money outstanding and the drop of $208,544,000 in gold holdings of the system were true indications. Others were the fact that member banks' borrowing increased $701,545,000 to $1,413,936,000, the highest volume ever reached, and a total of $708,000,000 of federal reserve bank credit, the largest weekly increase on record, was pumped into the market.

Despite this the total reserve balances of the member banks were 238 million dollars lower than they were a week ago. Member bank reserves amounted in all to 1,800 million dollars as of Wednesday, against 2,574 million dollars on Jan. 11 last, a decrease of 774 million dollars in the period of less than two months.

This tremendous shrinkage of member bank reserves, entirely wiping out the large excess that had existed on the earlier date, took place in spite of an increase of 1,538 million dollars in outstanding federal reserve bank credit between Jan. 11 and last Wednesday and an increase of $1,166,000 in member bank borrowings from the reserve banks.

Reserve Ratio Drops.

The ratio of reserves of the system to combined note and deposit liabilities fell to 45.6 per cent, against 53.5 per cent a week ago. At this level the ratio was at the lowest point since March, 1920. The ratio of the Federal Reserve bank of New York dropped to 41.4 per cent, against 45.8 per cent last week. This was the lowest since January, 1921.

The statement of the Federal Reserve bank of New York showed how sharply the crisis had hit the New York district. But it did not give a true picture of all that had occurred, for on the one day since the holiday that the reserve bank has been open it has been able to discount at other regional banks of the system and rebuild its gold holdings.

Nevertheless, the New York reserve bank's gold holdings were off $13,253,000, its note circulation was up $171,362,000, and its advances to member banks has increased $492,145,000. An indication of the extent to which the New York bank had repaired its position by shifts within the system was provided by the circumstances that its holdings of United States government securities were down 105 million dollars and its holdings of bankers' bills bought in the open market were off $9,626,000, while for the entire system these two items rose $44,831,000 and $33,623,000.

New Item in Statement.

Further evidence of this shifting of assets within the system to bring the ratio of the New York reserve bank up to legal requirements was provided by a new item in the statement of the twelve reserve banks combined. This was "rediscounts between federal reserve banks" and it amounted to $210,-

Prudential Insurance Company of America.

I would like to have an annuity contract with some good strong company. I am considering Prudential. Any information concerning them will be appreciated.—S. G.

Prudential Insurance Company of America was incorporated in 1873 as a stock company. Under a plan of mutualization all except $75,545 par value of the company's stock has been trusteed for the benefit of policyholders. When the balance of stock still outstanding is surrendered all the stock will be retired.

The company is ably managed and operations are conducted economically. Mortality rate in both the industrial and ordinary life departments is favorable.

Growth has been steady. Admitted assets at the close of 1932 totaled 2 billion 774 million dollars, a gain of $81,071,000 during the year. Admitted assets of 2 billion 693 million dollars compared with 2 billion 492 million dollars on Dec. 31, 1930, and 1 billion 373 million dollars on Dec. 31, 1925.

On Dec. 31, 1932, 41.7 per cent of assets was in bonds and stocks, 32.8 per cent in mortgage loans on real estate other than farms, 7.3 per cent in farm mortgage loans, 8.4 per cent in policy loans, 3.3 per cent in real estate, and 5.3 per cent in cash and other assets.

Insurance in force was more than fifteen billion dollars.

Total income in 1932 was $720,727,000, against $730,545,000 in 1931.

In addition to the legal net reserve, surplus and other margins for protection of policyholders was $131,932,000 and contingency reserve for fluctuations in security values was $46,000,000.

The company is licensed to do business in all states of the United States and all provinces of Canada.

Kansas City Public Service.

Please give me a report on Kansas City Public Service first 6s, due 1951.—B. N. J.

Kansas City Public Service company furnishes transportation service to Kansas City and Independence, Mo., and Kansas City, Kas.

Reflecting declining popularity of street railway transportation, gross has decreased steadily since 1926. For the twelve months to Nov. 30, 1932, gross revenues were $5,932,000. They were $7,840,000 for 1931, $8,377,000 for 1930, and $8,952,000 for 1929.

Only 95 per cent of fixed charges was earned in the twelve months to Nov. 30, 1932. Charges were earned 1.49 times in 1931, 1.37 times in 1930, 1.48 times in 1929, and 1.88 times in 1928.

On Nov. 30, 1932, current assets were $1,046,000 and current liabilities were $1,001,000. Funded debt was $14,300,000.

The first 6s, due 1951, are speculative.

7½ BILLIONS U. S. CASH IN PUBLIC HANDS IS RECORD

Inland Reserve Banks Loan to New York Unit.

000,000, almost all of which was apparently borrowed by the New York institution.

Since all purchases of United States government securities and bills are made through the New York reserve bank in the New York money market, these contrasting changes indicated that the New York bank of issue had passed along to other members of the system a total of nearly $200,000,000 of securities held or purchased by it in return for transfers of gold to its account from the accounts of the other regional banks. From this circumstance it appears that the local bank of issue must have suffered a drain of upwards of $200,000,000 on its gold holdings in the panicky rush of last Thursday and Friday and that its reserve ratio must have been driven down to far below the legal minimum for a short time.

Money Soars to Record Total.

This week's striking rise of money in circulation, reflecting the operations of only two full banking days and softened by the adjustments that have been accomplished during the bank holiday in the way of securing a return of some till money from banks and of some gold from hoarding, follows a rise of $732,000,000 in the week ended on March 1, which was a record advance at the time it was reported.

The current total of $7,538,000,000 of money in circulation exceeds by about $1,800,000,000 the highest total ever recorded prior to the outbreak of the Michigan bank crisis on Feb. 13. The loss of $208,544,000 of gold holdings by the federal reserve banks combined brings the total reduction in their gold reserves in the past two weeks to $434,854,000, a loss without parallel in banking history.

Gold Above Last June.

The total of monetary gold stocks, $4,242,000,000, was $323,000,000 below the recent high reached on Jan. 18, but still $334,000,000 above the low of $3,909,000,000 to which the country's gold holdings were reduced on June 15 of last year when the big foreign drain on our holdings came to an end.

The advance in federal reserve note circulation to $4,215,006,000 lifted the total of such currency outstanding to the highest levels on record, far above anything recorded prior to last week. On the basis of a rough calculation the federal reserve system now has excess gold reserves amounting to $314,000,000 against an excess of over $600,000,000 last week.

Contrary to expectations the Federal Reserve bank of New York made no change in its rediscount rate.

The condition statements of member banks in New York City and Chicago were not published.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Raw sugar was a little easier today and demand less active. Prices declined 5 points to the basis of 3 cents for spots. Evidently the recent heavy purchases had satisfied the more urgent requirements of buyers. It was rumored that some business was done at 2.98 cents. Refined was unchanged at 4.10 cents for fine granulated.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Coffee on the spot was quiet and somewhat irregular. Quotations on Santos 4s ranged from 9¼ to 9⅝ cents, while Rio 7s were nominally held at 8¾ cents. Business in the cost and freight market was less active, with Brazilian offerings somewhat heavier.

TEXT OF NEW BANKING LAW

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—The text of the emergency banking law follows:

A bill to provide relief in the existing national emergency in banking, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, that the congress hereby declares that a serious emergency exists and that it is imperatively necessary speedily to put into effect remedies of uniform national application.

TITLE I.

SECTION 1. The actions, regulations, rules, licenses, order and proclamations heretofore or hereafter taken, promulgated, made, or issued by the President of the United States or the secretary of the treasury since March 4, 1933, pursuant to the authority conferred by subdivision [b] of section 5 of the act of Oct. 6, 1917, as amended, are hereby approved and confirmed.

SECTION 2. Subdivision [b] of section 5 of the act of Oct. 6, 1917 [40 Stat. L. 411], as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"[b] During time of war or during any other period of national emergency declared by the President, the President may, through any agency that he may designate, or otherwise, investigate, regulate, or prohibit, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, by means of licenses or otherwise, any transactions in foreign exchange, transfers of credit between banking institutions as defined by the President, and export, hoarding, melting, or earmarking of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency, by any person within the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof; and the President may require any person engaged in any transaction referred to in this subdivision to furnish under oath complete information relative thereto, including the production of any books of account, contracts, letters, or other papers, in connection therewith in the custody for control of such person, either before or after such transaction is completed. Whoever wilfully violates any of the provisions of this subdivision or of any license, order, rule, or regulation issued thereunder, shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than $10,000, or, if a natural person, be imprisoned for not more than ten years, or both; and any officer, director, or agent of any corporation who knowingly participates in such violation shall be punished by a like fine, imprisonment, or both. As used in this subdivision, the term 'person' means an individual, partnership, association, or corporation."

PROTECTING CURRENCY

"SECTION 3. Section II. of the federal reserve act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"[n] Whenever in the judgment of the secretary of the treasury such action is necessary to protect the currency system of the United States, the secretary of the treasury, in his discretion, may require any and all individuals, partnerships, associations, and corporations to pay to the treasurer of the United States any or all gold coin, gold bullion, and gold certificates owned by such individuals, partnerships, associations, and corporations. Upon receipt of such gold coin, gold bullion, or gold certificates the secretary of the treasury shall pay therefor an equivalent amount of any other form of coin or currency coined or issued under the laws of the United States. The secretary of the treasury shall pay all costs of the transportation of such gold bullion, gold certificates, coin or currency, including the cost of insurance, protection, and such other incidental costs as may be reasonably necessary. Any individual, partnership, association or corporation failing to comply with any requirement of the secretary of the treasury made under this subsection shall be subject to a penalty equal to twice the value of the gold or gold certificates in respect of which such failure occurred, and such penalty may be collected by the secretary of the treasury by suit or otherwise."

SECTION 4. In order to provide for the safer and more effective operation of the national banking system and the federal reserve system, to preserve for the people the full benefits of the currency provided for by the congress through the national banking system and the federal reserve system, and to relieve interstate commerce of the burdens and obstructions resulting from the receipt on an unsound or unsafe basis of deposits subject to withdrawal by check during such emergency period as the President of the United States by proclamation may prescribe, no member bank of the federal reserve system shall transact any banking business except to such extent and subject to such regulations, limitations and restrictions as may be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the President.

PRISON TERM PROVIDED

Any individual, partnership, corporation, or association, or any director, officer or employé thereof, violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not more than $10,000 or, if a natural person, may, in addition to such fine, be imprisoned for a term not exceeding ten years. Each day that any such violation continues shall be deemed a separate offense.

TITLE II.

SECTION 201. This title may be cited as the "bank conservation act."

SECTION 202. As used in this title, the term "bank" means (1) any national banking association, (2) any bank or trust company located in the District of Columbia and operating under the supervision of the controller of the currency, and the term "state" means any state, territory or possession of the United States and the Canal Zone.

SECTION 203. Whenever he shall deem it necessary in order to conserve the assets of any bank for the benefit of the depositors and other creditors thereof, the controller of the currency may appoint a conservator for such bank and require of him such bond and security as the controller of the currency deems proper. The conservator, under the direction of the controller, shall take possession of the books, records, and assets of every description of such bank and take such action as may be necessary to conserve the assets of such bank pending further disposition of its business as provided by law. Such conservator shall have all the rights, powers, and privileges now possessed by or hereafter given receivers of insolvent national banks and shall be subject to the obligations and penalties, not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, to which receivers are now or may hereafter become subject. During the time that such conservator remains in possession of such bank the rights of all parties with respect thereto shall, subject to the other provisions of this title, be the same as if a receiver had been appointed therefor. All expenses of any such conservatorship shall be paid out of the assets of such bank and shall be a lien thereon which shall be prior to any other lien provided by this act or otherwise. The conservator shall receive as salary an amount no greater than that paid to employes of the federal government for similar services.

SECTION 204. The controller of the currency shall cause to be made such examinations of the affairs of such bank as shall be necessary to inform him as to the financial condition of such bank, and the examiner shall make a report thereon to the controller of the currency at the earliest practicable date.

GUARDS PUBLIC INTEREST

SECTION 205. If the controller of the currency becomes satisfied that it may safely be done and that it would be in the public interest he may, in his discretion, terminate the conservatorship and permit such bank to resume the transaction of its business subject to such terms, conditions, restrictions, and limitations as he may prescribe.

SECTION 206. While such bank is in the hands of the conservator appointed by the controller of the currency the controller may require the conservator to set aside and make available for withdrawal by depositors and payment to other creditors, on a ratable basis, such amounts as in the opinion of the controller may safely be used for this purpose; and the controller may, in his discretion, permit the conservator to receive deposits, but deposits received while the bank is in the hands of the conservator shall not be subject to any limitation as to payment or withdrawal, and such deposits shall be segregated and shall not be used to liquidate any indebtedness of such bank existing at the time that a conservator was appointed for it, or any subsequent indebtedness incurred for the purpose of liquidating any indebtedness of such bank existing at the time such conservator was appointed. Such deposits received while the bank is in the hands of the conservator shall be kept on hand in cash, invested in the direct obligations of the United States, or deposited with a federal reserve bank. The federal reserve banks are hereby authorized to open and maintain separate deposit accounts for such purpose, or for the purpose of receiving deposits from state officials in charge of state banks under similar circumstances.

SECTION 207. In any reorganization of any national banking association under a plan of a kind which, under existing law, requires the consent, as the case may be, [a] of depositors and other creditors or [b] of stockholders or [c] of both depositors and other creditors and stockholders, such reorganization shall become effective only [1] when the controller of the currency shall be satisfied that the plan of reorganization is fair and equitable as to all depositors, other creditors and stockholders and is in the public interest and shall have approved the plan subject to such conditions, restrictions and limitations as he may prescribe and [2] when, after reasonable notice of such reorganization, as the case may require, [a] depositors and other creditors of such bank representing at least 75 per cent in amount of its total deposits and other liabilities as shown by the books of the national banking association or [b] stockholders owning at least two-thirds of its outstanding capital stock as shown by the books of the national banking association, or [c] both depositors and other creditors representing at least 75 per cent in amount of the total deposits and other liabilities and stockholders owning at least two-thirds of its outstanding capital stock as shown by the boks of the national banking association, shall have consented in writing to the plan of reorganization; provided, however, that claims of depositors or other creditors which will be satisfied in full under the provisions of the plan of reorganization shall not be included among the total deposits and other liabilities of the national banking association in determining the 75 per cent thereof as above provided.

When such reorganization becomes effective, all books, records, and assets of the national banking association shall be disposed of in accordance with the provisions of the plan and the affairs of the national banking association shall be conducted by its board of directors in the manner provided by the plan and under the conditions, restrictions and limitations which may have been prescribed by the controller of the currency. In any reorganization which shall have been approved and shall have become effective as provided herein, all depositors and other creditors and stockholders of such national banking association, whether or not they shall have consented to such plan of reorganization, shall be fully and in all respects subject to and bound by its provisions, and claims of all depositors and other creditors shall be treated as if they had consented to such plan of reorganization.

GIVING BACK CONTROL

SECTION 208. Fifteen days after the affairs of a bank shall have been turned back to its board of directors by the conservator, either with or without a reorganization as provided in section 207 hereof, the provisions of section 206 of this title with respect to the segregation of deposits to liquidate the indebtedness of such bank shall no longer be effective; provided, that before the conservator shall turn back the affairs of the bank to its board of directors he shall cause to be published in a newspaper published in the city, town or county in which such bank is located, and if no newspaper is published in such city, town or county, in a newspaper to be selected by the controller of the currency published in the state in which the bank is located, a notice in form approved by the controller, stating the date on which the affairs of the bank will be returned to its board of directors and that the said provisions of section 206 will not be effective after fifteen days after such date; and on the date of the publication of such notice the conservator shall immediately send to every person who is a depositor in such bank under section 206, a copy of such notice by registered mail addressed to the last known address of such person as shown by the records of the bank, and the conservator shall send similar notice in like manner to every person making deposit in such bank under section 206 after the date of such newspaper publication and before the time when the affairs of the bank are returned to its directors.

SECTION 209. Conservators appointed pursuant to the provisions of this title shall be subject to the provisions of and to the penalties prescribed by Section 5209 of the revised statutes [U. S. C., title 12, sec. 592]; and sections 112, 113, 114, 115, 116 and 117 of the criminal code of the United States [U. S. C., title 18, sections 202, 203, 204, 205, 206 and 207], in so far as applicable, are extended to apply to contracts, agreements, proceedings, dealings, claims and controversies by or with any such conservator or the controller of the currency under the provisions of this title.

RETAIN FULL POWERS

SECTION 210. Nothing in this title shall be construed to impair in any manner any powers of the President, the secretary of the treasury, the controller of the currency, or the federal reserve board.

SECTION 211. The controller of the currency is hereby authorized and empowered, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, to prescribe such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary in order to carry out the provisions of this title. Whoever violates any rule or regulation made pursuant to this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not more than $5,000, or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

Title III.

SECTION 301. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any national banking association may, with the approval of the controller of the currency and by vote of shareholders owning a majority of the stock of such association, upon not less than five days' notice, given by registered mail pursuant to action taken by its board of directors, issue preferred stock in such amount and with such par value as shall be approved by said controller, and make such amendments to its articles of association as may be necessary for this purpose; but in the case of any newly organized national banking association which has not yet issued common stock, the requirement of notice to and vote of shareholders shall not apply. No issue of preferred stock shall be valid until the whole amount representing the par value of such stock shall be paid in.

CONTROL OF DIVIDENDS

SECTION 302. [a] The holders of such preferred stock shall be entitled to cumulative dividends at a rate not exceeding 6 per centum per annum, but shall not be held individually responsible as such holders for any debts, contracts, or engagements of such association and shall not be liable for assessments to restore impairments in the capital of such association as now provided by law with reference to holders of common stock. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the holders of such preferred stock shall have such voting rights, and such stock shall be subject to retirement in such manner and on such terms and conditions as may be provided in the articles of association with the approval of the controller of the currency.

[b] No dividends shall be declared or paid on common stock until the cumulative dividends on the preferred stock shall have been paid in full; and, if the association is placed in voluntary liquidation or a conservator or a receiver is appointed therefor, no payments shall be made to the holders of the common stock until the holders of the preferred stock shall have been paid in full the par value of such stock plus all accumulated dividends.

SECTION 303. The term "common stock" as used in his title means stock of national banking associations other than the preferred stock issued under the provisions of this title. The term "capital" as used in provisions of law relating to the capital of national banking associations shall mean the amount of unimpaired common stock plus the amount of preferred stock outstanding and unimpaired; and the term "capital stock" as used in Section 12 of the act of March 15, 1900, shall mean only the amount of common stock outstanding.

PURCHASE OF STOCK

SECTION 304. If, in the opinion of the secretary of the treasury, any national banking association or any state bank or trust company is in need of funds for capital purposes, either in connection with the organization or reorganization of such association or any state bank or trust company or otherwise, he may, with the approval of the President, request the Reconstruction Finance corporation to subscribe for preferred stock in such bank or any state bank or trust company or to make loans secured by such stock or collateral, and the Reconstruction Finance corporation shall subscribe and pay for such stock in accordance with such request. The Reconstruction Finance corporation may, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury and under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, sell in the open market or otherwise the whole or any part of the preferred stock of any national banking association or state bank and trust company acquired by the corporation pursuant to this section. The amount of notes, bonds, debentures, and other such obligations which the Reconstruction Finance corporation is authorized and empowered to issue and to have outstanding at any one time under existing law is hereby increased by an amount sufficient to carry out the provisions of this section.

TITLE IV.

SECTION 401. The sixth paragraph of section 18 of the federal reserve act is amended to read as follows:

"Upon the deposit with the treasurer of the United States [a] of any direct obligations of the United States or [b] of any notes, drafts, bills of exchange, or bankers' acceptances acquired under the provisions of this act, any Federal Reserve bank making such deposit in the manner prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, shall be entitled to receive from the controller of the currency circulating notes in biank, duly registered and countersigned. When such circulating notes are issued against the security of obligations of the United States, the amount of such circulating notes shall be equal to the face value of the direct obligations of the United States so deposited as security; and, when issued against the security of notes, drafts, bills of exchange and bankers' acceptances acquired under the provisions of this act, the amount thereof shall be equal to not more than 90 per cent of the estimated value of such notes, drafts, bills of exchange and bankers' acceptances so deposited as security. Such notes shall be the obligations of the Federal Reserve bank procuring the same, shall be in form prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, shall be receivable at par in all parts of the United States for the same purposes as are national bank notes, and shall be redeemable in lawful money of the United States on presentation at the United States treasury or at the bank of issue. The secretary of the treasury is authorized and empowered to prescribe regulations governing the issuance, redemption, replacement, retirement and destruction of such circulating notes and the release and substitution of security therefor. Such circulating notes shall be subject to the same tax as is provided by law for the circulating notes of national banks secured by 2 per cent bonds of the United States. No such circulating notes shall be issued under this paragraph after the President has declared by proclamation that the emergency recognized by the President by proclamation of March 6, 1933, has terminated, unless such circulating notes are secured by deposits of bonds of the United States bearing the circulation privilege. When required to do so by the secretary of the terasury, each federal reserve agent shall act as agent of the treasurer of the United States or of the controller of the currency, or both, for the performance of any of the functions which the treasurer or the controller may be called upon to perform in carrying out the provisions of this paragraph.

"Appropriations available for distinctive paper and printing United States currency or national bank currency are hereby made available for the production of the circulating notes of Federal Reserve banks herein provided; but the United States shall be reimbursed by the Federal Reserve bank to which such notes are issued for all expenses necessarily incurred in connection with the procuring of such notes and all other expenses incidental to their issue, redemption, replacement, retirement and destruction."

MAKING OF ADVANCES

SECTION 402. Section 10 [B] of the federal reserve act, as amended, is further amended to read as follows:

"Section 10 [B]. In exceptional and exigent circumstances and when any member bank has no further eligible and acceptable assets available to enable it to obtain adequate credit accommodations through rediscounting at the federal reserve bank or any other method provided by this act other than that provided by section 10 [A], any federal reserve bank, under rules and regulations prescribed by the federal reserve board, may make advances to such member bank on its time or demand notes secured to the satisfaction of such federal reserve bank.

"Each such note shall bear interest at a rate not less than one percentum per annum higher than the highest discount rate in effect at such Federal Reserve bank on the date of such note. No advance shall be made under this section after March 4, 1934, or after the expiration of such additional period, not exceeding one year, as the President may prescribe."

SECTION 403. Section 13 of the federal reserve act, as amended, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"Subject to such limitations, restrictions and regulations as the federal reserve board may prescribe, any federal reserve bank may make advances to any individual, partnership or corporation on the promissory notes of such individual, partnership or corporation secured by direct obligations of the United States. Such advances shall be made for periods not exceeding 90 days and shall bear interest at rates fixed from time to time by the federal reserve bank, subject to the review and determination of the federal reserve board."

TITLE V.

SECTION 501. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $2,000,000, which shall be available for expenditure, under the direction of the President and in his discretion, for any purpose in connection with the carrying out of this act.

SECTION 502. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved. If any provision of this act, or the application thereof to any person or circumstances, is held invalid, the remainder of the act, and the application of such provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby.

LIFE INSURANCE MEN SAY INCOME EXCEEDS ALL NORMAL PAYMENTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 9.—Current income of insurance companies, despite the depression, was declared today, at the annual congress of the Life Underwriters association, to be fifty per cent more than needed to pay all death claims, maturing endowments, and annuities, together with payment on a normal number of applications to the insuring company for loans on policies of surrender for their cash value.

The question raised by present and prospective policy holders concerning the depreciation of investments held by insurance companies was answered by Thomas H. Hodgkinson of the New England Mutual. He said that the excess income of the insurance companies made it unnecessary for them either to sell now, while prices were low, or to borrow money to get past the depression.

William M. McDaniels of the Aetna Life explained that the great security of the investment position of life insurance companies was that they bought securities, not for a price rise but for income. As these holdings were limited by law to government bonds, policy loans, mortgages on productive land, and prime railroad industrial and public utility bonds, diversified to represent the economic structure of the country, their payment in successive years as they matured was as assured as the future of the United States, he said.

ELGIN WATCH CO. HAS 1932 LOSS OF $1,193,781

Directors Plan Reduction in Capital Stock.

The Elgin National Watch company sustained a loss of $1,193,781 from its 1932 operations, according to the annual report of President T. Albert Potter to the stockholders. The loss for 1931 was $1,067,552. Mr. Potter stated that the operating loss for 1932 included $417,515 for taxes and depreciation.

"Our cash position, with no bank indebtedness, continues unusually strong," Mr. Potter stated. "Exclusive of our inventory, we have $3,877,133 of net current quick assets, of which $3,106,890 is represented by cash and securities valued at cost or market, whichever is lower."

Mr. Potter stated that the directors propose a decrease of $4,000,000 in the company's capital stock to be effected by reducing the par value of each share to $15. He says the reduction can be made out of the capital transferred from surplus account in order years for stock dividends and without transferring from capital any amount paid in by the stockholders.

The report recalls the change in watch styles from pocket-sized instruments to small ones prior to 1926 and how the company increased production of the smaller instruments to meet the expected demand.

The report says the company now has fewer finished watches in its inventory than it has had in years, and watches are only being finished as required by the trade.

As a result of reductions in inventories and provision for depreciation and obsolescence, the surplus account was reduced from $3,289,355 as of Dec. 31, 1931, to $131,825 as of Dec. 31, 1932.
